'Band-Aid' Curbs Fan Outrage

Ferry Vote Friday

Two thousand B.C. Ferries employees will decide Friday at 5 a.m. whether to strike the government fleet.

Meetings have been called at all ferry terminals when members of the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union will hear reports from their executive on negotiations for a new agreement, which broke down last Friday.

Business agent Norman Thornber said the executive, which met for four hours Monday, will not be giving a specific recommendation, but it is "quite obvious what the decision will be."

He said reports the union is receiving from its members show—"our people are solidly endorsing the action of their committee."

Asked if a work stoppage would come immediately, he said: "Yes, it would."

Representatives of the BCGEU's marine branch (licensed), meanwhile, were meeting B.C. Ferries officials in a negotiating meeting today. The licensed branch represents 400 officers and engineers.

The threat of a strike, however, has not caused a stampede of tourists off Vancouver Island, said B.C. Ferries traffic manager Bob Ellis.

On the mainland, traffic was waiting 1½ hours at Horseshoe Bay and an hour at Tsawwassen to get over to Vancouver Island and a spokesman at Horseshoe Bay expected the delays to grow during the day.

Thornber said "the key to the whole thing" is that the Civil Service Commission and the government are "very reluctant" to recognize the ferry fleet as a marine operation.

"They continually try to relate it to shore operations. Our situation is quite unique in the government service. This is what we are trying to achieve — recognition as a marine operation," he said.

One of the issues is payment for work on statutory holidays. The union wants time-and-one-half to be paid plus a day in lieu at straight-time pay. Transport Minister Bob Strachan has said that because other government employees work on statutory holidays, such a provision must be negotiated on a province-wide basis.

Thornber replied that just because others aren't getting what the ferry workers want doesn't mean the ferry workers shouldn't get it, or that other government workers "should be screwed out of it."

Most of the labor force looks upon statutory holidays as a long weekend but for ferry workers "it's organized confusion. We have to work the statutory holiday and doubly hard the day before and

LIQUOR RE-PRICING ORDERED HALTED

B.C. liquor stores have been ordered to stop increasing the price of products already in stock, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday.

Macdonald was commenting on a Vancouver report that some liquor outlets had liquor products on their shelves which had been re-priced upwards, with labels stuck on top of older labels.

Macdonald said B.C. Liquor Board general manager Bill Bruce informed him this was not board policy but had happened in some instances.

"So we sent a directive to all the stores so that they don't label old stock, purchased at a lower price, with a higher price," the attorney-general said.

Bombs Pound Till Deadline

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Fierce U.S. bombing rocked Phnom Penh for the last time today as warplanes blasted rebel forces surrounding the beleaguered capital in up-to-the-deadline raids.

Air controllers called in strike after strike on the city's defence perimeter from the big B-52 bombers, F-111 jet fighter-bombers and tactical aircraft that have flown intensified raids throughout the country for 160 consecutive days.

Night flares lit the sky around Phnom Penh searching out rebel concentrations. Where they were found, they were hit. With daylight, the air activity became intense. Windows and doors rattled as the whump of the bombs hit the outskirts in the hot sunshine.

The U.S. air war in Cambodia had less than 24 hours to go under a compromise agreement between President Nixon and Congress. The bombing must stop at 9 p.m. PDT tonight, or 11 a.m. Wednesday Cambodian time, and will spell the official end of U.S. military involvement throughout Southeast Asia.

It will be the first time since 1964 that the U.S. Air Force isn't bombing somewhere in Indo-China.

When the bombing ends, the Cambodian army of some 250,000 men, women and youths in their early teens will be on their own, supported from the air by the tiny Cambodian Air Force — a meager fleet of only about 40 obsolete prop-driven fighter-bombers that have none of the sophisticated equipment of U.S. warplanes.

Despite a warning Sunday from deposed Cambodian leader Prince Nordom Sihanouk that victory by his rebel forces in Cambodia is "already practically achieved" and that all foreigners should leave Phnom Penh, the U.S. embassy — largest in the capital with about 200 personnel — said it would stay.

In addition, a force of more than 200 foreign newsmen, television cameramen and photographers were sticking it out to see what happens after the bombing ends.

Since the cease-fire in Vietnam six months ago, the United States has dropped more than 240,000 tons of bombs on Cambodia compared to 160,000 tons of conventional bombs dropped on Japan in the Second World War.

The Pentagon estimates the air war in Cambodia and Laos cost about $442.8 million.

The total cost of the air war is difficult to calculate because the Pentagon has provided only piecemeal figures.

However, it was estimated last January that the total price in lost planes and bombs and rockets fired came then to about $16.5 billion. Aircraft fuel, spare parts and the cost of maintaining air

$5 a Bushel For U.S. Wheat

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The first $5-a-bushel wheat trading in United States history occurred at the Minneapolis Grain Exchange today. Spring wheat for delivery in September reached a new high of $5.07 a bushel.

Trading sources said about a million bushels were sold in the opening flurry of trading.

Iran Accepted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran has been accepted as a member of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) in South Vietnam.

Colorful Robber

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man with a purple and pink money bag and a gun took $2,281 from a Royal Bank branch here Monday. Police said the bandit was about 25, of slim build and six feet tall. He wore a mauve-pink shirt.

Gold Below $100

LONDON (UPI) — The price of gold dropped below $100 an ounce for the second consecutive day on the London bullion market and the U.S. dollar gained in Europe and in Tokyo. Gold first reached $100 an ounce last May and eventually reached $126.

Rail Parties Talking

MONTREAL (CP) — Both sides in the current rail dispute meet the federal mediator today to react to a proposal from him that he said Monday "certainly merits their attention."

If separate sessions go well, the mediator could call a joint meeting of the parties later in the day.

CP EARNINGS UP 72% TO $66.8M

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific Ltd. reports net earnings of $66.8 million or 91 cents a share for the first six months of 1973, compared with $38.8 million or 51 cents for the corresponding period a year earlier — a 72-per-cent increase.

The company's trucking operations suffered a slight decline while revenue from shipping slipped $2.2 million, the company said in a statement.

Net railway earnings rose to $30.5 million from $22.9 million.

Bank Rate A Record In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board Monday raised its discount rate to a record 7.5 per cent, a move the central bank said was designed to bring the rate into alignment with other short-term rates.

Even with the hike, the rate lags far behind most other money market interest rates.

And, Canadian bank lending rates will likely rise again within the next 60 days, says McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. Ltd., a Toronto investment firm.

In its latest money market letter, the firm says that despite the rise of one-half of one per cent in the Canadian prime rate to 8¼ per cent last week, the outlook for interest rates "remains pessimistic over the near term."

Leaders of both federal opposition parties reacted with outrage today at the "disappointingly thin" action taken by the federal government to curb the food-cost spiral and demanded the immediate recall of Parliament.

Premier Barrett said today the provincial government plans some course of action to combat the rising costs of food in light of Ottawa's "disappointing" response.

But Barrett would not be specific in saying what the government plans to do or how long it will be before the plans are revealed.

He criticized the federal government, saying it is "pointless" to restrict food export licensing without putting a clamp on exports themselves and that it would have been better to put money directly into the hands of pensioners "now, when they need it most."

His caucus will meet next Monday to discuss whether to continue support of the minority government.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said the moves amount to "trying to fix broken legs with a Band-Aid without first setting the legs."

A general 90-day prices and incomes freeze is needed, he said.

Lewis said he is pleased by the export controls and by the increase in old-age pensions promised by a more frequent cost of living adjustment.

Both, he said, were ideas put forward by the NDP.

But the prime minister "should have had the courage" to recall Parliament to deal with food costs. The recall demand was echoed by Stanfield.

"People want someone with strength at the helm to bring them through this psychological inflation," he said.

"I think he's quite comfortable in his parliamentary pew."

The government plan was merely "a Sermon on the Mount" and "of no substance," he concluded.

Thomas G. Bolton, president of Dominion Stores Ltd., said that during the last three weeks Dominion Stores has been advised of product cost advances by about 150 suppliers.

He also said net earnings for the company in the quarter ended June 16 increased to $2,847,000 or 34 cents a share from $1,480,000 and 18 cents in the first quarter a year ago.

Spokesmen for farm producers are not optimistic that the restrictions can ease the burden of rising prices for Canadian consumers.

Charles Munro, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said the measures fail to consider the effects of continuing railway strikes and heavy speculating in unregulated food commodity markets.

"The best way to cure the problem is to keep producers profitably producing," he said.

George Morris, president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said the cabinet's export restrictions follow a recommendation made by cattlemen last week—one the as-

BEEF, PORK EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Monday imposed export controls on beef and pork and increased payments for those on fixed incomes.

But it rejected price controls, arguing that they could hurt production.

The cabinet met for six hours Monday, discussing inflated food prices and other matters and drafted a statement which proposes:

- Export controls on beef and pork, effective today. The controls will control export of prime table meats to any country, but will allow the export of poorer grades.

Alastair Gillespie, minister of industry, trade and commerce, said, however, that export licences will be granted to permit exports to traditional customers because the program is intended only to protect the Canadian market from being raided to make up for meat shortages in the United States.

- A toughened food prices review board to search out and make public examples of unwarranted price increases.

- Old-age security and guaranteed income payments be increased five per cent, effective Oct. 1. The increase comes with a proposal for a cost of living adjustment every three months.
- A federal-provincial conference this fall to develop food policies.

The basic old-age security payment will be increased to $105.30 a month from $100 effective Oct. 1, under a proposal to make cost-of-living adjustments to old-age and guaranteed income supplement payments every three months instead of annually.

The old-age payments to couples also will be increased about five per cent, to $341.80. The monthly payments for the guaranteed income supplement will increase five per cent to $179.16.

Parliament must approve the plan and it is not scheduled to meet until Oct. 15, but payments would be retroactive.

Job Growth Rate Slows

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's steady growth in jobs slowed in July for the first time this year, Statistics Canada reported today.

The nation's unemployment also dropped last month, resuming this year's steady decline that was interrupted by a one-month drift upward in June.

The jobless rate dropped to 5.2 per cent in July from 5.3 per cent in June on a seasonally adjusted basis that accounts for expected fluctuations in the economy.

In British Columbia, the actual jobless rate declined from 6.1 to 5.9 per cent with the total out of work falling 2,000 to 59,000.

The total of Canadians at work rose 119,000 last month to 9,229,000, but since it usually rises more than that in July government statisticians figured it as a seasonally adjusted drop of about 90,000.

Without seasonal adjustment, the actual unemployment rate dropped to 4.8 per cent in July from 5.2 per cent in June.

On both bases, unemployment was considerably below last year's consistent figures of more than six per cent of the work force.

The total unemployed fell 3,000 to 941,000.

The 90,000 seasonally-adjusted drop in total employment in July was sharply up from June's barely noticeable decline of 14,000.

The slackening growth in jobs came after government action raising interest rates and cutting federal spending in an effort to slow the nation's sharp rise in living costs.

Whether Prime Minister Trudeau's latest anti-inflation move, curbing exports of cattle and hogs, will have any effect on employment won't become evident until later in the year.

Government policies to slow the economy are a traditional method of curbing inflation, but generally raise the problem of increasing unemployment as an unwanted result.

"On a seasonally adjusted basis, the employment level decreased in all regions," Statistics Canada said.

"The most substantial change was in Ontario, down 60,000, following an increase of about the same magnitude last month. The level in the Prairie region and Quebec also showed large decreases while the level in the Atlantic region and British Columbia declined slightly," the report added.

"The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate decreased in the Atlantic region, Quebec and British Columbia while it increased in the Prairie region," it said.

"The largest decline in the

REBELS TAKE OVER DETROIT PLANT

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s Mack Avenue stamping plant was shut down today after a fired worker allegedly attacked two security men with a pipe and about 300 workers seized control of the plant.

The workers said they would not leave the plant until a list of 11 demands were met.

Among the demands were that all workers fired in any disturbance be rehired and there be no disciplinary action against any workers taking part in the disturbance.

Several radical groups not affiliated with the workers were passing out socialist literature outside the plant early today.

It was the second "plant hijacking" by angry workers in three weeks. Two workers earlier occupied a power cage at Chrysler's Jefferson Avenue assembly plant, turned off the power to a feeder line and forced the company to fire a supervisor.

Water to Point Only in Crisis

The B.C. government will supply water to the U.S. community of Point Roberts only if there is a fire emergency or if there is danger of drinking supplies running short, Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said today.

Hall was commenting on a request from Washington Governor Dan Evans, who said in a letter to Premier Barrett that the situation at the tiny community is "extremely critical."

The provincial secretary said B.C. wants to make sure that any provision of water supplies to Point Roberts does not jeopardize the workings of the International Joint Commission, which he said is studying the long-range problems of the 3,100-acre community, bordered on three sides by water and on the fourth by Canada. About 350 Americans and 850 Canadians live in the area.

Hall accused the community of "indiscriminate planning" and said it should not be the responsibility of the provincial government to look after support services for a community which is intended by some to grow to 15,000 people.

As for the Point Roberts' request that water be supplied by the municipality of Delta, Hall said: "There's no damn water in Delta and it's just not enough to ask our people to go without while other areas adjacent to it just go on with indiscriminate planning and these kind of fantastic development programs . . ."

A Vancouver-based development company — Pacific and Western Equities, Inc. — is attempting to amass land and get approval for a $200 million development that would cover more than 1,800 acres, roughly half of the Point Roberts land area.

The development would include a resort hotel, marina, golf course, horse stables, hiking trails, and housing for 15,000.

Harry Sames, chairman of the Point Roberts Water Board, said this would increase the water needs drastically. One solution, he said, would be to pipe water across Boundary Bay from the Blaine reservoir. The cost of such a pipeline, however, was estimated a year ago at upwards of $4 million, far beyond the money-raising capabilities of Point Roberts. If Pacific and Western footed most of the bill, it could be practical.

Apart from a fair bit of general opposition from Point Roberts residents — Canadian and American — who want to preserve a rural atmosphere, the main stumbling block facing the developers is 71-year-old Reno R. Reno, who owns a key 190 acres wanted for the proposed development.

Reno said Pacific and Western has offered him about $866,000 for the land, which would not include his waterfront home. He wants $5 million.

"I like to think my mother didn't raise any foolish children," he said.

"Critical Emergency Water Shortage," said one sign. "Canadians Go Home," read another.

By MURREY MARDER
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new set of bleak, indo-China realities will confront administration strategists after midnight tonight, Washington time.

After that hour, by act of Congress there is an absolute cutoff on the use of U.S. funds, old money or new, "to finance directly or indirectly combat activities by United States military forces in or over or from off the shore of North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Laos or Cambodia."

The law "is unmistakeably clear," administration officials agree, and "it will be complied with," they pledge. There will be no circuitous semantics, such as the euphemistic formula of "protective reaction" devised in the past, to justify military attacks as "defensive" responses to threats of enemy action, Congress has been told by Adm. Thomas Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

And yet, no American official experienced in Indo-China is rash enough to guarantee that the last American shot in the Indo-China war will be only an echo of history by Wednesday morning.

For the United States by no means will be at the end of its tortuous road in Indo-China. After Wednesday the United States still will be massively involved in Indo-China with money, if not with troops or aircraft. Nearly $3-billion in continuing U.S. military and economic aid for the non-Communist regimes in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia is presently being sought by the administration from Congress for this 1974 fiscal year. To the Communist side, this is hostile support for its adversaries.

One immediate question, therefore, is whether Communist forces will respond in kind to the American ban on U.S. combat activities throughout Indo-China, where many thousands of American personnel will be present after Wednesday. Administration officials now can do little more than hope for Communist forbearance.

The larger American strategic dilemma in Indo-China is what will happen now to more than a decade's investment of blood, money and resulting national turmoil inside the United States, which spawned much of the Watergate virus in the nation's life, now that "the stick is gone" in Indo-China — the stick of American military power.

In his angry letter of Aug. 2 to the Democratic leadership of Congress, President Nixon, charging a rebellious Congress with "abandonment of a friend," pledged that "the end to the bombing in Cambodia does not signal an abdication of America's determination to work for a lasting peace in Indo-China. We will continue to provide all possible support permitted under the law."

The president stopped far short, however, of describing the total dimensions of the challenge that now faces his entire Indo-China strategy. Cambodia is not merely the last missing piece to be fitted into the Indo-China mosaic to produce a satisfactory result. Instead, it is the most glaring example of the incompleteness of the entire structure of "peace" in Indo-China.

By its grossly exaggerated claim that the Jan. 27 cease-fire in Vietnam represented "the end of the war" in Indo-China, the Nixon administration unwittingly encouraged its critics in Congress to treat its hyperbole as reality. The administration's hope was that the resulting withdrawal from Vietnam and the return of American prisoners of war would buy enough time from Congress to complete the U.S. military disengagement from all Indo-China without blatant exposure of the ambiguities of the Jan. 27 accord.

If all the Indo-Chinese participants in the war had gone along temporarily with the ambiguities in the Jan. 27 accord, the strategy might have succeeded, at least long enough for the United States to look upon Indo-China as an aching memory. But the time ran out before even the facade of the structure could be finished.

In South Vietnam the scramble began immediately on each warring side to seal off the other from the territory it occupied, or could grab. The South Vietnamese government of President Nguyen Van Thieu grabbed back the most, and dug in for prolonged struggle, assured of continuing U.S. military and economic aid.

There was only the most remote chance, at best, that the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong on one side, and Thieu's forces on the other, would seriously begin the process of "national reconciliation" they pledged in the Jan. 27 cease-fire accord. Presidential security adviser Henry Kissinger's public admonition published in January, 1969, when he wrote with candor before he entered the White House, projected the almost-insurmountable barrier: "It is beyond imagination that parties that have been murdering and betraying each other for 25 years could work together as a team giving joint instructions to the entire country."

South Vietnam, in consequence, has not been reconciled, it has been partitioned.

Communist forces are now literally colonizing the more sparsely populated sectors of South Vietnam which they control, while the Saigon government has reinforced its authority in the territory it dominates. The fighting has dropped to guerrilla-level, while each side recuperates from all-out warfare and replenishes its strength.

In Laos the pattern is somewhat more encouraging. The Laotians are no warrior race, nor even a race of normally hostile peoples. They have a tradition of accommodation, if let alone.

The cease-fire in Laos, proclaimed in February as an outgrowth of private talks between Kissinger and North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho during negotiations on the basic Vietnam cease-fire, set the stage for a division of political power in Laos on a 50-50 basis, in a coalition government. This apportionment of power, expected to be soon confirmed formally in the establishment of a coalition government, represents a major augmentation of power for the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, supported by North Vietnam.

Laos will be divided into two zones, with the Pathet Lao controlling the entire eastern portion of the nation, the sector most vital to North Vietnam, encompassing the Ho Chi Minh Trail network running down into South Vietnam and Cambodia.

Communist forces, either of North Vietnam or its allies in each sector, control the entire spine of the Indo-China peninsula, as a result of the cease-fire agreements in South Vietnam and Laos.

Cambodia is a totally open flank on South Vietnam, lacking even the paper-thin barrier of a cease-fire agreement.

The forces of North Vietnam, astride the backbone of Indo-China, are in geographic position to strike anywhere in the area.

No matter what happens in the continuing struggle for control of Cambodia, a war in which the insurgents are indigenous Khmer Rouge, fighting with North Vietnamese military advice and logistic support, it appears totally improbable that there can be any settlement that will deprive North Vietnam of access to eastern Cambodia, site of the "sanctuary" bases adjoining South Vietnam.

Even if the North Vietnamese are obliged to remove their troops from eastern Laos and eastern Cambodia — which is what the Jan. 27 Vietnam cease-fire agreement calls for — North Vietnam seems assured of friendly allies to allow it later rentry to the military critical sectors adjacent to South Vietnam.

rate occurred in Quebec down four-tenths of one per cent following a substantial increase of eight-tenths the previous month," Statistics Canada said.

"The rate remained about the same in Ontario up one-tenth of one per cent," the report said.

Students between the ages of 14 and 24 benefited most from the increased employment, according to Statistics Canada.

In July, 1972, 9.4 per cent of students between the ages of 14 and 24 looking for work were unemployed. In July 1973, 5.8 per cent of the students were out of work although the number looking for jobs remained as high at 45.8 per cent.

For those students between 14 and 19 the situation was vastly improved this summer. In July 1972, 10 per cent of them were jobless while in July 1973, 5.3 per cent were unemployed.

Agnew to Comply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice-President Spiro Agnew's attorneys arranged a meeting with federal prosecutors today and a spokesman for Agnew suggested the vice-president may turn over his personal records and financial data voluntarily.

Gunning Quitting Politics To Allow Time for Travel

Saanich Ald. Edith Gunning has given notice of retirement from municipal office.

The veteran of nearly eight years on council will not seek the mayor's mantle in November and will not be an aldermanic candidate for a further two-year term.

Just returned from an extended tour of Europe, Mrs. Gunning said she and her husband plan more travel.

"We always planned that we would do some travelling and we'd better do it now before we have to use a cane.

"There are many things we want to do and I couldn't give my wholehearted effort to being mayor," she said.

Being alderman has been a full-time job and she would consider the mayoralty the same way, Mrs. Gunning added.

Ald. Frank Waring is the only announced candidate for mayor, but two other members of council are interested.

Ald. William Campbell said he would reserve a decision until he is sure of Mayor Hugh Curtis' position, while Ald. Alan Newberry is away from the city and could not be reached for comment.

Mayor Curtis said last winter he would not seek another term as mayor, but qualified this by saying he would have an announcement to make about his political future. This was expected before week's end.

One outsider, former candidate Bud Mesher, also has expressed some interest in the mayoralty race and wants time to think about it.

The cattlemen are opposed to restrictions by government, but "if they had to commit that sin at all, the government should at least step lightly," he said.

"They should leave the whole market alone," he added.

Any benefits gained now by export restrictions will be lost unless some move is made to restrict export of feeder cattle — the cattle feedlots buy to fatten for slaughter, he said.

"Those people down in Ottawa better get some cowboys down to talk to them," said Morris.

"This is no business for lawyers."

However, A. J. Child president of Burns Food said beef prices will stabilize or even drop due to the export controls.

"I don't think prices will return to what they were two or three weeks ago," he added.

The export restrictions apply to live cattle and hogs and fresh, chilled and frozen beef and pork.

They are expected to be lifted when the price freeze on beef is removed next month in the United States.

The decision to restrict export of pork surprised him since pork is traditionally shipped to the U.S. on a regular basis, Child said.

"The same thing has been happening with pork prices as with beef prices but actually we have a pork surplus now."

E. A. Chisholm, president of Western Stock Growers Association predicted an 8 to 10 cent drop in cattle prices and estimated that prices to the consumer could fall 15 to 18 cents a pound.

"I don't like this sort of interference from the government, but I can understand that Trudeau is in a bit of a corner," he said.

Dobson Lea, president of Unifarm, said the controls will further disadvantage western producers who export more livestock to the U.S. than do their eastern counterparts.

Restricted exports could jeopardize continuing trade and tariff negotiations with the U.S. at a time when western producers were hoping for an opening of the international market, not a tightening of it, he said.

The controls were labelled ineffective for the consumer and downright harmful to the producer by British Columbia Cattlemen's association president Henry Blajowski.

"I believe the prices have already stabilized. They were going to start to go down soon no matter what the government did," he said.

The controls might ruin the producers' relations with United States buyers if contracts are cancelled in the export restrictions, he added.

In Winnipeg, no cattle were traded at Union Stockyards this morning because of uncertainty about the export controls and in Edmonton trading was suspended at the public livestock yards today, pending clarification of the market following the restrictions.

Trading was also suspended in Saskatchewan's two stockyards; on the Toronto and Calgary markets, which remained open, prices slumped sharply and no slaughter cattle were offered for sale.

Hog prices in Edmonton and Calgary dropped about $5 a hundredweight on the Alberta Hog Producers Marketing Board, which remained open.

... BOMBING

The U.S. will keep its air armada stationed in Thailand after the bombing ends. Pentagon sources said the idea is to keep the Cambodian insurgents worried the U.S. air force might take after them again.

U.S. air force cargo planes will continue to fly military aid into Cambodia and reconnaissance aircraft still will fly over the country to photograph battlefields and supply lines. They may be fired at or even shot down, but Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said Monday the planes will be unarmed and unable to retaliate.

However, Friedheim left open the possibility that if any planes are shot down the Pentagon might ask Congress to change the law which bans "combat activities" so as to allow the air force to fly retaliatory strikes.

Meanwhile, a rebel soldier who defected to the Cambodian government side said today six months of intense U.S. bombing in Cambodia has inflicted little damage on Communist troops.

The defector, Hean Chit, 29, rallied to the government side July 23. The Cambodian high command presented him today at a news conference.

Chit said that while he was in command of more than 6,000 Communist insurgents, he took his orders directly from North Vietnamese advisers.

Asked about the effectiveness of American bombing, he said that out of 10 U.S. air strikes, bombs killed only three or four of his men.

He said he received training in Hanoi on how to avoid the U.S. bombs and seek protection should the strikes hit his positions.

after. Statutory holidays are no picnic for us."

Thornber said the ferry union agrees with the government that the work year should be 243.5 working days, or 1,948 hours, but say that this should include the statutory holidays.

The government says not, he said, "because they recognize 250 working days for the rest of the civil service."

Thornber also said there are other major areas of disagreement, including the general wage increase and a wage adjustment for stockmen and ticket agents.

He said the ferry union is perpared to recognize parity between B.C. Ferries and an "acceptable coast shipping average."

The B.C. Ferries offer, which has been rejected by unlicensed employees, also included a 12.5 per cent wage differential on vessels where a 12-hour shift is worked, up from nine per cent; overtime to be taken in either premium rate wages or premium rate time off; increase in "dirty money" for some employees; additional workers to be provided where necessary to ensure meal breaks may be taken on a regular basis; overtime to be paid in half-hour increments instead of 15 minutes; and specialized benefits for specific trade groups.

Strachan, who has declined public comment since negotiations collapsed last Friday, said just over a week ago that B.C. Ferries management "has gone about as far as it can go in meeting immediate job problems and wage requests of ferry workers."

The threatened strike, if it occurs, could strand on the mainland many delegates to the annual convention of the Agriculture Institute of Canada.

About 1,200 were expected to arrive in Victoria this weekend for the convention running from Sunday to Thursday. Many families will be travelling in recreational vehicles and a ferry strike would "wreak havoc," convention chairman Wayne Wickens said Monday.

NIXON READIES DEFENCE

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon will proclaim his innocence of any wrongdoing in the Watergate affair in a report to the nation Wednesday or Thursday, White House aides said today.

The only concession Nixon will make, they said, is that in "hindsight" he should have paid more heed to the warning signals he received about the cover-up months ago and kept a closer eye on White House officials acting in his name.

Meanwhile, former presidential aide John Ehrlichman believes the thousands of letters he has received show a public backlash rising against the Senate Watergate hearings.

"The letters are terribly critical, not only of individuals on the committee but committee conduct on the whole," he said.

Snags Hit Doria Salvage

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (UPI) — More problems have beset an underwater expedition which hoped to salvage riches from the sunken liner Andrea Doria and its success appears in jeopardy.

The venture already is almost two weeks behind schedule, with much of the difficulty resulting from mechanical problems and weather.

Some $250,000 reportedly has been spent so far on the expedition.

Two former navy aquanauts were forced Monday to delay their attempt to penetrate the purser's office of the ship, which rests 250 feet below the surface of the Atlantic Ocean, because a cable became entangled and broke.

Repairing the one-and-a-half-inch steel cord will interrupt salvage operations for an undetermined amount of time, according to crewmen on the support ship Narragansett.

ON LEAVE

One support diver, David Lejeun of Philadelphia, said the salvage expedition probably will be discontinued by Thursday whether or not valuables can be recovered by them.

Many participants are on leave from the navy and have to return later this week, he said.

In an effort to speed up the expedition, a third diver, Robert Hollis of Hayward, Calif., joined the team of Donald Rodocker and Christopher Delucchi, both of San Diego, at the ocean bottom Monday, where they are living in an underwater habitat.

The trio are trying to recover some $1.1 million in cash and almost as much in jewelery, art objects and other valuables — most of which are believed still in the purser's office.

The Andrea Doria sunk July 26, 1956, after it collided with the Swedish vessel Stockholm. All previous attempts to salvage valuables from the wreck have failed.

CHOPPY SEAS

Lejeun noted that the weather is expected to turn seas choppy in future weeks, and make salvage work increasingly difficult.

Bob Coffey, another diver aboard the Narragansett, said Rodocker and Delucchi were in the process of cutting into the purser's office Monday when a cord attached to a torch they were using to cut away two steel doors was moved by ocean currents and wrapped around an artificial forward funnel on the vessel.

"It will only take about a half hour to repair once we get it up," Coffey said.

"But the job is clearing it and bringing it up. It's still tangled."

Coffey said morale was "still super," despite the fact that "we've had so many problems, we're getting used to it."

STRIKE CLOSES FIRM

NANAIMO — Hooker Chemicals Limited closed Monday after the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, Local 8, went on strike.

Fifteen union members voted unanimously Friday to reject the company's offer of a 52-cent-an-hour wage increase for machine workers and 39 cents for utility workers.

They want parity with workers at the company's North Vancouver plant, where the employees are members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union.

In Nanaimo, machine operators are paid $5.11 an hour, 55 cents less than North Vancouver, and utility workers are paid $4.30 an hour, 45 cents less than North Vancouver.

Dean 'Stalled Vesco Probe'

Times News Service

NEW YORK — The Securities and Exchange Commission was about to accuse financier Robert Vesco, a secret contributor to President Nixon's re-election campaign, of illegal business dealings last year when the agency was asked to delay its probe by John Dean, federal prosecutors said Monday.

Dean is not under indictment in the case.

The government said he did what he was told to do by former attorney-general John Mitchell, and is listed only as a "co-conspirator" to defendants Mitchell and former commerce secretary Maurice Stans.

The two are charged with perjury, conspiracy and obstructing justice in the matter. Their trial is set to begin Sept. 11.

A document filed by U.S. attorneys Monday — a "bill of particulars" — says Vesco, who has also been charged but has fled the country, secretly gave $200,000 to re-election campaign officials in April of 1972 in exchange for efforts by Mitchell and Stans to get the SEC to leave him alone.

The government also says the $200,000 may have been used to pay convicted Watergate burglar G. Gordon Liddy and other Watergate characters, implying the money could have been used to finance the break-in into the Democratic headquarters and its aftermath.

Meanwhile, settlement of an anti-trust action against ITT, illegal campaign contributions by corporations, extortion by federal officials, conspiracy and obstruction of justice will be investigated by a second Watergate grand jury that was empaneled here Monday.

Chief Judge John J. Sirica told the 14 women and 9 men who will consider evidence of official corruption in the next 18 months that, the "prosecution of infamous crimes" and the protection of individuals from facing trial on "charges not well-founded" is up to them.

Before they were sworn in, Sirica told the jurors the investigation "may last — there is no way of knowing — as long as 18 months."

'Pensions' Urged For B.C. Farmers

The British Columbia Federation of Agriculture has recommended that the provincial government create a pension plan for farmers, including an interim plan to compensate farmers selling land devalued by the Land Commission Act.

In a brief presented Monday to Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich, the 9,000-member federation said farmers taking a loss on agricultural land because of the act should be repaid by the government through a system of annual payments.

The loss would be determined by the difference between the selling price of the land and its value on Jan. 1, 1972, Valuation Day for capital gains tax purposes, plus an inflation factor.

The act requires that farm land be preserved for agricultural purposes, unless a change is approved by the cabinet or the B.C. Land Commission.

When it was passed at the spring session of the legislature, protesting farmers argued they had endured years of hard work on low incomes in anticipation of living in retirement on the proceeds of their land, often worth more for non-agricultural purposes.

Calling for a "transitory" pension plan to compensate such farmers, the federation brief said:

"Any difference between the established sale price and the up-dated Jan. 1, 1972 value would be regarded as a fully-funded pension, to be drawn out as an annuity style pension on terms and conditions agreed to by the individual, but within a framework established by the government."

The federation said this should apply regardless of who the land was sold to, although the farmer should be required to first offer it for sale to the land commission.

As for a permanent pension plan, the federation called for a voluntary plan with as much flexibility as possible, adding that farmers view the concept "with some uneasiness" because of what they may be required to give up in exchange for it.

"We would be the first to reject any plan which placed an unecumbrance of any type on our property in exchange for a pension plan," the federation said.

Federation manager Richard Stocks said the recommendation was drafted in response to a request from Premier Barrett, who asked in meetings during the Land Act controversy whether a pension plan was desired by farmers.

More research is needed to determine whether the majority of farmers favor a pension plan, Stocks said, adding it will likely be debated at length at federation convention in November.

He described the current recommendation as a general suggestion for the government to consider.

The federation also called for a provincially-administered income stabilization program, terming the Federal Agriculture Stabilization Act "completely inadequate to cope with the problem, especially in relation to B.C. costs."

The government should establish a "negotiating mechanism" as a vehicle for setting prices based on the costs of agricultural production which would be used at the option of a commodity group.

"Producers would contribute a percentage of their income when prices surpassed the negotiated minimums and the government would match those contributions," the brief said.

BOY STABBED BY STRANGER

PORT ALBERNI — An eight-year-old Ontario boy was stabbed in the back with a butcher knife in the lobby of the Beaufort Hotel Monday afternoon by a man he had never seen beffore.

RCMP had a Port Alberni man in custody Monday night but said today no charges have been laid.

The boy was visiting relatives with his family and was treated and released from the West Coast General Hospital. The stab wound was not serious.

Police said a man picked up the knife in the kitchen of the hotel then ran into the lobby where the boy was sitting. The man dragged the boy off the chair and stabbed him in the back.

Police would not release the boy's name.

If You Can't Fight It, Join It

There are two basic means by which the impact of inflation can be countered. One is to correct the causes or at least the results of inflation and so ease its effects, particularly on people of modest or low incomes. The other is to accept inflation as part of the environment and try to keep up with it by subsidies to its victims. The federal government has in general taken the second route. By means of additions to the national pension plans and extra welfare payments to cope with the depreciating dollar, it will try to ease the weight of inflation and make it easier to live with.

The federal government has several other ameliorative items in its program, but the general philosphy appears to be that inflation cannot be combated on the national level with any degree of success — Finance Minister Turner holds that the attack must be international — and so the next best thing is to try to keep pace with it, at least in part. This, of course, is inflationary in itself; it is akin to building higher and higher bulwarks on a boat, the weight of which makes the hull sink lower and lower in the water.

It is a political solution, rather than a financial or economic one, but in the absence of any acceptable and proven cure for inflation, what is a government to do? No other party in Canada has come up with a successful-sounding solution; no other government in any western country has crowned its anti-inflationary efforts, if any, with success.

The difficulty of finding a solution lies in the fact that there are scores of causes of inflation, from the dog-and-tail-chasing of wages and prices to the current trend in extra profit-taking, the soaring expenditures of governments, the modern demand of consumers to have more and better material satisfactions, the understandable determination of Worker A to be paid as much as Worker B even though the value of his production — his contribution to the whole economy — may be much less, the current psychology of buy-now-pay-later, the general intra-action of a world economy that is changing, reaching out, speeding up and becoming more complex each year.

Wage and price controls have been rejected by the Trudeau government. They are an obvious first thought, since they are the interface with which producers and consumers are most familiar. But, except in the emergency of wartime, when patriotism and an expected short term of application make such controls acceptable to the public, they have not proved more than a temporary palliative. The cure must lie deeper than surface treatment: we have not yet found the economic cobalt pellet which seeks out and destroys the hidden cancer.

The present federal plan is neither bandage nor cure: the puffing citizen is merely told that, while the government cannot prevent his having to run to keep up with costs, it will give him an extra ration of oxygen to help him continue. He may not be grateful, but he's still breathing.

A Drop for the U.S. Bucket

In an age of emotional nationalism it is understandable that Delta municipal officials passed the buck to the provincial government when the drought stricken U.S. community of Point Roberts asked for Canadian water to alleviate their shortage. Since the six-square-mile American peninsula can only be reached from the U.S. by boat or over three Canadian highways, it was natural for the community to look to Canada to help out in a crisis.

But by the time Washington Governor Dan Evans made a direct appeal to Premier Barrett Friday the Point Roberts water board had already acted and was having water trucked in from Blaine, Washington, 23 miles distant.

That might have been the end of the problem. But Point Roberts water commissioners passed resolutions last week asking Blaine to cut off water to the B.C. municipality of Surrey, including a border park area containing the Peace Arch, a symbol of U.S.-Canadian friendship. They also threatened to cut off water to Canadian residents on Point Roberts.

In view of the proposed retaliation most Canadians and Americans will hope that Ottawa and Washington will handle future international differences rather than the water commissioners in either country. From the Canadian point of view, selling water, any water, to the U.S. is fraught with long-range implications. If we export a little water to Point Roberts now, why couldn't we send a lot more to Spokane later? The precedent would have been established. Nor is it any secret that Canada's unpolluted water resources have long been the envy of the U.S. A gallon or two now might mean a river or a lake later.

That does not mean, however, that we should be so churlish as to refuse a neighbor in need. The Barrett government is considering emergency water supplies for the community which would be a better solution than round-the-clock water deliveries from Blaine. But the provincial government should get an air-tight understanding that "temporary" won't become "permanent."

Learn the Rules for Grants

In turning down financing for two arts projects last week Saanich council risked being tarred with the philistine label. But Mayor Hugh Curtis' disappointment with grant requests that dribble in during the year is understandable.

Municipal budgets are allocated in the Spring and that is the time when organizations should deliver their pleas. Supplicants, such as Open Space, who turn up in the summer with unaudited statements can count on short shrift from cost-conscious politicans. Nor will the casual approach help their causes. Municipal council will be better disposed towards a local group that knows the time, place and manner in which to present its proposals. Many grant applications —including rock festivals—may be deserving calls on the taxpayers' money but councils should not be blamed for turning down sloppy presentations.

CHARLES BARTLETT

A Teacher at the Top

WASHINGTON — Responsible sources report that Henry Kissinger will climb later this month to a plateau of foreign policy power John Foster Dulles never attained.

Kissinger is in line to become Secretary of State without relinquishing his present role as Mr. Nixon's adviser on foreign policy. He will thus preside over the department's machinery while he keeps his proximity to the President's ear. His hammerlock on foreign policy will be tighter than ever.

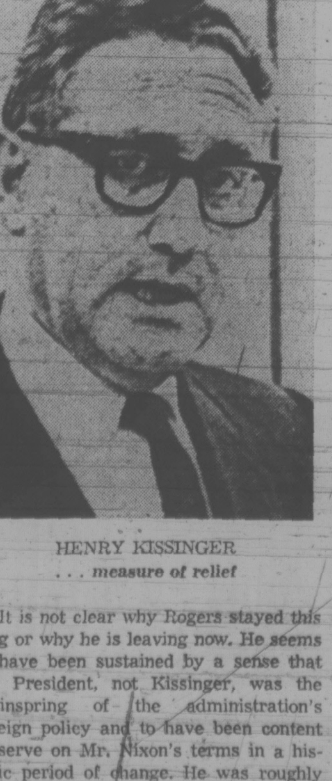
This is close to the role John Foster Dulles had in mind for himself when Dwight Eisenhower was inaugurated. He wanted to stay near the President in the White House and run his department by remote control. But this arrangement was judged impractical, so Dulles made way for a series of able national security advisers: Robert Cutler, Gordon Gray and William Jackson.

Burden for Deputies

Kissinger has no administrative skill to assist his prospects of presiding successfully over the intricate machinery of the National Security Council while he represents the 25,000 employees of the State Department. He has no zeal for administration, so the aplomb with which he wears two hats will depend on the quality of his deputies. His NSC operation was organizationally chaotic until Gen. Alexander Haig put it in order.

He will bring an initial boost in morale to the State Department where he will have a chance to soften the chagrin of the career service over its exclusion from the councils where policy is made. Kissinger is not, however, noted for exuding magnanimity and trust toward subordinates, so the exhilaration of the desk officers may be short-lived.

But he will bring a measure of relief to the experts and specialists in the department who have been frustrated by Secretary William Rogers's lack of interest in the conceptual side of foreign policy.



HENRY KISSINGER
. . . measure of relief

It is not clear why Rogers stayed this long or why he is leaving now. He seems to have been sustained by a sense that the President, not Kissinger, was the mainspring of the administration's foreign policy and to have been content to serve on Mr. Nixon's terms in a historic period of change. He was roughly treated by Kissinger and he suffered the treatment out of regard for Mr. Nixon.

But the passive aspect of Rogers's posture was demoralizing to the department and while he obviously enjoyed some facets of his role, it was not for him, as it had been for Dean Rusk, an encompassing way of life. It always seemed likely he would leave before the end of eight years and he may have decided the moment was ripe after he rejected the President's request last May that he join the White House staff to manage the Watergate defence.

Dual Roles

Kissinger works well with the new Secretary of Defence, James Schlesinger, and while there will be contradiction in his dual roles of policy maker and policy co-ordinator, he will probably continue to be skillful at the co-ordinating role. He can shrink the NSC staff, swollen to over 100 persons, and rely more heavily on NSC meetings at which all views can be heard.

The Kissinger emergence will greatly please the Congressional committees which have long desired closer dealings with the man at the heart of the foreign policy process. Kissinger has propitiated this mood with irregular, background sessions but he will be obliged, as Secretary, to respond to formal calls from the Hill while he jealously guards, as a presidential adviser, the confidentiality of that relationship.

The great gain for Congress and the nation may be the chance to hear more clearly Kissinger's brilliance in expounding the aims and background of foreign policy. The country needs help in puzzling out its role in the world and it would be hard to find a more compelling teacher.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

What Is It?

Jack Scott has done it again. (That Military Budget — Why Not in Sewage — August 3, 1973.)

Mr. Scott confuses me. What is he advocating? Taking his points in the order stated, is it:

1. More doctors in training in B.C.? 2. Officers to wear uniform in Ottawa at all times? (Really, Jack, I'm surprised at your being hooked by that chestnut). 3. Soldiers throwing live grenades at each other? 4. A yacht mooring? 5. Super-sewage for all of Canada? 6. Scholarships for boys and girls from underdeveloped countries? (Whew, quite a list for one column). 7. Or, referring to a previous column, is it a park Mr. Scott wants? If so, he could take the parks committee to task for failing to recommend the acquisition of two quarter-section parcels in East Sooke offered by the province to the regional district. 8. Or is it, specifically, Royal Roads Mr. Scott wants for a park? Surely it is well known that the grounds of Royal Roads are open to the public (and maintained at no cost to local governments).

Come out in the open, Jack, and tell us what you are after. Then I'll know whether to support you or challenge you. —K. R. Crombie, Ex-Royal Roads, 250 Oswego.

Ownership

Seldom have I felt such shame and bitterness, as a Canadian, to read the article by James Eayrs, "A test case on land", and also the reported campaign by two of our chartered banks in New York to the effect that they were there to "sell Canada."

Here in B.C. although we have stopped the sale of Crown Land to foreigners no prohibition is placed on Canadians selling prime water and lake frontage to foreigners.

Of course my feeling is that water-frontage should not be bartered even to Canadians as I feel that access to our sea and lake frontage should be the right of all. Surely this is our birthright and is not for cheap barter for the "quick buck".

Eire or Southern Ireland had this same problem with Germans buying up large tracts of water-frontage but that government had the guts to pass legislation prohibiting such sales. However apparently neither our federal nor any of our provincial governments have the nerve to pass such legislation, for fear they might step on the toes of the FEW who are making the "quick buck" out of such sales, with a lasting detriment to the generations who will follow us in this very beautiful and blessed land.

Of course the trouble is the apathy of the average Canadian who cares little about the future if he has it "good" in his life-time. It is most disappointing and distressing. However those Canadians who do feel like myself should express their views to their MPs and MLAs and perhaps one of these days, if it is not already too late, some action will be taken. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1680 Poplar Ave.

Modest Proposal

Your August 4 publication had two articles that should have been printed in conjunction with one another.

One told the tale of how our shopkeepers are stuffing our money into their pockets blaming everything and everyone but themselves for the rising cost of eating. The other article described how Mohammed Daud of Afghanistan used to teach greedy shopkeepers a lesson by nailing their ears to the wall, and one errant baker was said to have been baked in his own oven!

It is so refreshing to know that somewhere in this exploited world there is at least one spot where greedy men receive such appropriate attention.

How would a grocer's or butcher's prices look if a policeman and an official carpenter complete with hammer and two nails could drop in any day? Then there's the matter of the baker who had visions of qualifying for a warm reception in his own oven. ..

I suggest that a pair of pierced pork purveyors, or a brace of broiled bakers, would do far more for the cost spiral than any of our contemporary governmental edicts.

The "bakers' dozen" came into being because the bakers of that day were terrified of breaking the original consumer protection laws that happened to be rather ferocious. How regrettable it is that the good old days of severe punishment of over-pricing seem to have gone for ever.

By the way, just how does one nail both a man's ears to the same wall? We should know . . . just in case. — John Addicott, 3119 Glasgow St.

Postal Service

Thursday a friend in Victoria mailed me a letter, postmarked at 9:00 p.m. and delivered at 10:00 a.m. Friday. Some critics of the Post Office may sniff, "So what else is new?" I see this as only one example of the excellent service provided by Canada's Post Office Department. Its rules and procedures are simple and practical, its delivery prompt, and its employees courteous, patient and efficient.

'Excellent Service'

As a recent, landed immigrant from San Francisco, I note several Canadian postal rates somewhat lower than similar charges in the United States, e.g.: postage on a one-ounce, air-mail letter for delivery overseas costs 42 cents if mailed in the U.S., but only 15 cents if mailed in Canada; the same letter for delivery in the U.S. or Canada costs 11 cents if mailed in the U.S., but only 10 cents in Canada. You save time and money by not printing a separate series of air mail stamps. You are able to print the principal mailing instructions for Canadian, American, and international delivery on both sides of a 16x24 inch sheet in English and French; similar English-only directions in the U.S. occupy two separate booklets.

Within the city you have only three basic collection times, which are indicated by the type of mailbox or by the stripes theron. Americans at home must scrutinize the printed or written card on each mailbox to learn when collections are scheduled.

While postal problems in a smaller city and less populous (though larger) country are probably simpler, and machine-sorting less widespread here, certainly Canada and Victoria are to be congratulated on their efficient streamlining of postal operations. — C. Crittenden, 503-890 Heywood Ave.

Palatable Portion

In your issue of August 7, unlike Marie Antoinette (who provided a solution to the problems of the day), Premier Barrett exhorted us: "Don't buy meat. That's the only way to do something about it." No doubt he practises what he preaches!

In another part of the same issue, Dr. Joseph Haegert very timely comes up with the logical answer: "A batch of beetles or a slug or slugs or even grubs found in logs can provide that much-needed protein ..." There's more of similar mouth-watering suggestions: "a palatable portion of garter snake," not to mention a delicacy such as pigweed, and tea made from pine, spruce or hemlock needles. But Dr. Haegert fails to mention that besides providing the necessary nutriment the makings are free, thus saving the cost of filet Mignon and the like.

These are exciting times in which we live, are they not? — Cyril J. Lewis, 548 Dallas Rd.

None Better

I wonder if those who advocate a change in our system of government here in Canada, are taking a good hard look at the situation in the U.S.A. right now.

As a result of the Watergate situation, the president could be impeached, and if the allegations against the vice-president are substantiated, the Americans could find themselves without a head of state. I realize they have the machinery to deal with such a situation, but I understand it is quite complicated and leaves much to be desired.

Under our Canadian system we have the good fortune to have a non-elected head of state, who under such circumstances has the powers to act quickly, and in a short space of time we would have an election.

I consider our own system far superior to the American one, and those that want to change it should in my opinion take a second look. Our system is by no means perfect, and may have its equals in this world, but one thing is certain there is no better system anywhere. — Harold Morton.

Better Way

Despite benefits achieved in times past by strikes we should now have a good hard look at industrial strife in relation to the nation as a whole. In other days a struggle between an employer and his men was usually settled reasonably because the company would rather pay up than close up and the union dare not press its demands to the point of putting the owner out of business.

Today, with supply and demand no longer a dominant factor in our economy, there are no such restraints. This is particularly true where a governing body is the employer and what is called free collective bargaining sometimes becomes unrestricted collective blackmail. mail.

The plain truth is that the country can no longer afford massive strikes with their destructive effect on the whole economy and some other means must be found to settle such disputes. People generally are sick and tired of strikes, so for the sake of labor as well as management something must be done before it is too late. — F. L. P. Anderson, 217-1900 Mayfair Drive.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of August 14, 1913

Fearing that trouble might be precipitated if they attempted to land at Nanaimo, two hundred militiamen who were ordered up from Victoria were put ashore at 8:30 this morning at Departure Bay, five miles from the main wharf of the coal city. No strikers were in sight and before nine o'clock the uniformed men bearing arms were marching into Nanaimo. The mob which last night fought and burned at Extension, fifteen miles distant, did not return to Nanaimo and no trouble is looked for in the city this morning. The shooting last night at Extension shows it does not pay to loiter around the striking mob or terrified strikebreakers.

'Growing Our Own Food Is a Christian Duty'

UNITED CHURCH OBSERVER

One thing this country needs is a rush back to victory gardens a la wartime. There are theological, ecological, psychological, nutritional and economic reasons why we should dig up the back yard and plant vegetables, throw out the barbecue and start a compost heap, and maybe even turn the swimming pool into a fish pond to grow carp.

Some will complain right away that this is just not economical. If a lawyer can collect $50 an hour and a doctor more and a crane operator a little less, then most of us ought to be worth two or three dollars an hour or so. So wouldn't it be better to buy our spinach in cans?

It's possible to prove, we suspect, that growing a garden in the back yard will net one about 25c an hour. One of our city friends retired to a suburb some time ago where he gave up golf and religion to become a gardening addict. After several years and hundreds of quarts of DDT, etc., he confessed his first apples had cost him $2.50 apiece. So he sold his place for three times what he paid for it and returned to an apartment, golf and church. Making a lot of money on land speculation is, in our judgment, morally inferior to growing good food and cultivating the soil.

Growing a garden is, according to our old-fashioned theology, a godly activity. We believe it is in keeping with the will of God to replenish the earth, that it's sinful to throw potato peelings and banana skins into the garbage and pile huge garbage dumps in the suburbs.

And it is wicked for this effluent generation to flush those riches derived from the soil into sewage systems to pollute the rivers and lakes and eventually the seas.

Long before the discovery of the theology of ecology, our rural parents were practising what pollution preachers now preach. It has taken some time but among many, in church and out, and especially in the young, a religious conscience has developed on this sort of thing and it is beginning to prick us all.

Take the Pierre Berton family and their huge garden at Kleinberg, Ont. for example. (Well, Mrs. Berton says, "When you come to weed it, it's huge.") Pierre can afford to buy fruit and vegetables to feed his clan, but the Bertons' numerous youngsters and guests like good food, fresh, and Pierre, in addition to being a shrewd businessman, has taught his children to believe he is the second-best chef in the world. So they grow much of their own food. In mid-June of this year they were consuming quantities of lettuce, radish and even lamb's quarters, which other people call a weed. Two of the children have become vegetarians.

Further, a Berton youngster would be taken to the woodshed if caught throwing an egg shell or a used carrot into the garbage. Mrs. B. boasts she has only half a bag a week to be trucked away. Half the Kleinberg community is recycling things and making it difficult for Torontonians looking for places to pile their enormous waste. The Berton compost heap is tenderly nourished and replenished.

We flew low over North Sydney, N.S., recently and stared down appalled at rows of neat little houses and nice backyards and not a cabbage patch in the lot. On another occasion, we walked through the high weeds of Port Simpson, B.C., to the store where they were selling some wilted carrots from Vancouver and we were informed, "Our (native) people aren't gardeners."

That's no kind of talk for Christians. Caring for the soil, preserving natural wealth, growing food for others, are Christian duties; and eating fresh fruit and vegetables is a Christian privilege.

We have to confess that we have been a bit disappointed to learn from seed merchants, however, that there has been no significant increase yet in the sale of packages of vegetable seeds. Our informant told us that bulk sales of seeds had increased substantially, and he amplified by reporting that purchasers of bulk seed are planting truck gardens outside the cities, and city people, instead of digging up the back yard, go out to the country to pick their own fresh vegetables. He says that there is a significant increase in sale of seeds to apartment dwellers. Apparently they grow vegetables and fruit on the balconies. "But that's just hobby stuff," our seed man said.

Outside European cities — we think of Copenhagen and Berlin — there are thousands of rented garden plots. City people ride their bicycles out to spend an evening or a weekend planting, cultivating and harvesting. It's their cottage at the lake, their membership in the golf club, their walk in the park.

It is beginning to develop outside our big cities; and we hope and predict the trend will grow.

We need more backyard gardens

Sports Writers Turn It Into War

By ROLAND HUNTFORD
London Observer

Sport has become the playground of the sociologists. One of them has now advanced the thesis that sports journalists, almost single-handed, are responsible for aggression on the field and violence on the terraces.

Gunter Pilz, a West German sociologist working at the Swiss Federal College of Physical Culture at Magglingen, claims that sports journalists have conferred on sport greater significance than it deserves. And that they create sensation and advance the cause of nationalism with malice aforethought.

"Thus," he writes, "sporting events which ought to promote the friendship and integration of the nations have been converted into extra wars. These war-like sublimations get the upper hand, particularly when former wartime enemies are concerned." He cites as evidence a report in The Times of London on the football match between West Germany and the Soviet Union in the 1966 World Cup.

This report, according to Herr Pilz, resembled an account of an engagement between "heavy battleships." He find distasteful The Times man's writing about "the spirit of Stalingrad."

In general, alleges Herr Pilz, the mass media regard international events as political manifestations of national honor rather than purely sporting occurrences. They serve "as revenge for previous disgrace, since in the last analysis, anything that leads to victory is justified. Existing prejudices and animosities are magnified, transferred to both active sportsmen and spectators and in consequence affect their behaviour . . . Sports reporting only too often transfers political hostility to the playing field."

The sports journalist, says Herr Pilz, is conditioned by the basic monotony of the events he has to cover. Consequently, he has to create sensation, in sheer self-defence.

"As a result," writes Herr Pilz, "sports reports not infrequently resemble cheap Wild West tales or medieval epics."

Allied to this, he claims, is the domination of television on sports today. "Sporting events," he writes, "are managed to suit TV, and stadia are built with the same end in view."

Herr Pilz also suggests that playbacks and slow-motion repeats magnify existing confrontations between, for instance, referees and players, or referees and spectators. He takes as an example the disputed goal in the 1966 World Cup final between Britain and West Germany at Wembley. "Day in and day out, there were attempts to prove with stills, slow motion, etc, that the ball never crossed the line. In consequence, the German newspapers wrote about the betrayal of Wembley, and the effect of this campaign was that emotions of the fans were kept at boiling point, and fanaticism was nurtured."

Herr Pilz sums up: "The mass media have turned their reporting into a manipulation of the emotions. They are the kind of emotions that make fanatics out of players and spectators, turning stadia into battlefields. The more the mass media succeed in emotionally rousing players and spectators the greater the danger of negative, aggressive reactions on the part of both."

Oil Industry Applied 'Grease' for Alaska Pipeline

By WILLIAM V. SHANNON

In 1967 the Atlantic Richfield Company discovered a major oil field on the northern edge of Alaska.

When President-elect Nixon was forming his administration in December, 1968, important oilmen stressed to him the importance of appointing as Secretary of the Interior someone who would be sympathetic to the prompt development of the Alaskan oilfield. One of their spokesmen was Robert O. Anderson, chairman of Atlantic Richfield and Republican national committeeman for New Mexico.

Who better to be secretary of the interior than Anderson's long-time friend and Alaska's governor, Walter J. Hickel, a development-minded millionaire businessman?

Hickel proved to be a better secretary than conservationists initially feared but he was and remains an ardent advocate of an Alaskan oil pipeline. So is his successor, former G.O.P. National Chairman Rogers Morton.

In Sept., 1969, the state of Alaska auctioned off the oil rights, most of them going to Atlantic Richfield and two partners. These companies then formed a pipeline company to build an 800-mile pipeline across Alaska to the port of Valdez from where the oil would be transported in tankers to the American West Coast.

There is, however, an alternative route. It would run southeastward through Canada and connect with existing pipelines to Chicago and the Middle West. There are advantages and disadvantages to both routes.

My own view, and that of most conservationists, is that the Canadian route would be preferable because it would eliminate the possibility of tanker accidents in the waters of Puget Sound and California. Even a few tanker mishaps each year would, the Interior Department concedes, spill 125,000 or more barrels into the Pacific. Since the world's oceans are already gravely menaced by oil spills, this additional pollution is an ecological risk to be avoided if at all possible.

The oil companies naturally prefer the Alaska route because it means that they would have to deal with only one government instead of two. Why should the industry mess around with Ottawa when it has a friend like Richard Nixon in the White House?

The Nixon Administration has worked unceasingly to smooth the way for the Alaskan route and choke off the environmentalist pressure for consideration of the Canadian alternative. The big obstacle has been the National Environmental Policy Act, which required the Interior Department to prepare a statement showing that it had considered every alternative and chosen the one with the least environmentally damaging impact.

Political appointees in Interior made no secret of the fact that their task was to draw up an impact statement that supported the Alaskan route but was plausible enough to stand up in court. When the conservationists sued, the court ruled in their favor on the narrow issue of the width of the pipeline's right-of-way. It reserved decision on the Canadian alternative.

Sen. Henry Jackson (D—Wash) then introduced a bill to permit a wider right-of-way. It was, he insisted, purely technical legislation and not a vehicle for a substantive discussion of the Alaskan or Canadian routes.

But this proved only a ruse to obfuscate the real purpose. Once this bill reached the floor, the two Alaskan senators offered the crucial amendment to forbid a judicial review.

The Nixon administration, crippled though it is by Watergate, rallied for a major lobbying effort in behalf of the amendment. Jackson, the author of the Environmental Policy Act, voted against but did not work against the amendment.

The White House and the oil lobbyists brought intense pressure. No one knows how many campaign contributions and other favors were offered, but the Senate cloakrooms were awash with rumors. Vice-President Agnew, to borrow Max Beerbohm's phrase, made one of "his rare, rather awful visits" to the Senate chamber and cast the vote that broke the tie and carried the amendment.

The lobbyists, as one of them expressed it, then "put a blowtorch" to House Speaker Carl Albert of oil-rich Oklahoma. Under Speaker Albert's prodding, the House Interior Committee rushed the bill to the floor.

On the Thursday night, the House approved the amendment, 221 to 198, and the bill carried.

As the vote on the amendment neared, a letter from President Nixon was read in the House. Pleading "the unique circumstances surrounding this issue," the President wrote "that this action cannot properly be construed as a precedent for other exemptions from full judicial reviews under the National Environmental Policy Act."

Perhaps the circumstances are "unique." Perhaps only big oil could mass the political strength to tear this gaping hole in the environmental law and block court review.

But as the Charles Colson memorandum has shown how the Nixon Administration settled the I.T. & T. antitrust case on political grounds, a full, judicial inquiry into the conversations and internal documents of the State Department, Interior Department, and the White House might well find that the Administration never considered the Alaskan pipeline issue on its merits. Now we may never know.

RUSSELL BAKER

What an exquisite 20th-century horror to find yourself caught in the net of some noble cause that needs an innocent victim.

Perhaps you are en route to Zurich to visit Aunt Eulalie when a hero of Palestinian nationalism leaps into the airplane aisle, grenade in hand, and announces that you must go sit in the deserts of Araby for the sake of a cause so magnificent that he would happily die for it.

More likely, you are stalled in a traffic clog three miles square. You know now that you will never be able to keep the date that might have saved the only true love of your life. And why? Because some perfectly decent working stiffs who control traffic through the tunnel ahead are slowing everything to a crawl for the unassailable purpose of raising their living standards.

* * *

Was there ever a time when so many noble causes required so many innocent victims?

Teachers, for the splendid purpose of raising the pay and, therefore, the dignity of teaching, require thousands of children who can be closed out of the schoolhouse. Idealistic Latin guerrillas require a supply of Yankee hired hands to be kidnapped.

The British workingman needs millions of Londoners to shiver when the winter power is shut down, in the altogether justifiable cause of improving the workingman's pay. In New York, hospital patients are needed, so that removal of their gall bladders can be delayed in the worthy cause of better working conditions for hospital help.

It is a time when all the best people feel they are contributing to human progress by making life miserable for everybody else.

Governments, of course, have always taken this attitude. "We are making life intolerable for a lot of people who can't understand why," governments have always said. "But we want those people to know that our cause is noble."

Governments call it war.

Most of us can probably count on being innocent victims, sooner or later, of the wars we now all wage against each other. How shall we respond? It is never good to protest, to say, "But why me?" It does not matter that you haven't a remote idea where Palestine is or who refuses to give the tunnel workers a square deal.

To people leading noble causes, though you be innocent of their particular grievance, you must be guilty of something. It is best, when trapped in the innocent-victim role, to relax and feel guilty. (As a general rule, it is always sound, in any situation, in America, in the present age, to feel guilty.)

* * *

It is vital not to lose one's temper. Victims as a class in western society are invariably either ludicrous or contemptible under the best of circumstances. The fellow who breaks his leg on a banana peel is absurd. The murder victim is commonly tried by his killer's lawyer on charges of having deserved to be murdered long before justice finally took its course.

Innocent victims of a noble cause can expect no more sympathy. Consider the innocent victim of the labor slowdown at the tunnel, the man who was to meet with the one real love of his life.

Because of this noble cause at the tunnel, he will arrive two hours late for the assignation. The woman he loves will have concluded that he has rejected her and will have boarded a jet for Zurich with the other man in her life, doubtless an embezzler. Our stalled suitor might, in a more sensible world, reasonably be expected to express ill will towards the altogether decent chaps who clogged the tunnel.

Nothing could be more unwise. Neighbors and colleagues, proud of their liberal outlook on human progress, would think him a selfish whiner, perhaps a reactionary, certainly a comic figure. Even more persuasive, however, would be our subject's sure knowledge that an angry denunciation of the good cause that had ruined him would make him despise himself as a narrow, illiberal spirit.

* * *

The woman he loved, and whom he now has lost, would surely never have loved him at all, he can be certain, had he been the kind of man who took a churlish attitude about being shanghaied for a great cause.

Will the woman he loved and her Zurich-bound embezzler be hijacked over the Bay of Biscay and flown to a desert in Araby to have their brains fried in a great cause? I do not think so. I think the Palestinian nationalists who planned to hijack the plane were also caught in the traffic jam at the tunnel and missed the flight.

Did they harbor vicious feelings against the tunnel workers? Of course not. They knew that someday they would have the tunnel workers in a plane on a desert in Araby, at which time they would not want the tunnel workers to harbor vicious feelings toward them.

Today's innocent victim is usually tomorrow's noble victimizer of innocents, who, of course, are bound to be guilty of something.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were mostly lower in moderate trade today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Rapeseed futures were higher through most of the session, but dropped at the close. The reversal was reflected in varying degrees in all months traded.

Oats and barley were sharply lower. The losses were attributed to a Canadian Wheat Board announcement that further wheat board offers on barley would be made on a flat basis only, reflecting current export prices, rather than on an exchange-of-futures basis.

Rye prices were higher early in the session but followed the downward trend to close 10 lower in all months.

Monday's volume of trade was 298,000 bushels of rye and 124,000 of rapeseed.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures prices continued to spiral upward on the Board of Trade today, but other farm products futures were mixed.

Tuesday's session marked the 12th straight day old crop wheat futures have hit the limit 20-cent increase allowed in one trading session. At $4.94 a bushel, wheat sold for delivery in September at more than three times its price a year ago.

Once limit increases were set in old crop wheat and corn contracts, trading in these months slowed almost to a stop. There were some sales in the distant options, however, and prices for these contracts traded just just below the limit jump set on the opening.

Soybean prices closed mostly higher after a fairly brisk session which saw prices range the 80-cent limit. For two straight sessions, the beans had closed with limit gains on all contracts. But August soybeans closed up only 10 cents at $10.75 a bushel, and September beans were down seven cents.

Prices for soybean meal and soybean oil remained strong through most of the session. August meal closed the limit $15 a ton higher at $328.50. The nearby contracts in soybean oil also registered limit gains, with the August contract closing at 36.40 cents a ton.

Oats prices were lower in a reversal of two straight days of limit higher closings.

At the close, wheat was 5½ to 20 higher, September 4.94; corn 10 higher, September 3.47¾; oats 1¾ to 5½ lower, September 1.49 and soybeans seven lower to 27 higher, August 10.75.

$38,000 for Cox

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has set the salary of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox at $38,000 a year. His action came in a document which also set the same salary level for an associate attorney-general and a commissioner-general of an environmental exposition scheduled for Spokane, Wash.

Golds Issues Plunge In Toronto Trading

Gold issues plunged sharply as prices on the Toronto stock market fell in light trading.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.46 million shares compared with 1.22 million at the same time Monday.

Industrial mining, pipeline, communication and merchandising issues were among declining market sectors while beverage, chemical, general manufacturing and steel stocks were higher.

Francana was off ½ to $10 and Numac ⅜ to $17½.

Ashland Oil Inc. fell 2 to $26, Falconbridge Nickel 1¾ to $79¼, Dome Pete 1 to $35½, Trans Canada Pipe Lines ⅞ to $27⅞ and Noranda A ¾ to $53¾.

Canadian General Securities A rose ¾ to $18, Canadian Canners A ¾ to $9¼, Livingston Industries ¾ to $11 and Stelco ¾ to $32½.

Among golds, Dome Mines dropped 4½ to $80½, Sigma ½ to $18, Camflo 30 cents to $6.85 and Agnico-Eagle 25 cents to $4.45.

Placer slipped 1 to $28½ and Hudson Bay Mining ½ to $27½. Falconbridge Copper gained ¼ to $14⅝.

New York

New York prices continued lower today in weak trading, bogged down by higher interest rates and uneasiness over whether Phase 4 will stem inflation.

Declining issues held a moderate lead over advances, but the declines were not as broad-based as on Monday.

Analysts said soaring interest rates were not only undermining investor confidence but also draining funds from the market. Investors have found a lucrative source of income in high interest bank certificates of deposit and treasury bills, the analysts said.

Also in the news today, gold prices continued to fall on foreign markets as foreign investors put their money in high interest yielding investments.

Saxon Industries was the volume leader, down ⅝ to $5½, followed by Tenneco, down ¾ to $20⅜, Bausch and Lomb, up ¾ to $34⅞ and Anaconda down ¾ to $21¾.

Montreal

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 824,300 shares, compared with 627,000 shares at the same time Monday.

Dome Petroleum declined 1½ to $35½, Cominco ¾ to $32¾, Consumers Glass ¾ to $8½ and Massey-Ferguson ½ to $22⅜ while Canadian Javelin advanced ⅞ to $13⅝.

On the Canadian Stock Exchange, Joubi Mining rose two cents to 52 cents on 85,700 shares traded.

London

Prices on the London stock market fluctuated within a narrow range in quiet trading today. The Financial Times index was off .8 points to 426.8 in mid-session trading.

FISH MEAL SUBSIDY

OTTAWA (CP) — Fish meal producers, in trouble because of the government's recently-imposed export embargo on the product, are to get a $10-million boost, Environment Minister Jack Davis announced Monday.

A new program, under the provisions of the Fisheries Prices Support Act, will enable the government to buy meal from producers. Companies then will have the right to buy back their own meal from the Fisheries Prices Support Board for resale at a later date.

This procedure will put cash in the hands of the companies at a time when they are not able to sell their products on export markets. Later, when controls are removed and export demand resumes, the companies will have access to the government-stored fish meal stocks.

Canada exported 36,000 tons of fish meal last year, worth about $7 million, and most of it went to the United States and Britain.

Canada-U.S. Air Talk Delay

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada-United States air route negotiations, scheduled to resume here today, have been suspended and Canadian informants said they did not know immediately when the talks would start.

The informant said a delegation of Canadian negotiators from Ottawa "will not be coming as scheduled" and that he did not know when they might reschedule the talks. He said he did not know where this left the status of the negotiations.

The delegation was to have been led by Michel Dupuis, undersecretary of state for external affairs.

An official of the air division of the U.S. state department said: "We have to complete our studies before the talks can go ahead."

A spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Board said "the C.A.B. has to look at the full package" of agreement reached so far by the negotiating teams and that "the C.A.B. discussions are continuing."

He said key C.A.B. personnel had been on leave, delaying the C.A.B. deliberations.

The two countries signed an air agreement in 1966 and have been trying, through intermittent negotiations, to amend that pact for the last three years.

Chief among the issues in dispute have been the questions of increased cross-border air routes and pre-clearing of passengers.

Negotiators from both sides met recently in Ottawa, adjourning their talks there 10 days ago to give both sides a chance to review whatever decision have been agreed so far.

The talks were to have resumed here Monday, but this was later changed to today and finally suspended.

The state department official said that despite the fact the Canadian delegation had made hotel reservations for today, "the date was really only tentative."

"There are still somematters up in the air — some matters between ourselves and the Canadians.

"It's obvious there are still some thorny problems."

He would not elaborate on these problems but in addition to pre-clearance and expanded air routes, the Americans have been trying to persuade Canada to relax air-charter rules they feel have been discriminatory toward U.S. carriers.

The Canadian negotiating team is understood to be stressing new routes to the U.S. in its proposals.

American negotiators are reported more interested in the pre-clearance and charter issues than in gaining a large package of new routes.

Sources say Canada is pressing strongly for routes between Vancouver and Los Angeles and between Winnipeg and Chicago. Ottawa is also asking for links between Calgary and southern U.S. cities.

Among routes sought by the U.S. are Chicago-Montreal, Vancouver-Honolulu and access to Alaska through Canada from the continental U.S,

BEFORE THE JUDGE

The manager of a Victoria fishing tackle shop was fined $75 by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Monday for selling a pellet pistol to a 13-year-old boy.

Derick Bateman, 53, of Royal Coachman Tackle Shop, 1225 Government, told the court he equated pellet pistols with slingshots and bows and arrows and didn't realize they were classed as firearms under the Criminal Code.

"I recommend you read the appropriate legislation," said Prosecutor Walter Anderson.

Defence counsel Donald Laughton asked for an absolute or conditional discharge saying Bateman has an "impeccable background" and is an "extremely conscientious citizen."

It is "indefensible to sell a firearm of this sort to a 13-year-old boy, particularly unaccompanied by a parent," said Ostler.

A suspended sentence and six-month probationary term were ordered for a 17-year-old Ontario youth for two drug charges.

Robert Bradley Martin, of St. Petersburg, Ontario, was stopped in the 1100-block Wharf at 5:25 p.m. Aug. 11 and small amounts of MDA and marijuana found on him.

John Richard Pearce, 18, of Grande Cache, Alberta, was given a suspended sentence and six months' probation for possession of marijuana.

He was with a group of people outside Victoria High School Aug. 13 at 12:05 a.m. when police approached.

Prosecutor Michael Hutchison said Pearce walked to a nearby tree. A check of the base of the tree turned up a warm pipe and small bag of the drug.

Community Drug Stores Planned

Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Monday the provincial government is considering amending the Pharmacy Act to allow the distribution of prescription drugs from pharmacies in the series of proposed community health centres planned in the province.

Cocke said the pharmacies would be community-run, as would be the health centres themselves.

He added it is hoped the community drug stores will sell prescription drugs at cost, plus a dispensing fee.

Other changes requested by the Pharmaceutical Association of B.C. will also be incorporated into the amendments to legislation, he said. The changes may not be ready for the fall session of the legislature, however, he said.

Lots of Hay Available In Peace

Agriculture Minister Dave Stupich said Monday there are "substantial quantities" of hay available in the Peace River area of the province to farmers who are affected by the current forage shortage in B.C.

Stupich said much of the hay has not been harvested due to lack of equipment and farm labor and that some of it is rapidly approaching maturity or is over-mature.

Lists of farmers with hay available are being forwarded to department of agriculture offices in various parts of the province, Stupich said, and information on supplies can be obtained from them.

Workers at Seagrams Accept Pact, Return

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Seagram's employees Monday voted 73 per cent approval of a 28-month contract giving 180 workers a $1.20-an-hour wage boost and fringe benefits, ending a 5½-month strike. They returned to work today.

Each worker also gets a $350 back-to-work cash bonus. The contract was based on a recent agreement between the Distillery Workers' Union and Park and Tilford in North Vancouver.

DELTA (CP) — Council will consider construction of a $53 million seaport facility near the Massey tunnel under the Fraser River. The 190-acre bulk and container freight facility was proposed by Canadian Construction Consultant Consortium Ltd.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A judge of the British Columbia Supreme Court issued an ex parte injunction Monday night to halt picketing at Uncle Ben's brewery in Prince George. The brewery was closed Monday when workers walked out and set up a picket line to protest the firing of an Indian.

DELTA (CP) — Council banned drag racing at Boundary Bay airport because racers failed to lower the noise, mayor Dugald Morrison said Monday. He said residents complained about the Canadian Hot Rod Association, which blocked Vancouver International Airport traffic Sunday in protest.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Jockey Club has urged city council to allow Sunday racing at Exhibition Park, claiming it is losing business to Seattle, where Sunday racing is allowed.

FERNIE (CP) — The president of the Fernie Board of Trade has proposed that a vocational school, emphasing mechanical and technical trades, be established here. In a brief to the provincial commission on education in the Kootenay district, George Magic said Elk Valley has the highest concentration of industry in the East Kootenay and Fernie could offer an inexpensive place to operate, the old Fernie hospital, which is to be vacated in the late fall.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Hospital Employees' Union reacted angrily Monday to accusations by Human Rights Act director Kathleen Ruff that it has failed to bargain aggressively for its women members. In a prepared statement, union spokesman R. S. McCready said meetings between Health Minister Dennis Cocke and the union relative to discriminatory practices in the hospital industry "were under way many months before the appointment of Ruff as human rights director." Also under intensive discussion are a series of anti-discrimination arbitration proceedings, he said.

U.S. Aid Review Urged for Brazil

WASHINGTON (WP) — The General Accounting Office has recommended that Congress consider whether Brazil's booming economy has reached the point where the huge South American country no longer needs U.S. aid.

The recommendation is in a GAO report on U.S. aid to education in Brazil, which also contends that U.S. money has not been effectively used to increase educational opportunities for poor Brazilians.

But the report went beyond the scope of its original investigation to pose the basic policy question of how Washington can determine when a country has progressed to the point where it no longer needs U.S. economic assistance.

The report described Brazil's "economic miracle" of recent years, pointing out that its gross national product has been growing at an annual rate of about 9.9 per cent and that foreign-exchange reserves grew by $3 billion in 1971 and 1972 to a total of $4.2 billion at the beginning of this year.

At the same time, the report said, Brazil has been receiving "substantial economic assistance from other sources," including $900 million in 1972 alone, from the World Bank, the Inter-American Development Bank and the Export-Import Bank.

It also noted that Brazil itself had extended loans to smaller Latin American countries and pledged $2 million to the special fund of the African Development Bank.

The GAO, which is the investigative agency of Congress, conceded that assistance to Brazil is being reduced. Brazil received about $50 million in U.S. aid in fiscal year 1973, while $17 million was planned for fiscal year 1974, the report said.

However, the report urged Congress to consider requiring the state department and the agency for international development "to precisely identify, in objectively measureable terms, the point at which an assistance recipient no longer requires concessional U.S. assistance."

Abducted Rival Back in Korea

WASHINGTON (WP) — Kim Dae Jung, the leading political rival of South Korean President Park Chung Hee, was found dazed but unharmed outside his Seoul home Monday five days after he was abducted from a Tokyo hotel.

The 47-year-old politician's whereabouts had been a mystery since his kidnapping until his wife answered the doorbell late Monday night and found him half-unconscious and blindfolded with a bandage. Kim later told newsmen that in Tokyo's Grand Palace Hotel he was anaesthetized by assailants who included two Japanese couples, was taken to Osaka in a five-hour car-ride, and was shipped from there to Korea's west coast — a three-day sea crossing from Japan by motorboat.

In South Korea, Kim said, he was drugged again and taken blindfolded to two houses before being released by his captors with a warning to stand still and say nothing for three minutes.

Kim said he had been struck from time to time during the journey. Reporters could see bruises on his face and hands.

Kim's abduction reportedly by five Korean-speaking men had been widely attributed to the Korean central intelligence agency. Chief opponent of President Park in the 1971 presidential elections, Kim left South Korea shortly before the imposition of martial law last October. He has since campaigned against Park's regime in the United States and Japan.

In Washington, Kim's aide and executive secretary, Lee Kun Pal, accused the Korean central intelligence agency of plotting the kidnapping. The former diplomat added, "the Japanese government still has the responsibility to bring Kim back to Tokyo."

Attempts by newsmen to contact Kim by phone calls to his Seoul home failed Monday when the line was twice disconnected.

Contacted by phone in Seoul, a brother-in-law, Lee Kang Ho, answered questions on Kim's condition in guarded terms. He said the politician "has lost a lot of weight and looks extremely tired."

Kim left Washington Aug. 9 and planned to return to his newly opened Centre for East-Asian Studies here. Monday, a brother-in-law, Lee Sung Hop, one of several relatives living in the Washington area, said, "I'm quite relieved he's safe, but we regret very much he was forced to go back against his will."

She represents an American taxpayer investment of $32 million.

She's the 892½-foot Ultramar, on her maiden voyage from San Diego, where she was designed and built by the National Steel and Shipbuilding Co.

Shipyard consultant Martin Berger said the Ultramar was built with federal funds under the program announced by President Nixon about three years ago.

The program will fund the construction of about 300 modern vessels and underwrite operating costs.

"These ships will help put the (American) dollar back into a strong position," he predicted.

The Ultramar is in Esquimalt for repairs.

"She's very sophisticated and the first of many," Berger says, "We have a few mechanical bugs to work out."

Sailing under the American flag with an American crew of 26 plus her master, Capt. Wesley Faust, 53, of Santa Rosa, Calif., the Ultramar is one of the most versatile vessels. She's capable of carrying either oil, ore or bulk cargo and is 106 feet in the beam, the maximum girth capable of going through the Panama Canal.

She's owned by Westchester Marine Shipping Co. Inc. of New York, which is building eight more vessels of the same size under the government program.

Her sister ship, the Ultrasea, will be launched in October. Seven tankers of the same size are also planned.

Berger says all the steel ships will be double bottomed to ensure maximum protection of the ecology.

Eventually she will be able to operate without a man in her engine room.

"She is fully automated," Berger says, "with a two-man engine room. With very little modification she will be able to run with a zero-manning engine room."

Ultramar is the largest ship ever built on the U.S. west coast and handling her is no mean feat, even for a man like Faust who's followed the sea since 1939.

"With 80,500 tons dead weight beneath you," he says, "you always have to be aware of the mass when you bring her alongside and the time it takes to stop."

His 10-storey command, five below the main deck and another five from there to his bridge, gives Faust the impression of "flying an airplane," perched between 70 and 80 feet above the sea level.

Her 24,000 horsepower steam engines give her a cruising speed of 17½ knots when fully loaded. Faust confesses it gives him an eerie feeling when she's under way:

"Standing up here on the bridge I can see the bridge tilt one way and the bow another. Mind you, she has to be flexible — but it's a queer feeling.

"She rolls a long way. You have to be very, very careful," he says. "It's like pushing a mountain. If you go too fast you're liable to bump something."

The wheel in the bridge house seems incongruously small for its task as Faust explains that he can switch control from there to the engine room at the push of a button.

A nearby teletype records every command. Berger explains that this provides a full record should one ever be needed in the case of an incident.

When she leaves Esquimalt the Ultramar will load 78,000 tons of coal at Roberts Bank. After unloading in Japan, she will head for the Persian Gulf, where she will take on oil destined for Quebec.

Between Faust's place on the bridge and her keel, Ultramar could set up three football fields.

Early Start Planned On New Marine Base

Construction of a $6,270,000 marine base in Victoria harbor for the ministry of transport will begin in a few months, the federal government announced today.

The new base, which has been talked about for years, will be located on 19 acres, the former Victoria Machinery Depot outer wharf property, alongside Dallas Road at Ogden Point.

The Ottawa announcement said treasury board approval has been granted for the project, which will consolidate on one site marine services now scattered at four locations.

First phase will see the old wharf and buildings demolished. A new wharf, administrative offices, aids to navigation workshop, vessel berthing and stores facilities will then be built with the entire project expected to take about three years.

The VMD Dallas Road yard, closed in November, 1967, after the shipyard operation was sold to Burrard-Yarrows, cost the federal government about $2.25 million.

At the moment, marine services of the ministry are administered from offices in the Toronto-Dominion Bank Building downtown, weatherships Quadra and Vancouver are berthed at a public works wharf in Esquimalt, the service's helicopter is based at Victoria International Airport and a ship depot is located on Johnson Street.

All will be located at the new base, which will also have room for expansion. About 400 employees in Victoria will be brought together.

Ministry spokesmen said the new base fits Victoria's long-range plans to beautify and expand the harbor from a tourist and aesthetic point of view.

They said the present marine services base, near the Johnson Street bridge, dates from 1912 and the buildings have reached the end of their useful lives.

Berthing facilities are also limited and should mechanical failure block raising of the Johnson Street bridge, ministry vessels could not now get to sea until repairs were made, they added.

The government announcement said construction would get under way early in 1974 or sooner if possible.

'DISASTER' SAYS TINDALL

A city alderman denied today there has been close cooperation between the federal government and Victoria on development plans for the former Victoria Machinery Depot property on Dallas Road.

Ald. Bill Tindall, chairman of council's commerce, industry and tourism committee, said there has been no discussion with Ottawa on developing a marine base there for the ministry of transport.

It would be a "disaster" if the federal government proceeded with its building plans before talking to the city about its plans for the waterfront and James Bay, said Tindall.

The government announcement today on the marine base said the "ministry has been working for some time in close co-operation with the city . . . to select a suitable site."

Mayor Peter Pollen, contacted later, said there were some discussions with the city but they were not extensive.

Motorist Given Two-Year Term

A Victorian who drove through a red light and a stop sign on the wrong side of the road at 90 miles an hour in a stolen car was sentenced to two years in jail today.

Jack Stewart Brown, 23, of 840 Pembroke, was sentenced on charges of stealing a car, dangerous driving and driving without a licence before Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court today.

Prosecutor Wally Anderson said Saanich police tried to stop Brown's car on Quadra Street Aug. 8 when he was driving "erratically."

Police chased Brown down Quadra Street and said he was driving 90 miles an hour, crossed the centreline, went through two intersections on the wrong side of the road and finally hit a telephone pole at Quadra and Tolmie.

Brown got out of the car which he had stolen the day before from a Victoria service station, and fled into nearby Topaz Park.

The police gave chase and finally found the man in the park. Brown was taken to Victoria General Hospital where he remained four days in serious condition suffering from head injuries, cuts and shock.

Brown's only explanation of the incident was that he had been drinking.

"You need a new attitude towards your life and you must get out of the alcohol group," Judge Ostler told Brown.

"You must not accept the kind of life you are living as inevitable."

Committee Backs Heritage Group

Establishment of a five-man heritage advisory committee was recommended today by Victoria city council's B Committee.

Guidelines for the heritage committee were presented to the committee by the city's community development department.

Members of the heritage committee will be Ald. Sam Bawlf, one architect, one historian, and two private citizens with experience or knowledge of building restoration or preservation.

The guidelines say the heritage committee should undertake a city-wide survey to draw up a register of heritage buildings.

A delegation from the Hallmark Society, a group concerned with preserving historic buildings, appeared before the committee today and asked for a moratorium on demolition permits for any building built before 1914.

Langford Shows Way

Of $1,717,838 worth of rural building, Langford had $613,184 worth compared to $211,916 last July.

Totals for other areas (with last July's total in brackets) are: Sooke, $219,992 ($133,468); Metchosin, $104,955 ($83,650); Colwood, $226,659 ($122,643); View Royal, $55,284 ($5,184); Salt Spring Island $296,266 ($303,728); Outer Gulf Islands, $201,498 ($198,672).

Value of permits for all areas last July was $1,059,261.

Incinerator Ban Coming

The committee will recommend to council that no incinerator fires be allowed during the months of May, June, July, August and September.

The committee decided that the ban was necessary because of the fire hazard and the nuisance caused to neighbors during weekends.

When the ban goes into effect residents will be allowed to have two cans of garbage collected free and a third one, if necessary, for 15 cents.

Ald. John Goult observed, "This is a reasonable solution so long as we're prepared to take the increase."

Wharf, Government Semi-Malls Urged

Creation of a semi-mall on Government Street and another semi-mall later on Wharf Street have been recommended in a study released today by Victoria's traffic department.

The study recommends the narrowing of Government and Wharf to two-lane, one-way streets, and the widening of sidewalks to create partial malls on both streets.

Both malls would run from Humboldt to Yates on both streets, with traffic moving south on Wharf and north on Government.

"The main factor favoring the semi-mall option is the importance of developing Wharf Street as well as Government Street as pedestrian-oriented, rather than vehicle-oriented streets," the report said.

"Vehicular usage of Wharf Street is increasing and the trends if not arrested, are obvious," it said.

"The street will become increasing less attractive to pedestrians, both to cross and to walk along."

"The adoption of the full-mall concept will tend to accentuate and accelerate this undesirable trend."

The semi-mall concept is one of three alternatives for Government Street that were considered in making the study.

Other alternatives were to widen Wharf Street and make a full traffic-free mall of Government, or to make complementary one-way streets of Wharf and Douglas and make a complete mall of Government.

The study says full involvement of merchants and public should be encouraged in creating the semi-malls.

It also recommends:

—Studies be done into possible use of Blanshard Street as an alternative truck route to Government.

—Prohibition of commuter parking facilities in and around the downtown pedestrian core of the city with off-street parking provided on the fringe of the pedestrian core.

—Investigation of a commuter bus service for rush-hour traffic and a dial-a-bus system for off-peak service.

—On-street parking that will be removed should be replaced with landscaping and beautification.

The report was discussed today by council's B committee.

Only Mayor Peter Pollen voiced objections to the report, particularly to the idea of providing a truck route on Blanshard.

"I'm not satisfied with this," Pollen said. He called the Blanshard Street proposal a "typical North American response" to accommodate the automobile.

City traffic engineer D. E. Campbell told Pollen the mall study, if carried out, would remove half the main travel lanes in the downtown area. This is hardly accommodating the automobile, he said.

The study will be discussed further at a meeting of the committee of the whole later today.

Cigarette Fire Razes Acreage in Highlands

Two heavily-treed acres burned Monday afternoon in a fire probably started by a careless smoker, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the fire was probably caused by a burning cigarette. There were a lot of motorcyclists using the backroads in the area during the weekend, he said.

Seniors Also Want Proposed Family Allowance Increases

Pensioners should get the same $20 a month increase proposed for family allowances, senior citizens counsellor Mrs. Annie McVie said today.

Secretary-treasurer of Senior Citizens' Campaign Council and herself a pensioner, Mrs. McVie was commenting on federal cabinet plans to give pensioners quarterly cost-of-living increments instead of once a year.

She thought immediate consideration should be given to freezing prices.

"The cost of living is a dreadful thing. It has gone beyond even the depression — we should be rationing people.

"Why don't they give the old age pensioner the extra $20 a month — those who are alone?"

Prices of essentials, such as bread, milk and meat go up daily, she said.

"The thing that concerns me in my work with pensioners (voluntary counselling) is the high cost of drugs. All senior citizens over a certain age should have free medical (services) and drugs," Mrs. McVie said.

She intends to broach the matter at a provincial conference of senior citizens to be held here in October.

Ald. Edith Gunning, chairman of Saanich council social services committee, said the proposed increase ($5.30 for a pensioner in October) "seems so small it's infinitesimal. It's a desperate situation."

She said a number of families are having a difficult time trying to eke out a living, along with retired single persons and those who don't yet qualify for the old age pension.

Quarterly cost-of-living increments were welcomed by an anonymous pensioner, who noted: "The cost of living keeps going up and doesn't wait for the end of the year."

"I'm sorry it's no more," said Pensioners Concerned Inc. president Stanley Uren. "The increase will not cover the increased cost of living, but it is a help."

VICTORIA SAILOR WINS IN PORTUGAL

A 17-year-old Royal Victoria Yacht Club sailor beat out all competition Monday and won the first race of the World Youth Sailing Championships being sailed in Portugal.

Tony Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rose, 3898 Cadboro Bay, helmed his Laser dinghy to first place, establishing a strong lead in the series.

Sherbrooke Nips Victoria Calgary Wins in 'Walk'

Little League is many things.

It's a 12-year-old who is as nervous as a world series contender; and when your control goes, what do you do?

It's a coach whose insides are doing nip-ups, but he can't show it to the team, and sure, you have to stick with your best.

It's also Little League president Peter McGovern here on part of a world-tour for Little League and who has been "living out of a suitcase for the last 30 days," and who leaves tomorrow for the East and Williamsport to prepare for the Little League World Series next week.

It's also the parents of the players, particularly the mother of a player all the way from Sherbrooke in La Belle Province of Quebec, such as happened on Monday at Lambrick Park in Saanich.

This was opening day in the Canadian Little League championship, the winner to play at Williamsport, and Mrs. Grenier didn't mind if anyone saw her crying.

Because she was weeping for joy. Her son Jean had just pitched Sherbrooke-Lennoxville a tense 2-1 triumph over Victoria Nationals in the first game.

Besides, it was yet another victory in a string that sees Grenier still undefeated for the year. Before coming here had allowed only six hits in five previous playoff games.

Grenier threw a no-hitter at the Nationals and almost lost because of another excellent pitching performance. George Christianson of Nationals had a no-hitter too until the fifth inning, and with two out in the sixth appeared headed for a victory. Then in about two minutes it happended. Sherbrooke erupted with three straight hits and two runs, and Christianson and Nationals were losers in a game they could just as easily have won.

Victoria had taken the lead in the fourth on a combination of events including three bases on balls and a fielder's choice. And that lead held up until the fateful sixth.

Then pinch hitter Dennis Mongreau got an infield hit to open the inning. The next two hitters went out and for the first time, in a sixth inning this year Sherbrooke was behind and facing defeat. Then Christianson, who had shown a good fast ball all day, hung one too high and Grenier lashed it into centre field. Pierre Theriault doubled down the third base line and Mario Carrier singled to right to knock in the winning run. Game over, a tough loss, but a creditable victory.

In the second game of the day things were a little wilder, especially the rival pitchers, as Calgary, representing the Prairies, defeated Brockville from Ontario, 5-2. But both coaches stuck with their starters.

Mickey Collison of Brockville walked eight batters, six in one inning (the third) when he also hit a batter, and that indiscretion cost him the game.

Calgary trotted four runners across the plate in that inning and added another in the fourth on hits by Ian Ostroworka, Jeff Stoughton and Darrell Kline.

Otherwise Collison was quick and did strike out 14 of the Calgary batters. But to do it, he had to make 140 pitches, and in a six-inning game, that must rank as a record of sorts.

He walked seven batters and it was touch and go until the end when Kline got him off the hook with a fine catch in deep centre field. With Perry Edwards on base by virtue of a double, Dan Caldwell made a bid for a home run, but Kline snared the ball right off the screen.

Earlier, Brockville had many chances, as did both teams, each leaving 10 men stranded on the bases.

Blassetti struck out seven.

Victoria Nationals were scheduled against Brockville in a losers' game this afternoon with Quebec playing the B.C. representative team, Whalley, tonight at 6:30 in the official tournament opener.

President of the Little League board of governors, McGovern will preside at the function which besides being the Canadian championships also will recognize the 20th anniversary of Little League baseball in Victoria. A special section in the stands has been reserved for those involved in Little League in the inaugural season of 1953. Mayor Hugh Curtis will represent Saanich.

Two games are scheduled Wednesday at 2 and 6:30 p.m. with single games Thursday and Friday at 6:30 p.m. in the five-team, double-knockout competition. If a final game is necessary it will be played Saturday at 10 a.m. or 2 p.m.

Rocks on Hot Spot

Pressure will be another name of the game for Victoria Shamrocks Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Either they win that game, which starts at 8, or they're out of the Western Lacrosse Association playoffs.

Shamrocks face Coquitlam Adanacs in the fourth game of the best-of-five semi-final series and, after a great start less than a week ago, they're in a sorry position right now.

The Rocks gave Victoria fans high hopes they could beat the Adanacs in the series and meet Vancouver Burrards in the best-of-seven final to decided the western representative in the one-game national Mann Cup final when they crushed Coquitlam 22-9.

But, in Coquitlam Monday night, the Shamrocks were blasted 18-8 for their second loss in three nights and now the series stands at 2-1 in favor of the Adanacs.

Goalkeeper Dave Wedlock, who had an unhappy game in Victoria last Wednesday but struck form Saturday night to help Coquitlam take a 11-7 decision, was sharp again Monday night.

He foiled several fine scoring attempts by the Rocks when they dominated play in the first period, making 15 saves and steering the Adanacs to a 7-4 lead.

But he was at his best in the second period when he held the Rocks scoreless for almost 23 minutes in a fine stand which lasted from the five-minute mark and carried on to the third period.

Adanacs hammered in nine goals to take a 16-6 lead into the final period and, during the home-team scoring spree, Shamrock coach Ed Kowalyk replaced goalkeeper Skip Chapman with George Grover for the rest of the game.

Bill Bradley and Jim Rickbeil scored three goals and had one assist each for the Adanacs.

Brian Thompson was the only Shamrock to score two goals. He also had two assists and Ivan Thompson and Charn Dhillon both had one goal and three assists.

Misery, Relief Mark Tiger-Cats' First Win

OTTAWA (CP) — "I'd do anything," moaned Ottawa Rough Rider coach Jack Gotta, "if I thought it would change my luck."

He could be excused for moaning. His Riders had just lost the fight to get out of the Eastern Football Conference basement in a 25-16 loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

But in a nearby dressing room, freshly showered Jerry Williams appeared to be relieved that the Hamilton team he led to Grey Cup victory last year finally was beginning to show its form.

Both teams entered the game without a win this year: Ottawa dropped two games earlier to Toronto; Hamilton, two to Montreal.

Williams said after the game that his opponents "played pretty good football, but took some tough breaks," an indication of the anybody's-game type of battle it was.

The Riders, with former Calgary Stampeder quarterback Jerry Keeling, a new acquisition, opened quickly with a first-quarter touchdown by fullback Jim Evenson followed by a convert and two field goals by soccer-style kicker Gerry Organ.

In the second quarter, Hamilton quarterback Chuck Ealey helped chalk up 12 points with an eight-yard touchdown pass to flanker Garney Henley and a three-yard handoff to running back Andy Hopkins. Ian Sunter converted both. Organ kicked Otttawa's last three points with another field goal.

Except for another field goal by Sunter in the third quarter, the last half of the game was a defensive see-saw, until the dying minutes.

In the last two minutes, however, Sunter booted a single from the 44-yard line and, after losing the ball briefly, Hamilton regained control on the Ottawa 40.

Alec Lockington kicked a wobbly punt over the Ottawa goal line; Rider halfback Dick Adams took it and tried a lateral that was tipped by Tony Gabriel, a Tiger-Cat offensive end who dived on the ball for Hamilton's last touchdown.

"It's an easy way to get six points," Gabriel said after the game.

Both coaches said they were impressed with Keeling, who could replace veteran Rick Cassata as the Ottawa chief signal caller. Prior to the game, Keeling had played only one quarter with the Ottawa club.

His passing performance, however, was poorer than Ealey's. Keeling completed only seven of 19 for a total of 81 yards. Ealey made 14 of 20 for 161.

Both teams had 16 first downs and eight penalties. Hamilton lost 118 yards through penalties, Ottawa 63. There were no interceptions, but Ottawa had three fumbles, each of which were recovered by the Ticats.

Leon's Season Over?

TORONTO (CP) — The season could be over for running back Leon McQuay, unless he is picked up by a Canadian Football League team.

The former Tampa University star has been suspended by Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Football Conference until Friday. Coach John Rauch has also made it clear that he doesn't want McQuay on his team following a practice incident last week involving offensive line coach Rod Homenuik.

He won't play in the National Football League, although New York Giants have his playing rights after picking him No. 5 in this year's draft.

An NFL bylaw states any player who attends a CFL training camp cannot play in the NFL that same season.

McQuay has returned to his Tampa, Fla., home.

SURGENOR SCORES WIN

MONROE, Wash. — Ross Surgenor of Victoria won the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) 205-lap race here Sunday.

Surgenor, who took the lead on the 50th lap, was leading the field by one lap when he took the checkered flag. He collected $1,800 out of the $10,000 total purse for his victory.

Underwood Sets Pace For McGinnis Batters

Reg Underwood of Royal Oak Sporting Goods, which finished third, topped the regular-season Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softrball League batting parade.

Seaboard Construction's Scott Sinclair is third in total hits with 39, one behind Bill Tiderman of Port Angeles and five behind Custance.

Bill Polz of Century emerged as the league-leading pitcher with a 19-2 won-lost record (.905 per cent). He struck out 181 batters and yielded 41 bases on balls during 150 2-3 innings.

Barry Wilkin of Seaboard Construction was next with a 13-2 mark (.867) in 104 innings with 87 strikeouts and 28 walks.

Seaboard's other hurler, Glen Bullen, finished with a 14-6 record for 125 innings. He struck out 160 and allowed only 16 walks.

Ticket Plans Unsettled

MONTREAL (CP) — The organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics has already received 14,000 requests for tickets to Olympic events, but the committee's director of spectator services says plans for distribution of the tickets have not been completed.

"At this stage we don't even have a seating plan for the main stadium," Maurice Forget said in an interview Monday.

"We won't have one until sometime in the first quarter of 1974.

"Everything will be done by countries and the whole thing is going to be put into a computer."

Forget said each country will have an abency appointed to handle ticket sales and to determine the housing needs of the 131 nations involved.

"What we don't want are people cornering a lot of tickets. We've already had a lot of letters from people we assume are nothing more than speculators."

No policy has yet been formulated for pricing the tickets, he said, although "we would like to keep a lot of seats in the $3 and $4 range."

He estimated there will be 1.5 million visitors during the two week period of the Games.

LIONS CHANGE CHANGES AS ESKIMOS STAND PAT

This is the lineup situation as the Eskimos fight to remain the only unbeaten club in the Western Football Conference when they meet the Lions in Vancouver tonight.

For the third consecutive game, Edmonton is to start the same 24 players and dress the same 32.

"You stay with the people who win for you," said coach Ray Jauch.

The Lions, on the other hand, could have as many as six lineup changes for the game at Empire Stadium where they'd like to end their record as the only WFC team still winless.

Curtis Webster has replaced Jim Krapf who had replaced Travis Roach at guard. Jim Svitak is another addition but it is not known what position he will play.

There are a number of potential openings.

Linebacker Carl Weathers hurt his ankle in B.C.'s 38-19 loss last week to Saskatchewan Roughriders and is on the injured list.

That leaves the Lions with an opening for another import on defence — and makes the possible shift complicated.

Coach Eagle Keys put defensive halfback Joe Forqurean on a five-day trial, providing a hint that he may go with three imports in the defensive backfield.

The Lions have given place-kicker Bob Macoritta a five-day trial in case Ted Gerela, who has an injured hamstring muscle, is unable to play.

If the Lions put him on their roster they would probably have to put Gerela on the injured reserve list, losing him for a month.

IN ACTION for first time in almost two weeks, John (Blue Moon) Odom yieled five hits in pitching Oakland to a 3-1 win over Boston Red Sox.

Weaver's 'Hot Bat' Theory Should Please Tiger Pilot

By The Associated Press

While the rest of the American League puzzles over the tantalizingly tight East Division race, Baltimore manager Earl Weaver has it all doped out.

"We've got the best defensive club in the division and the best pitching," said Weaver after the Orioles had thumped Texas Rangers 7-4 Monday night. "Now we're starting to hit and the club with the hot bat will take it."

That bit of information should delight Detroit skipper Billy Martin, whose Tigers mauled Minnesota Twins for 16 hits and a 9-3 romp. If hot bats decide this race, then wrap it up for the Tigers, who've won four straight games and scored 26 runs over that stretch.

Elsewhere in the American League Monday night, Oakland Athletics trimmed Boston Red Sox 3-1, New York Yankees shut out California Angels 6-0 and Chicago White Sox downed Milwaukee Brewers 5-2.

"I hope the other teams keep thinking we can't hit the ball," said Baylor. "I guarantee you we're hitting it now."

Baylor had two doubles and a single in addition to his homer.

Detroit ran its post-All Star Game record to 17-4 by beating Minnesota to maintain its 1½-game lead over the Orioles.

Gates Brown, Aurelio Rodriguez and Mickey Stanley contributed three hits apiece as Detroit roared from behind to take Minnesota 9-3. The Twins held a 2-1 lead until the seventh and then Bill Freehan's two-out, two-run single gave the Tigers the lead.

Then John Hiller came out of the bullpen to nail down the victory, earning his 28th save of the season.

Steve Brye homered for the Twins.

Oakland's John (Blue Moon) Odom, pitching for the first time since Aug. 2, beat Boston 3-1 with late relief help from Rollie Fingers. Odom, 3-9, allowed just five hits and Fingers struck out four of the six batters he faced as Oakland moved one-half game behind idle first-place Kansas City in the AL West.

Switch-hitting Roy White accomplished the rare feat of hitting a home run from each side of the plate in the same game, leading New York to its 6-0 victory over California.

Don't Confuse Artists With 'Shingle-Hangers'

Of interest to a chosen few is the word that Norman Woods has decided against retirement and is busy designing courses again.

There are golf course architects and there are shingle-hangers. There is a difference. The shingle-hanger is a mercenary who puts his name above a sign that says he is a designer of golf courses. The architect is an artist and an expert in agronomy who refuses to be swayed by fat fees . . . like Norman Woods.

Owen Hamilton, whose firm installed the watering systems at Royal Colwood and Cowichan this year, tells a story about Woods that emphasizes the value of an artist.

In the Okanagan there exists a course that has been struggling for three years to be considered playable. The grass just won't grow.

Across the way is a nine-holer built recently by a wealthy chap who brought Woods into action. Woods, who makes his home in the Okanagan now, submitted his plans but the builder promptly vetoed several of the architect's proposals.

Woods refused to allow changes. Just when it appeared they might part company, the builder had second thoughts and agreed to follow Woods' plans to the nth degree.

In similar conditions and on virtually the same terrain as the struggling course across the road, the nine-holer was expected to be ready for play this summer — less than six months after basic construction was completed!

"The owner told me it was the smartest move he ever made . . . to change his mind and go along with Norman," said Hamilton. "He's going to start realizing a return on his investment in less than six months, and you don't get that in golf course development very often these days."

Royal Montreal is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year, and among its party plans is a novel invitation to all other "Royal" golf clubs.

Throughout the world, there are 73 golf clubs granted the royal favor. There are four in Canada — Royal Montreal, Royal Quebec, Royal Ottawa and Royal Colwood.

The Montreal club has invited all 73 clubs to participate in a special "Royal" tournament this week. Colwood is represented by Blair Wilson, Bob Peters, Bob Malcolm and Jack Bowen.

SHORT CHIPS: Five golfers, including westerners Bob McWhirter of Regina and Jack Wahl of Calgary, have been reinstated as amateurs by the Royal Canadian Golf Association . . . Wade Griffey, 14, scored an eagle three on Ardmore's par-five sixth hole . . . Possibly the next development stage of the new Royal Oak Inn will be the construction of a nine-hole golf course . . . Also on the drawing board is an 18-hole course in the Mill Bay area [illegible] Kilmalu Road . . . They have 87 acres and, if it goes through, it will be set up as a public company with a share offering . . . Col. C. D. McAllister has again notched a golf tally that beats his age . . . On his annual summer visit, the 77-year-old winter resident of Orlando, Fla., fired a 76 at Uplands, where it is good to see professional John Wren back in the shop after a bout with a ruptured appendix . . . among the newest members of the hole-in-one clan is Gerry Walker, who collected his ace on Gorge Vale's 168-yard 10th . . .

Delightful new posting for Al Zimmerman is the assignment as the golf professional on a cruise ship . . . Zim, busy steering his own boat somewhere between here and Alaska, will give lessons aboard the liner and then lead the golf-minded onto courses at Fiji, Tahiti, Hawaii, Australia and New Zealand.

Stargell Plans to Skip TV Session in October

By The Associated Press

Willie Stargell does'nt plan to watch any television in the early days of October and Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson doesn't expect him to.

It's not that the Pittsburgh Pirates' slugger has anything against TV. It's just that Stargell doesn't like the thought of watching other little men in knickers, shirts and caps playing on his screen for big money.

"Last year we had the best record in baseball and ended up watching the World Series at home," Stargell said after smacking his 34th homer and scoring another run in the Pirates 3-2 victory over the Reds. "This year our record isn't so good, but maybe we'll be there."

Anderson is more certain.

"The Pirates will be there when it's all over," he said.

Elsewhere in the National League Houston Astros shut out St. Louis Cardinals 4-0; San Diego Padres nipped New York Mets 3-2 and Los Angeles Dodgers stopped Montreal Expos 8-5.

St. Louis is the only club in the National League East with its head above water—61-58— but is sinking fast. The Cardinals' eighth straight loss left the Pirates and their 57-58 record just two games back.

Monday night's victory was a step in that direction by the Pirates as they cooled off a hot Cincinnati club that had won five straight. After the Reds had jumped out to a first-inning lead, Stargell, the major league's leading home run hitter, lined a bullet over the yellow line in right field to tie the game.

Stargell put the Pirates on top in the third when he singled, moved up on Richie Zisk's walk and scampered home on Manny Sanguillen's single.

Lefthanders are a minority group, but for a change of pace this minority is the oppressor.

St. Louis Cardinals could certainly make a valid case for discrimination as they were handed their eighth straight loss and fourth in a row by pitchers who throw baseballs with their left hand.

This one was a 4-0 defeat at the hands of Dave Roberts and the Houston Astros, lowering the Cardinals' record against southpaws to 18-25.

England Faces Impossible Task

EDGBASTON, England (AP) — The West Indians put on 95 runs in their second innings of the second cricket test match today, were all out for 302 and left England the almost impossible task of getting 325 to win in just over three hours.

It looked equally impossible for the West Indians to force a win themselves even though Geoff Boycott, the star England batsman, was still injured and unable to bat except in an emergency.

The morning belonged to Gary Sobers, not out overnight with 21. Sobers, a former West Indian captain, today drove and hooked his way to 74, which included 12 fours, before playing a casual stroke to Geoff Arnold and seeing his off stump knocked back.

Arnold, with four wickets for 43 in 20 overs was by far the most penetrating England bowler.

UVic Schedules Athletic Clinics

Soccer and basketball will be the focal points of a series of athletic clinics scheduled to begin late this month under the division of continuing education at the University of Victoria.

Brian Hughes, coach of UVic Vikings, will instruct the soccer clinic scheduled for the evenings of Aug. 30 and 31 and all day Sept. 1.

Mike Gallo, who coached UVic Vikettes to the Canadian women's title in 1972, is instructing the distaff hoop clinic scheduled for Sept. 21-23.

B.C. basketball coach John Olson and George Siborne, an international referee, will conduct a referees' clinic on Oct. 27.

Olson, national coach Jack Donohue, Vikings' coach Gary Taylor and Don Horwood, who coached Oak Bay to the provincial high school title earlier this year, will be among the list of instructors for the men's hoop clinic Nov. 2 and 3.

In addition, a clinic on the care of athletic injuries has been set for Sept. 15.

Players, coaches, referees, teachers and parents wanting to participate are invited to telephone 477-6911, local 802 or 790, for additional information.

FEVER, COUGH KEEP SECRETARIAT IN BARN

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Triple-crown winner Secretariat will not run in Saturday's $100,000-added Travers Stakes at Saratoga because of a fever and cough.

While declining to elaborate, trainer Lucien Laurin said he thought the ailment Secretariat picked up may have been a factor in the Aug. 4 loss to Onion in the Whitney Stakes.

The cold has curtailed the horse's training and also puts in doubt Secretariat's $250,000 match race Sept. 15 at Belmont Park against Riva Ridge, who also belongs to the Meadow Stable.

Secretariat, syndicated for $6.08 million, is scheduled to be retired to stud in November.

Burfeindt Surges To Tourney Win

WADSWORTH, Ill. (AP) — Betty Burfeindt surged from four strokes behind with a closing five-under-par 68 to capture her first 1973 tournament Sunday with a three-stroke victory in a $30,000 Ladies' Professional Golf Association tournament.

Miss Burfeindt, 28, took the $4,500 first-place money with a 212 total, seven under par for the 54 holes.

Miss Burfeindt's 35-33 over the 6,523-yard Midlane Country Club course equalled the record for the par 36-37—73 layout set Saturday by Joyce Kazmierski and vaulted her into second place in the 1973 LPGA money winnings with $42,750.

Tied for second place at 215 were Laura Baugh, 18, making only her sixth pro start, and Debbie Austin, who ballooned to a 75 after earlier rounds of three-under-par 70s.

Gilbert Captures Top Kart Honors

Jim Gilbert of Victoria was the big winner in the Capital City Go-Kart Club's third annual Sprint Enduro at Western Speedway on the weekend.

Gilbert, who won the senior reed lightweight class event and placed second in the senior reed heavyweight race, carried off the Grand Championship Trophy for completing the most laps in any two races. He did 151 laps of the one-mile circuit in two hours.

There were 62 entries from Vancouver Island, the Lower Mainland, Washington and Oregon for the two-day meet, in which drivers raced against the clock with the number of laps completed in an hour deciding placings in each event.

Electronics Win Opener

CAV Electronics won the opening game of a best-of-three city senior "C" women's softball semi-final Monday night by trampling Moose Lodge Loyals 15-4 at Hyacinth Park.

Cosmos and MacDonald's Furniture were tied 1-1 after six innings when darkness forced calling of the other semi-final opener.

The game will be completed prior to the start of the second games tonight at 6:30.

Eagles Pad Lead On 5-Run Spree

Flay Hall's three-run homer and a two-run single by Ferd Pilon provided the winning margin in the seventh inning Monday night as Eagles topped Castaways 10-6 and took a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven Industrial Men's Softball League playoff final at Macdonald Park.

The game was tied 4-4 until the final frame.

Moscow Police Keep Busy Checking Student Athletes

MOSCOW (AP) — About 4,500 athletes from 75 countries made final training preparations today for the World University Games while their Russian hosts struggled with air-tight security and last-minute snarls that threatened to turn the competition into chaos.

Some United States' athletes who had been virtually trapped in the massive Moscow State University building where the competitors were quartered got their credentials straightened out and were allowed to leave the compound.

Foreign reporters and some team officials were barred from the 32-storey Stalinesque building, where security precautions were increased on request of the International Federation of University Sports which feared the possibility of a massacre like that at Munich's Olympic Games.

Police were at every entrance to the building checking credentials and some competitors and officials were irritated by the procedure.

It was expected that most of the problems would be worked out by the time the games open Wednesday.

BID REJECTED

Primo Nebioli of Italy was elected to his sixth two-year term as head of the federation Monday. He immediately announced FISU plans to reject a bid by Waterloo, Ont., to stage the 1975 University Games.

"We would be delighted to have Canada stage the games, but we feel Waterloo is too small," Nebioli said.

The games will be conducted at several Moscow sports facilities, but concentrated in the Lukhniki Sports Centre and its 103,000-seat Lenin Stadium.

Preliminary fencing competition starts Wednesday morning, but the opening ceremony at Lenin Stadium won't be until that evening.

On Thursday, a full schedule of events begins—basketball, wrestling, volleyball, gymnastics, track and field, tennis and fencing.

The diving and swimming events won't be held until the final four days of the games that end Aug. 25.

There was difficulty getting a line on many of the teams participating because of the security precautions and the lack of complete roster.

It seemed clear, however, that the Soviet Union would field strong teams in all events.

Russian gymnasts, led by tiny Olga Korbut, the darling of the Munich Olympic Games, will be difficult to beat although the Japanese will probably have good entries in the competition.

The American team lost John Crosby of New York, who had to undergo an emergency appendicitis operation in Moscow Sunday night. At last report his condition was good.

Detroit Nips Kansas City

'VICTIM' NABBED IN MONTREAL

Black September Hostage 'Hoax'

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montrealer reported Monday being held hostage by Black September Arab terrorists was taken into custody early today by Montreal police and will appear in court Wednesday.

Police said Yves Landry was arrested just after midnight in a west-end Brebeuf Street apartment. Details of the arrest or what charges Landry will face were not made public.

A man claiming to be Landry called an English-language radio station Monday night and said the reports of the Black September action were a "hoax."

The man told CFCF he had never been to Hong Kong where the reports originated. He would not say where he was calling from.

RCMP said earlier that the reports may be a hoax.

They made their statement after calls were made earlier in the day to three newspapers by a man who claimed to be a member of the terrorist group.

The South China Morning Post of Hong Kong, a French-language daily in Beirut, l'Orient-Le Jour, and Montreal-Matin, a French-language tabloid here, all received calls.

The message to the Hong Kong daily said:

"This is Black September. We have a Canadian, Yves Landry, a mercenary, whose home address is 8318 Querbes, Montreal. Born June 18, 1937. International driving licence 358209. If in 48 hours the two Palestinians held in Athens are not freed, Mr. Landry will be liquidated."

A spokesman for the Palestinian Liberation Organization said in Beirut the incident "had been made up."

The caller to CFCF said: "I didn't arrange this hoax but I know who did.

"When I was working at the airport as a maintenance man I met this guy from Europe. He arranged for me to be a gold smuggler from Barcelona to Lebanon."

The caller did not say what airport he meant.

"I went to see my friends at the harbor (he did not say which harbor) and they told me to be careful and not drive both ways. Driving to Lebanon, I'd be carrying gold, but driving to Barcelona I'd be carrying drugs," he said.

"When the guy called from Paris and told me I'd be driving both ways, I told him I wanted out.

"He told me 'You'll be sorry for that'."

The caller said the man knew his birthdate and other information about him and "I'm sure it's this fellow who tried to pull off the hoax."

The call to Hong Kong resulted in a fruitless police check of hotels and apartment houses.

Police checks also proved fruitless in Beirut where the newspaper said the caller, allegedly calling from Hong Kong, had a French-Candian accent.

In Montreal, the Canadian Automobile Association confirmed it had issued the international driving licence number quoted in the call to a man called Yves Landry last Thursday.

Neighbors in the apartment building given as an address could not say where the resident of apartment No. 6 was.

Police said a check of airlines gave no indication that any passenger named Yves Landry left Canada for Hong Kong since last Thursday, when the international driving permit was issued in his name.

INQUEST ADJOURNED IN LANGFORD DEATH

An inquest into the death of a Langford man killed last week in a motorcycle-truck collision has been adjourned until Sept. 10.

Anthony Jacobs, 19, of 5958 Sooke Road, was killed on the Pat Bay Highway at Tanner Road. A passenger on the motorcycle, Juan Rodriguez, 25, of Vancouver, is still in Royal Jubilee Hospital with a broken jaw and internal injuries.

The inquest, conducted by Victoria coroner Edmond St. Jorre, started Monday night.

Ireland Split On Spy Issue

DUBLIN (Reuter) — An espionage affair that has already threatened Anglo-Irish relations has caused a domestic political row in the Irish republic.

Former premier Jack Lynch said Monday night he has forgotten about information given him last January by Britain concerning spying activities by two English brothers then accused of a Dublin bank robbery.

The brothers, Kenneth and Keith Littlejohn, who have received lengthy prison sentences for the robbery, maintain that they were working on instructions from British intelligence to infiltrate and discredit the Irish Republican Army.

Lynch said that while in government he had no knowledge of British complicity in the Littlejohn case.

However, the coalition government of Premier Liam Cosgrave, which took over from Lynch's Fianna Fail in March, Monday night produced evidence to the contrary.

A statement said British authorities informed the Irish ambassador in London Jan. 3 of the government's connections with the Littlejohns, saying they were to supply information on the IRA but were not authorized to carry out any illegal activity.

Lynch said later he wanted to "frankly admit" that he forgot about a meeting with an official from the department of foreign affairs when the document was handed to him.

'Full-Fledged Junkies' at 10

TORONTO (CP) — A drug consultant for schools in the borough of North York said Monday he has found "fully fledged junkies" in Grades 4 and 6.

Martien Coffeng, special programs consultant for the North York Board of Education, told a seminar at the Addiction Research Foundation that there are also "fully fledged alcoholics aged 15 to 17."

He said despite reports to the contrary, drug use in Metropolitan Toronto schools has not declined.

Coffeng said that although some politicians claim that by lowering the drinking age to 18, young people switched from drugs to alcohol, this was really not the case. Instead some students were merely adding alcohol to the chemicals they use.

Coffeng said there are few heroin addicts in the schools because "few dope addicts can hack it in school."

In one school he said 12 to 15 "junkies" were expelled for a variety of reasons.

However, he said there are up to 20 drug crisis cases in North York schools every month.

Dr. Wendi Thomas, a London Physician, blamed the medical profession for a large portion of prescription drug misuses.

She described one patient who obtained, in one year, 97 prescriptions for a tranquillizer from 22 doctors.

Dr. Thomas said doctors have a false sense of security about tranquillizers and prescribe them too freely in large amounts.

She warned that tranquilizers are more dangerous than doctors have been told and people can become addicted to them.

SCRAWLED MAP HINTS MORE BODIES BURIED

HOUSTON (UPI) — An East Texas sheriff said today a hand-scrawled map of possible new gravesites and "many other items of evidence" had been found in a cabin used by a homosexual bachelor accused of killing at least 27 young boys in the worst mass murder in modern U.S. history.

San Augustine County Sheriff John Hoyt said the map pinpointed several locations in the San Jacinto National Forest in southeast Texas. The sheriff would not say if officers would begin digging for more bodies in the map area.

Hoyt, in Houston to confer with Texas Rangers on the case, said the map, shovels, a sheath of plastic body bags, three pairs of gloves — one tinted with lime — and a partially used sack of quicklime were found at the cabin near Lake Sam Rayburn owned by the father of Dean Allen Corll, 33.

Houston police chief Herman Short disclosed Monday that a "torture board" — the item allegedly used by Corll to strap down his victims to torture and kill them — was found in the cabin.

All the victims were teen-aged boys allegedly procured by Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, for Corll.

Meanwhile, Henley begged his lawyer for a way to stay out of jail Monday after a brief court appearance attended by his tearful mother and grandmother.

"The police have treated him fine," defence lawyer Charles Melder told the judge. "But the prisoners have been verbally abusing him. He should be in an isolation cell."

The judge refused to issue an order but District Attorney Carol Vance said he talked with the sheriff's office and it was decided that Henley would be put in an isolation cell.

3RD TIME LUCKY IN ARREST BID

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Steve Beckwith, 29, of Toronto tried twice to get himself arrested, but the police just wouldn't oblige him. The third time they did.

Beckwith pleaded guilty in provincial court Monday to a wilful damage charge and was given an absolute discharge by Judge Mark Girard.

His first attempt at being arrested ended in failure. He asked a policeman to arrest him as a vagrant, not knowing that this infraction has been taken out of the Criminal Code.

Beckwith then hired a taxi to drive him to the police station where he refused to pay the fare. A kindly desk sergeant talked the taxi driver out of prosecuting.

Still determined, Beckwith waited on a street corner until a police cruiser stopped for a red light. He sprinted across the street to a service station lot and began heaving potted plants on to the road. When the cruiser pulled on to the lot, Beckwith climbed into the back seat and told the officer:

"Now you have got to arrest me."

He added: "Do I get breakfast in the morning?"

Assistant Crown attorney David McGarry said Beckwith was released on a promise to appear in court. Beckwirth told court he never did get breakfast but borrowed a dime to call his wife who came and got him.

Not Guilty Plea In $1.3M Fraud

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Marie Cote, treasurer of the Quebec Deposit and Investment Fund, pleaded not guilty Monday to eight charges in connection with an alleged $1.3-million fraud involving the fund, which invests Quebec pension plan contributions.

Cote, 52, appeared before Judge Roger Savard of sessions court to hear the charges. He will be held in jail until Thursday for a bail hearing.

Cote, arrested Sunday night, was charged with two counts of misappropriation of funds. The charges involve cheques for $750,000 and $625,000 dated March 8 and July 26, respectively.

The cheques were drawn on the fund and cashed by a branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale.

A spokesman for the fund said the victimized bank has been asked to reimburse the money on grounds the cheques were fraudulent.

The cheques were in favor of Adimcoma Ltd. and Gestion Laurentienne Ltee, not further identified in the complaints.

Two charges of forgery were laid against Cote, alleging he added the name of P. Arbour on the cheques as co-signer.

Two charges of uttering the cheques and two of conspiracy with a man named Jean-Marcel Gauthier, not further identified, also were laid against Cote.

The various charges carry penalties ranging between 10 to 14 years.

Further A-Leaks Likely

OLYMPIA (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission admits further leaks of radioactive wastes are likely at its Hanford Reservation, but say they present no danger.

The commission made a sophisticated, lengthy presentation in defence of its Hanford operations at a public meeting Monday but drew criticism from state ecology director John Biggs for taking the dangers of leaks too lightly.

Biggs also lashed the AEC for failing to show enough responsibility in the recent leak which poured 115,000 gallons of highly radioactive liquid nuclear waste into the ground.

He called for regular reports to his office whenever a leak occurs.

The AEC presentation included extensive and often technical slides, graphs and movies showing what the commission said proved that nuclear contamination by Hanford has not adversely affected the Columbia River, groundwater, the air, or foods.

The average citizen gets less harmful radiation from Hanford operations than from a transcontinental airplane trip or a two-week vacation in the mineral-rich Denver area, one witness said.

"Sure, there has been contamination," said Alex Fleming, deputy manager of the Richland Operations Office.

"But there has been no danger to the public. The system has proved itself, but no doubt there will be more challenges. Management of 570 square miles of real estate is no easy task."

He said there have been 16 leaks in the aging 151 storage tanks at Hanford since 1958 and that more can be expected.

The steel lining in the concrete-and-steel vaults corodes, he said.

New Zealand Not Out 'To Undersell Canada'

"He's a terrific guy," said Premier Barrett, dashing away from an informal discussion with Kirk following a government luncheon at The Empress.

Kirk stopped in Victoria as a courtesy after being picked up in Vancouver by one of the provincial government's new turbo-prop executive aircraft in Vancouver. Kirk's party flew from the east after the Commonwealth prime ministers conference.

The prime minister said he was "interested in developing trade with Canada, particularly this part of Canada," in the light of Britain's new European Economic Community affiliation.

He hoped Canada and the U.S. would help make up for the loss of UK butter and meat sales because of EEC commitments, and noted that Canada and New Zealand had already renewed Commonwealth preference for dairy products, mainly butter.

"But we won't be out to undermine Canadian industry," Kirk added, drawing on a cold beer in his hotel suite.

New Zealand buys machinery, fertilizer, iron, steel and aluminum products from Canada and has been landing quantities of beef and lamb at Vancouver. More North American emphasis on lamb is expected.

Unlike many overseas prospects, New Zealand buys no pulp and paper and little timber from B.C. Instead, B.C. industry has been selling logging equipment and mill machinery for the native NZ forest industry.

Kirk said although agricultural products have been the mainstay of New Zealand exports, manufactured goods are catching up. He said they are still interested in buying from Canada such items as industrial goods and chemical plant equipment.

There are similarities with Canadian situations in New Zealand, including control over foreign investment and absentee land ownership.

"We don't mind Americans, Canadians, or even English people buying land — if they are willing to settle and be part of the country," Kirk said.

Foreign investors are able to hold a maximum 24.9 per cent of the equity capital of industrial ventures, which have traditionally interested British firms.

Now there are also U.S., Japanese and Australian partnerships.

"Like Canadians, we like to think we own our resources," the prime minister said.

Referring to the disillusionment of some Canadian immigrants to New Zealand, Kirk said:

"It's a different life. More people are more secure than in many countries." But the way of doing things may be substantially different, for instance Saturday closure, which Kirk said can be "irksome."

"The main consideration was a five-day, 40-hour week in which people could have leisure." New Zealanders realized "the cash register is not the cure . . .

"We hear now about people recapturing what we haven't lost, and if they want to work in New Zealand they can." (Unemployment — unknown in the country for 30 years — is at less than ¼ of 1 per cent.)

The more adventuresome tend to move west, as in North America. But "they come to New Zealand and find it's not a frontier after all," Kirk said.

Burning Rectal Itch Relieved In Minutes

One of the most common afflictions is a condition known as "Itching Piles." It is most embarrassing for the sufferer during the day and especially aggravating at night.

If you want satisfactory relief—here's good news. A renowned research laboratory has found a unique healing substance with the ability to promptly relieve the burning itch and pain. It actually shrinks hemorrhoids. This substance has been shown to produce a most effective rate of healing. Its germ-killing properties also help prevent infection.

In one hemorrhoid case after another "very striking improvement" was reported. This improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions.

All this was accomplished by a healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—developed by a world-renowned research institution. This substance is now obtainable in ointment or suppository form known as Preparation H. Ask for Preparation H Suppositories (convenient to carry if away from home) or Preparation H Ointment with special applicator. Available at all drug counters. Satisfaction or your money refunded.

WATERGATE:

Other Nations Feel the Ripples, But Most Still Support Nixon

New York Times

WASHINGTON — A worldwide survey by correspondents of The New York Times in the last week has indicated that although foreign leaders and public figures now seem to take the Watergate scandals more seriously than they did a few months ago, the affair has not so far cut deeply into their widespread support for Nixon's course in foreign policy.

Nor does their concern thus far match the apprehension voiced in Washington. Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's adviser on national security, and other administration officials have openly expressed foreboding recently that if Watergate seriously weakens Nixon's standing at home over a long period, foreign confidence in the implementation of Nixon's foreign policy goals will inevitably be undermined.

A similar survey was conducted by the Times in May and the response then showed that overseas criticism of Nixon was light and that foreign relations did not appear to have suffered any significant damage. At that time, American officials seemed more confident than they do now that Watergate could be isolated from foreign affairs.

Since May, criticism of Nixon seems to have increased abroad, particularly in regard to his refusal to turn over the White House tapes.

Among the major conclusions drawn from the study are the following:

—A chief focus of concern is that Congress will pre-empt the president's powers in foreign policy. This is particularly disconcerting in western Europe where the allies fear a unilateral Congressional cut in the American force in Europe. This currently totals about 310,000 troops. It is also true in South Vietnam where President Nguyen Van Thieu has expressed concern about congress cutting back on foreign aid to his country.

—Although Watergate is taken more seriously now than in May, Soviet and Chinese leaders have continued to order their media to ignore Watergate as much as possible. Neither Peking nor Moscow wants to tarnish Nixon's image since they have both based their foreign policies on good relations with his Administration. The Russians have printed only a few, noncritical reports, while the Chinese have not mentioned Watergate at all.

—There has been no sign that Watergate has crippled any on-going negotiations or otherwise set black normal diplomatic business. Nixon, in fact, has seemed to go out of his way to meet foreign leaders in this period including Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet Communist party leader; the Shah of Iran; Premier Kakuei Tanaka of Japan; Prime Minister Gough Whitlam of Australia, and President Bernard Bongo of Gabon.

—Despite the cloud over Nixon's reputation, he still plans to make a major European trip sometime this fall or, if preliminary negotiations are not finished, early next year. And there has been no indication that any of the European countries want to withdraw the welcome mat.

A brief nation-by-nation rundown follows:

AUSTRALIA

Watergate has had no discernible effect on relations with the U.S. — but Nixon has come under increased criticism in the press, particularly his refusal to turn over the White House tapes.

BRAZIL

Brazilian officials and press have kept a discreet silence about Watergate, due largely to the long tradition of alliance with the U.S. and the fact that the U.S. is Brazil's biggest customer and investor.

BRITAIN

British officials have probably been more concerned about Watergate than any other ally, but this concern has had no apparent effect on day-to-day diplomatic business.

CANADA

Opinion makers seem more and more revolted with the Watergate revelations and it is hard to find any public defence of Nixon. A common Canadian attitude was expressed recently by a banker in Montreal who said: "We never understood why you people elected Nixon in the first place. He's not a Canadian type at all." Ironically, the over-all image of the U.S. has seemed to strengthen because of the role of the press.

FRANCE

Although the government avoids all comment, officials privately acknowledge that Watergate is being carefully analyzed, including a search for clues on where it will lead. So far, however, the search has been frustrating, and Franco-American relations are continuing normally. Nixon's image has been tarnished somewhat, but there is also some tendency among commentators to sympathize with him as a "victim" of the electronic age or of modern idealistic expectations.

INDIA

Indian officials and others seem to have lost interest in the affair. There has been scant editorial comment and Nixon, in general, has been supported in not turning over the White House tapes.

JAPAN

Japanese officials continue to give the impression that the Watergate scandal has affected their attitudes toward the U.S. marginally. Some commentators have expressed concern about the relative weakening of the president in his relations with Congress.

LEBANON

In this centre of the Arab world, Nixon's image has hit rock bottom, but not so much over Watergate as over last month's American veto in the United Nation's Security Council of an anti-Israeli resolution.

Some Arab intellectuals view the veto as a sign that Nixon was so weakened by Watergate that he had to veto to prove his foreign policy had not changed.

SOVIET UNION

Soviet officials and journalists who were slow to take Watergate seriously at first now realize it is a major scandal. They appear increasingly worried that any loss of stature or power by Nixon will be translated into a loss for Brezhnev's detente policy because the Soviet leader has tied that policy so closely to his relations with Nixon.

All these comments have been made privately. Virtually all news about Watergate has been suppressed in the Soviet media.

Russians, even some of the most sophisticated, do not understand the American system well. They are uneasy about the new assertiveness of Congress and an aggressive press. They prefer to deal with a neat, solidified, and more unified White House.

SOUTH VIETNAM

There has been very little interest in the merits of Watergate, but there has been serious concern about how Watergate will affect Nixon's power and hence his program of strong support for Saigon.

$26 MILLION FOR CHOPPERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight transport helicopters costing nearly $26 million have been bought for the Canadian Forces, Supply Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer announced.

The Boeing Vertol Chinooks, made in Philadelphia, have a cruising speed of more than 150 miles an hour and a capacity of 14 tons. Delivery is expected next summer.

The cost of the machines does not include spares or ancillary equipment, expected to add several million dollars to the bill.

Two Kennedys Crash Car —With Five Girls

KENNEDY

HEATH
. . . at the races

HYANNIS, Mass. — Two sons of the late Senator Robert Kennedy escaped serious injury when the open car driven by one of them overturned on a winding and hilly highway. One of the five girls riding with them was seriously hurt.

David Kennedy, 18, suffered a possible sprained back when the car driven by his brother Joseph Kennedy, 20, flipped over Monday afternoon on Nantucket Island. Nantucket police said Joseph was issued a citation for operating a motor vehicle negligently.

VANCOUVER — Xaviera Hollander, author of the best-seller The Happy Hooker, has been remanded to Nov. 7 on a charge of theft under $200.

Hollander, 29, is alleged to have shoplifted three nightgowns from a Vancouver department store on June 8. She is free on $100 bail.

LONDON — Prime Minister Edward Heath sailed off the southern coast of Ireland Monday competing for the Admiral's Cup, which determines world supremacy in ocean racing. The frigate Jaguar accompanied the racers, but a British defence ministry official denied reports that its purpose was to thwart any possible attack on the prime minister by the Irish Republican Army.

But art critics from the Toledo police department were quick to review his work, splattered as it was all over one of the city's main streets.

The police art critics added texture to the work, unloading a truckload of sand on it.

Corvair Value Soars, as Antique

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Corvair lives—as a collector's item.

The resurgence of interest in the cars has produced a mini-industry of sorts in restoration and modification of Corvairs. A club here, the Corvair Society of America (CORSA), has 1,800 members.

Missing from the membership, of course, is Ralph Nader, the consumer advocate who almost singlehandedly made an orphan of the General Motors model by contending it is unsafe.

When production stopped four years ago, the car was an outcast. Now its value is increasing.

There's even talk of opening a Corvair museum. So far $100 and a car have been contributed.

Sales of the Corvair, which peaked at 317,389 cars in 1963 and still exceeded 200,000 in 1965, plunged to 86,211 in 1966, a year after the publication of Nader's book, Unsafe at Any Speed. Sales continued to decline until GM halted production May 14, 1969, about 10 years after Corvair was introduced.

About 1.7 million Corvairs were built in the 10 years. About 550,000 are still in use.

Nader's chief allegation was that Corvairs had a tendency to roll over on a sharp turn, even at speeds under 30 miles an hour. Last year, the U.S. transportation department issued the results of a two-year study that showed Corvairs cited by Nader were at least as safe as similar models sold at that time.

CORSA is headed by John Jackson, 25, of Anaheim, Calif. He has two Corvairs, as do most CORSA members.

Some own even more. A Madison, Wis., man is said to have 90 stored on his farm as an investment.

The course requires the sharp turns that Nader said can cause Corvairs to roll over. Although winners of such races often average 45 miles an hour, cars never roll over, club members say. They maintain a Corvair is as safe as any car on the road if the driver knows what he is doing and maintains his car properly.

Cough Spray Makers Queried on Hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has ordered all drug companies in the United States to submit lists of products containing trichloroethane and proposed rigid restrictions on future uses of the chemical linked to the deaths of 21 persons who inhaled it from aerosol cough remedies.

Most of the deaths are believed to have been due to misuse or outright abuse, an FDA spokesman said.

About 300,000 cans of six cough sprays were recalled in July following the death of a five-year-old Ohio girl.

Companies have 30 days to submit lists of products containing trichloroethane and to comment on the FDA proposal to declare the substance not generally recognized as safe for products intended to be inhaled.

The FDA said the industry reporting order is the first use of a provision of the 1972 Drug Listing Act which requires firms to identify products containing any ingredient believed hazardous to health.

Trichloroethane has been used in aerosol cough remedies as a solvent for active ingredients and to reduce vapor pressure of the propellant, the FDA said. When inhaled it acts as an anesthetic and disrupts normal heartbeat more readily than chloroform, the agency added.

OUTDOOR SITE FOR THEATRE

A week-long theatre workshop for people of all ages will be held at Strathcona Park Lodge near Campbell River Aug. 26 to Sept. 1.

The workshop, presented by Theatre I of Vancouver, is an addition to the regular environmental programs sponsored by the lodge's Outdoor Education Centre.

The lodge was hit by fire last spring but the main building which burned down has been replaced by a large building.

The object of the workshop is to produce a small comedy at the end of the week as well as to teach the development of theatrical skills such as lighting, mask-making, improvisations, mime and free form.

The entire Theatre I company will attend the workshop and as many as 40 people can be accommodated at the session.

GROCERIES GUARDED

OTTAWA (CP) — Loblaws Groceterias Co. Ltd., has organized a special security squad to catch shoppers trying to beat the high cost of food by stealing.

The company says it formed the squad because rising costs have made food an increasingly popular target for shoplifters.

Joseph Klein, Loblaws' vice-president in charge of security, said about one in 50 customers shoplift and that the average take is worth between $1.50 and $1.90. About one in 10 shoplifters are caught.

Twice as many women as men shoplift and four out of five thieves are between 18 and 45.

Deepwater Port Sought by Nome

NOME, Alaska (AP) — Nome officials have asked a U.S. Senate subcommittee for help in obtaining funds to build a deep-water port they say will dramatically reduce the cost of living in northwest Alaska.

The testimony came at the subcommittee's hearing in Nome, one of the many stops planned by the group on its current tour of the state. Senator Mike Gravel of Alaska is chairman of the subcommittee.

The development of the deep water port, officials said, would also spur economic development for the entire northwest region of the state.

Nome businessman Don Perkins told the group that freight rates from Seattle to Nome are 500 per cent higher than rates from Seattle to Anchorage, a fact that pushed the cost of living 30 to 40 per cent higher than that in Anchorage.

Lumber is twice as costly in Nome as in Anchorage, Perkins said, and cement and insulation cost three times more to ship than they cost wholesale in Seattle.

Officials of the Lost River Mining Co. also testified at the hearing, and told of the need for a deep-water port at the site of their proposed mining development about 100 miles north of Anchorage.

Water Detectives Work on Grant

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — An Opportunities for Youth grant of $10,580 has produced a breakthrough for a persistent problem in Northern Ontario —drinking water that mysteriously turns black during hot spells.

The project was suggested by the Ontario Water Resources Commission, which estimated that $50,000 would have been spent if its specialists had done the searching for samples of black water.

The OFY project sent eight students from the Notre Dame campus of Cambrian College into the wilds to collect black water samples.

Project worker Dan Bourgeois said the search ranged from the upper Vermillion River to Coniston Creek, the Wahnapitae River and the lower Onaping River and yielded 20 samples of black water.

"It's almost as if someone dumped a dye into the water," the student said.

Another worker, Brian Kent, analyzed samples of the strange water in the college chemistry laboratory and found "a lot of things about the phenomenon of black water that are really weird."

Kent analyzed samples containing copper, nickel, calcium, magnesium and cobalt. Several samples containing bacteria were turned over to health authorities.

Final results offering an explanation for the phenomenon and its impact on the potability of future water sources will be released by the OWRC at the end of the summer.

International Flavor Hallmark of CNE

TORONTO (CP) — Performers and exhibits from Russia, Fiji, Scotland and the United States will bring an international flavor again this year to the Canadian National Exhibition (CNE) which opens Wednesday and runs to Sept. 3.

A Soviet display, featuring four shiploads of electronic equipment, furs, textiles, jewelry and handicrafts, replaces China's spot last year in the 63,000-square-foot international pavilion.

Firewalkers from Fiji, appearing for the first time in North America, will perform in a circular pit lined with stones.

And from Scotland, hundreds of pipers and dancers will return this year for the Scottish World Festival, Aug. 16-19. It includes a nightly tattoo and begins with a parade through Toronto streets.

The festival, which Howard Tate, CNE assistant general manager, says will become as famous an international attraction as New Orleans' Mardi Gras within five years, last year drew 120,000 in four nights.

Overall attendance at the 1972 exhibition, under the first-year management of 33-year-old David Garrick, reached a record of more than 3.5 million during a 20-day run.

Despite the international flavor to this second fair, the general manager countered criticism earlier this year that Canadian talent was overlooked, with the statement that 90 to 95 per cent of all performers hired are Canadian.

This year's fair, operating on a $5.4 million budget, also boasts a new geometric red and purple maple leaf symbol and will mark the RCMP's 100th birthday in opening ceremonies.

MAKES FIRST CUT

RCMP commissioner William Higgett will make the first cut in a 5,000-piece cake, marking the opening of the exhibition.

CNE officials say they will continue last year's policy of including free admission to Ontario Place in the price of a CNE ticket.

The provincial-government-built showplace will also house nightly CNE fireworks displays, a three-times daily marine show and will be near the takeoff point for about 100 planes from the U.S., England and Canada in the international air show Aug. 31 to Sept. 3.

Grandstand attractions will include internationally-known performers Tom Jones, Charlie Pride, Sonny and Cher and The Guess Who.

Safety Aims Focus on Highrise

Ladders reach six storeys

Victoria Times
FOURTH SECTION
family

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Highrise tenants sometimes call the Victoria Fire Department to find out how many storeys are within reach of aerial ladders.

Accounts of people trapped in burning buildings out of reach of rescue equipment have made many top-storey tenants wonder if the view is worth the risk.

In actual fact, highrise residents run less risk from fire than families in single dwellings or smaller buildings. Highrise residential apartments must conform to strict safety standards in the National Building Code.

The code defines a highrise as any building which can't be reached easily by aerial ladders. This means any building more than six-storeys high because ladders become unstable after six or seven storeys.

And in any case, most civilians would refuse to climb out on a ladder a hundred feet above the ground.

Some tenants have wondered why sprinkler systems are not installed throughout highrise, residential apartments. At present sprinklers are only required by law in such areas as boiler rooms, uncompartmentalized offices, top-storey restaurants or places where hazardous substances are stored.

However, Victoria Fire Department officials don't think sprinklers currently on the market would justify the cost of installation.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said the systems now in use were designed for industry 75 years ago, are expensive and require their own water supply.

He will wait for results of current research before recommending sprinklers for the residential areas in highrises.

Simmons points out that a smoldering mattress—one of the commonest types of fire—would not generate enough heat to activate sprinklers. And neither would a child who set himself on fire.

This type of fire, however, would be picked up instantly by one of the fire detection systems required for highrise apartments. These systems react to particles of smoke in the air, the rate of heat rise or sudden changes in air pressure and sound fire alarms.

The fire chief says highrise tenants are safer than people in single family dwellings because of the built-in fire protection required by the building code. (There are fewer single-family dwellings than apartment units in Victoria.)

Highrises must have fire resistent layers between storeys, two stairwells on exterior walls and separated from corridors by fireproof doors, fire separation doors in corridors and solid-core doors leading into individual apartments.

They must also have emergency lighting run by batteries or a generator, water filled stand pipes and hoses on each floor and fire extinguishers as strategic locations such as garbage shutes and laundry rooms.

And under the code, the taller the building the greater the amount of fire resistance built into the structure. Fire resistance ratings run from 45 minutes to two hours and give firemen a known amount of time during which the building will remain standing.

Interior furnishings such as rugs and panelling must conform to flame-spread regulations. Flame spread is the speed at which the flame front travels across a material.

Deputy Chief Carl Coates says 99 per cent of residential fires involve interior furnishings. And with some of the new synthetics in use today, the smoke from a small fire can be deadly.

"Small fires that produce dense smoke are deadly," Coates said. "Most victims die of smoke inhalation rather than burns."

Highrises built since 1970 have separate venting systems for each floor so that smoke cannot concentrate several floors above the fire in what firemen call "the stacking affect."

They must also have enunciator panels which indicate the fire location, voice communication systems linking all areas in the building and elevators which automatically return to the lobby when a fire alarm sounds.

In the past people have died because heat from a fire warped electronic call buttons and summoned elevators to the fire floor. When the doors open the fresh supply of oxygen causes a flashback to the interior of the elevator, doors warp open and passengers are either killed or badly burned.

Elevators are now built to return to the lobby and disconnect from automatic controls. They can be operated manually by firemen to transport residents or equipment.

Because of this Coates would like to see fire fighting equipment stored at several levels in highrises. He would also like "safe areas of refuge" built on every second or third floor. These areas would be safe no matter what happened to the rest of the building.

Chief Fire Prevention Officer Arthur Leason points out that safety devices are useless unless they are properly maintained.

Apartment buildings are also inspected regularly to make sure equipment is in working order and fire safety regulations obeyed.

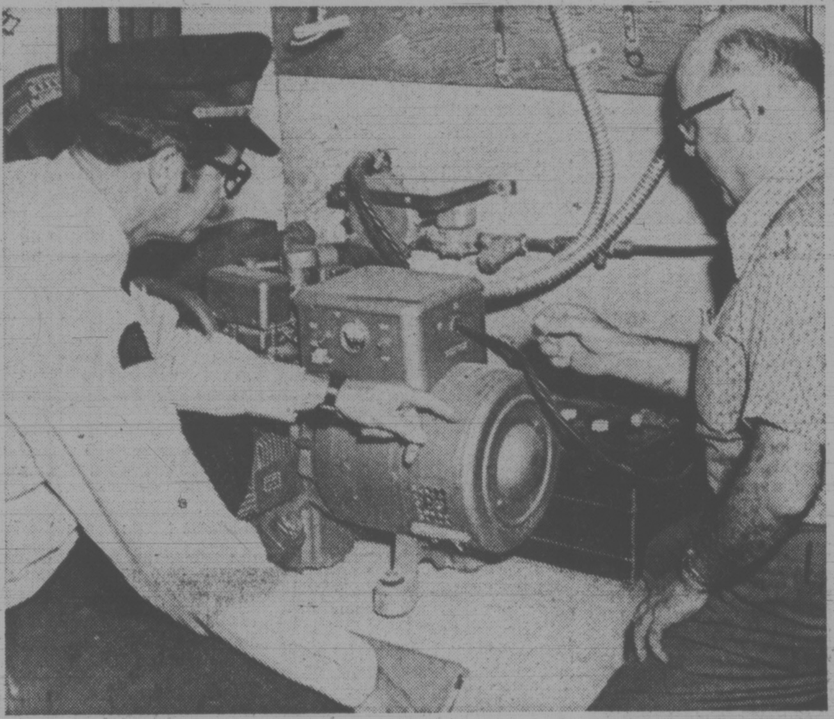
Unfortunately, the department can do nothing to eliminate the main cause of fire—human carelessness.

"We would have to eliminate people to eliminate fire."



LT. DICK WARNER of Victoria fire department inspects emergency water pump in basement of James Bay highrise. Pump can generate own power, or run on hydro if it is not cut during a fire emergency.

Hydrant pokes through roof

Open Area Class Labelled Inferior

WINNIPEG (CI) — Children don't learn to read as well in open-area classrooms as they do in traditional classrooms with walls, says the interim research report of two Winnipeg clinical psychologists.

In fact, the report states, putting school beginners into open-area classrooms increases the number of children with reading problems.

The report, prepared by Anne Bell and Fred Switzer of the Child Development Clinic at the health sciences centre, is based on a study of two classes in the same suburban middle-class area of Winnipeg.

In an interview, Switzer said all children should begin school in tradtiional classrooms, although some could be shifted to open-area classes when they reach grade 4.

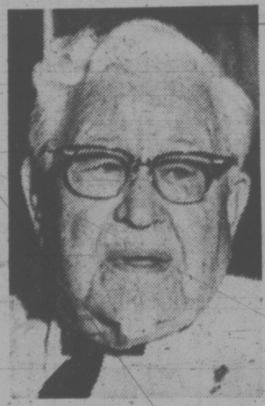
"I expect some kids should never be in open area," he added. "Some are easily distracted and have a short attention span."

Although Bell and Switzer say the provincial education department has refused to finance the project on the grounds it is not pertinent, the project has at least one school superintendent worried.

Peter Coleman, the new superintendent of the St. Boniface school division, says he supports the concept of open-area education in primary grades, but adds that the research could force the idea to be abandoned.

"It's extremely important research, and they are extremely competent people," he said.

Colonel Sanders Invades Japan



SANDERS
. . . many outlets

TOKYO (UPI) — In front of a little red and white shop in a Tokyo suburb, a statue of Col. Sanders proclaims the delights of southern fried chicken to Japanese pedestrians in a narrow, oriental street.

Half a block away, a McDonald's hamburger stand, golden arches and all, is tucked into the ground floor of a railroad station, with elevated trains to two key commuter lines thundering overhead.

Kentucky Fried Chicken Japan Ltd., has the most outlets. Starting in 1970 with a single store at Nagoya, 180 miles west of Tokyo, the firm now operates 76 chicken shops. Sixty per cent of them are in the Tokyo-Yokohama area.

"We hope to have 300 stores by the end of 1976, with at least one in each of Japan's 48 provinces," says Shohei Tomita, the firm''s executive president.

In sales volume, McDonald's appears to be largest. Akira Sato, advertising manager for McDonald's Japan Ltd., says it grossed five billion yen (slightly less than $20 million) in 1972.

With the help of an $800,000 budget for television advertising in 1973, McDonald's target is 50 outlets by the end of the year.

Kentucky Fried Chicken Japan Ltd., reported gross sales of around three billion yen ($12.5 million) for the 1972-73 fiscal year.

A-W root beer, Dairy Queen and at least two American doughnut companies also are in the Japanese field, on a smaller but growing scale.

In America the quick meal firms mostly operate from drive-in restaurants. In Japan, the customers come on foot. Parking lots are out of the question in a country with some of the highest land prices in the world.

Man Beats Monkey Bug

Mary Leger Wipes brow of husband Rick after rare recovery

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — There are only 24 known human cases of herpes-simial B virus, a very rare and deadly disease transmitted by monkeys.

Twenty of the victims have died and three were left with permanent and severe nerve damage. Only one has pulled through with no serious lingering affects.

"Very definitely it was a miracle," Leger said this week after returning to part-time work at the centre.

"I do think it was the prayers of my wife and family and our friends in the area," he added.

It was not known when Leger, who has worked with the school's collection of monkeys since 1965, first was exposed to the disease.

He began to show symptoms of paralysis Friday, April 13. Within days he stopped breathing and was connected to a machine respirator.

While Leger was hospitalized, Dr. Carlos Espana, a virologist at the university, and other medical authorities searched to find the cause of the illness, finally narrowing it to the monkey virus. Espana said the disease is common among Asian monkeys and causes them only small sores on their lips.

Throughout May, Leger slipped in and out of a coma, while his wife, Mary, 25, remained at his side. Slowly he began to recover. He was able to breath on his own by mid-June, only to be stricken with pneumonia.

Finally last month he was able to leave the hospital and is now back at work.

"I could see but that's all I could do," Leger said of his experience. "I don't remember a thing for a month because of the paralysis."

He said he felt "pretty weak at this time and it will take time to get my strength back."

But he added, "I feel really lucky."

Barbecue Pit Pitfalls

Being a bit skittish in the kitchen myself, I am always delighted when my husband decides to barbecue outdoors.

While I am basically all in favor of sexual equality, I would no more clamor to learn how to barbecue a chicken than I would dream of seeking instruction in cleaning a spark plug. If someone attempted to teach me, I would close my eyes, put my fingers in my ears, and hum "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend" loudly over and over until they became discouraged and left.

Outdoor barbecuing is man's work. If I were careless enough to lose my ignorance of the art of outdoor barbecuing, it would just pave the way for a whole wealth of unwanted responsibility.

"What do you mean, you can't rewire the widget on the generator? You learned how to barbecue a chicken, didn't you?"

Barbecuing a piece of meat seems to bolster a man's ego, possiblity recalling the primitive pleasure felt by a cave man after foraging for his mate. Actually, of course, I generally do the foraging in the supermarket. But it does take quite a bit of strength to wrest a dozen hot dogs from a pliofilm bag with your bare teeth.

Last night my husband wet his forefinger, held it aloft, scrutinized cloud formations, then set the grill down with a positive thunk, causing one of its tripod legs to buckle. Five pounds of charcoal briquets began rolling down the driveway, followed closely by a wizened two-pound chicken, which flopped end over end into the street and was promptly run over by a passing car.

"You killed our chicken!" my husband bellowed, shaking his fist ineffectually as they drove on, lemon-honey glaze adorning one whitewall. "Maybe you'd better do the barbecuing," he said glumly.

"Don't be silly. I couldn't possibly learn how," I replied, fluttering my eyelashes as I handed him a package of hot dogs. "I'll bet you can open these with your teeth."

Meat, Fruit Mix Gift of Tropics

By MARY MOORE

If you have had a Caribbean holiday you probably will be familiar with meat dishes combined with fruits.

Our Caribbean Chicken, today's featured recipe, calls for bananas and prunes. It is rich and fruity and makes an excellent meat dish for a dinner party for eight.

CARIBBEAN CHICKEN
(serves 8)

2 frying chickens (2½ lbs.) each cut into quarters
3 tbsp. butter or margarine
½ c. chopped onion
1 garlic clove chopped
½ c. dry white wine
2 c. tomatoes
1 chicken bouillon cube
1½ tbsp. soy sauce
1 bay leaf
1 tbsp. sugar
1 tsp. thyme
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. paprika
1 c. dry pitted prunes
1 c. mashed ripe bananas
3 underripe bananas cut into 1 inch chunks

In a very large frying pan saute the eight chicken quarters in the butter or margarine until brown on all sides. Remove from pan and set aside.

Add onion and garlic to pan and saute 1 minute. Now add wine, tomatoes, bouillon cube, soy sauce, bay leaf, sugar, thyme, salt, paprika and prunes. Bring to boil, return chicken pieces to pan, cover, reduce heat to simmer and cook about 25 minutes or until chicken is tender. Transfer chicken pieces to preheated platter. Fish out bay leaf. Add mashed banana and chunked banana to frying pan. Heat through stirring constantly. Pour over chicken pieces and serve.

Very different and delicious.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): One at top may be tied up in legal mess. Know it and plan accordingly. Depending too much on promises would be error. See situation as it exists. Fine contact will brighten your life. Be open to vital suggestion. Leo, Aquarius persons might be involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Study Aries message. Take time to perceive long-range prospects. Don't give up something of value for mere sensation. You can teach and learn. One who seems concerned is sincere. Be receptive without being gullible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Highlight versatility. There is more than one way to achieve goal. Know it and act accordingly. Sagittarius, Gemini persons figure prominently. Accent is on money needed to cement transaction. Protect interests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be thorough. Wait for information — discard hearsay. Legal procedures require meticulous care — don't rush. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons could be in picture. What you need may temporarily be withheld. But ultimate success is indicated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New, more creative approach to health, work questions may be overdue. Open dialogue with vibrant, slightly unorthodox person who has been vying for your attention. If you are a good listener, you will learn and benefit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Love, understanding can be achieved if you give yourself half a chance. Family member could play key role. Taurus, Libra persons are likely to be involved. Don't attempt to buy approval. Instead, earn what you get — and you can obtain plenty during this cycle.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be drawn in two directions. One path sees you taking necessary and practical steps. The other course finds you a victim of wishful thinking. Obviously, it now is more necessary than usual to face facts about property, costs, joint efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be surprised as result of special, closed-door meeting. Key now is to maintain dignity, aplomb. You are being tested. Applies to both professional and personal life. Older individual wants to know if you can take on additional responsibility.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Friend could make move which is costly — to you. Avoid becoming inextricably involved. Refuse to be "leaned on" by one who is trying to get out of legitimate obligation. Insist on collateral. Know your own worth.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Individual who has position of authority may be confused. Be independent. State views and requirements. Make meanings crystal clear. Leo, Aquarius persons might figure in prominent roles. Adhere to basic principles.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are musical, artistic, have unusual voice, tend to go overboard where sweets are concerned, draw to you many born under Libra and Taurus. October will be one of your most significant months of this year. You are affectionate, somewhat selfish or self-centred, but basically generous as long as spotlight doesn't leave you for too long a time.

Machine-Washable Kilt A Boon to Sassenachs

LONDON (FWF) — The world's first-ever all-wool, machine-washable kilt was launched in London recently. The garment, obtainable in four types of tartan, is aimed at the feminine fashion market. It is expected that Sassenachs (non-Scots) will eagerly snap up the "skirt." Tartan cloth, and especially pseudo-kilted tartan, is one of Scotland's top exports. However, to the true Highlander, the mere idea of a kilted lady is anathema.

The traditional costume for Scotswomen is either a white silk dress with a sash or scarf in the tartan of the girl's father's or husband's clan, or the Aboyne dress. The latter consists of a white, embroidered blouse with detachable puff sleeves fastened at the shoulders with a trio of bows. This sensible facet of the design enabled old-style Highland housewives to wash or work in their dairies without risk of soiling their cuffs. With the blouse is worn a lace-fronted, low-necked velvet jacket with a dagged pattern of four-inch points or flutes at the waist. The full length skirt is of plaid, either loosely gathered at the waist like a dirndl or straight in shape with its check fabric cut on the bias.

The distinctive skirted national dress of the Scottish male probably became commonplace in the 16th century. In those days the plaid, which is worn over the shoulder, and the kilt itself were made from a single strip of cloth six ells (54 inches wide by six yards) long.

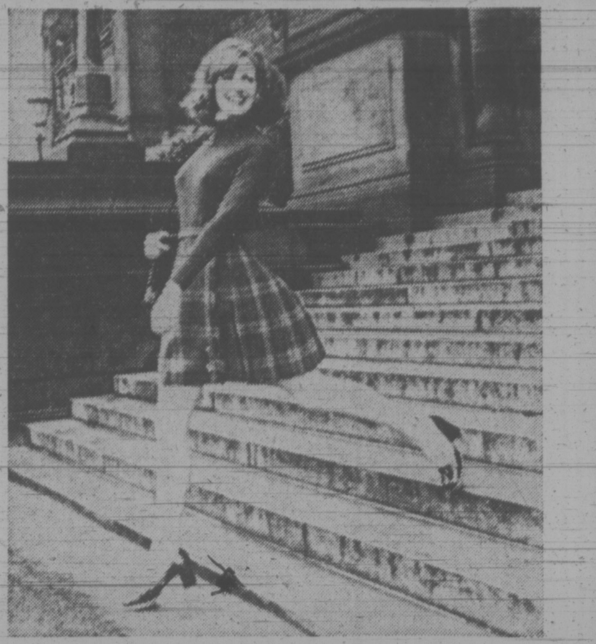
For the largely nomadic highland clansmen, the plaid served as night-time bedcover as well as daytime wardrobe. On rising, the highlander set down his heavy leather waist belt on the ground and proceeded to pleat up the plaid along its length. He would then lie down on his handiwork, wrapping the unpleated end section over his abdomen, apron-style, and having secured the whole with his belt would fling the final portion over his shoulder. To this day all men's kilts pinform left to right whereas kilted skirts made for ladies in imitation of the traditional garment wrap from right to left.

The decision to separate kilt and plaid was taken by an Edinburgh military tailor in 1720, although in rural areas crofters continued to use the one-piece version for at least a century.

Under his all-purpose plaid, the old-style Scot wore only a loose, shift-like shirt, and from the formation of the Scottish regiments it has been a feature of their dress regulations that nothing should come between kilt and wearer. Surprisingly, regular kilt-wearers claim that his way they keep warmer in winter and cooler in summer than when they wear trousers. Scottish tailors insist that there can be no immodesty provided a kilt is properly made, for the weight of the fabric in the pleated section will ensure the kilt hangs correctly.

A man's kilt made in the 1970s consists of a minimum of six and a half yards to a maximum of eight yards of 16-ounce worsted fabric. For easy care, the pleats are sewn into place, then the rod re-be re-made each day, although the Victorian technique of making swagger pleats where each was rolled around a cane, similar to an officer's swagger stick, sewn into plece, then the rod removed and the next pleat created, seems to have become a lost art.

The cost of a man's kilt today will be anything from $52 to $125 according to the quality of the fabric. The smart Scot will need at least two — a heavy "hunting plaid" for daytime wear and the "dress" version of his individual tartan in a lighter weight to be worn for Scottish dancing in the evenings.



Kilted lady rankles Highlander

Today kilts are bought, and presumably worn, by all nationalities and tourist-oriented stores are happy to devise patterns of the tartan-type to provide "authentic" clan costumes to suit any visitor's surname. There are over 1,000 tartans officially recorded as authentic by the Scottish Tartan Society. However, many of these are subdivisions of more distinctive clan types. For practical purposes it can be assumed that there are only about 50 genuine tartans with a traceable history of 300 years of usage in the highlands and Islands, and seven authenticated Lowland plaids.

The British Royal family apart, most of the civilian kilt-wearers encountered in Scotland today will be tourists themselver or Scots specially kitted out for the benefit of the tourist industry.

Kilt-wearers in other parts of the British Isles are even less likely to be genuine Scots. It is an unwritten law that those most entitled to do so, never wear their kilts when travelling "south of Stirling," the town which marks the geographical division between Highland and Lowland Scotland.

dear abby

Secret Housekeeper

DEAR ABBY: I am a mother and sole bread winner of three school-age children. I have worked hard to provide for use since my husband died four years ago.

Recently I landed an ideal job as a housekeeper for a rather wealthy family. I work three days a week and the location and pay is excellent.

On a few occasions the husband has come home unexpectedly, and when his wife hears his car in the driveway, she pushes me into a walk-in closet to hide me until she can get me out without having her husband see me.

When I asked her why she was hiding me, she said I was her "secret" help, and she didn't want her husband to know she had as much help as she does. (She has another woman come three days a week, too, but he knows about her).

Abby, I feel so foolish sneaking around this way, but I need the money. Should I stay on? What if the husband finds me one of these times? — Stir Crazy In The Closet.

DEAR STIR: Since the job is ideal and you need the money, stay there. If the husband finds you, let his wife explain what you're doing there. If he has a sense of humor, you're home free.

DEAR ABBEY: It seems I have a problem. I am 47 years old, and last year I married for the second time and my wife is expecting soon. Since this is the first child I have ever fathered, and probably my last, I want him to have a special name. (No argument, please. I know it will be a boy.)

My surname is "Huffman," so I would like to name our son "Manhuff." My wife's maiden name is Wolfe, therefore I want his middle name to be "Wolfgang," his full name being, "Manhuff Wolfgang Huffman." (His nickname would of course be, "Manny.")

My wife objects strenously. She says it will be a burden to the boy and people will make fun of him.

What do you think, Abby? If you feel the boy will be handicapped by such a name, please let me know, as I have his best interests at heart. — Jack (Of All Trades)

DEAR JACK: Never mind what I think. Since your wife objects strenuously, forget the "Manhuff Wolfgang," and name him "Jack Jr." (P.S. If he's a "she," you'll have no problem.)

6:30 (FM) Classical Guitar. Terri, guitarists. Malaguena and Tango in D (Albeniz); El Vito (Traditional); Modinha (Villa-Lobos); Cradle Song (Traditional); Sonata (Turina).

7:03 (FM) Music Alive. This series offers music by Canadians and others, and keeps listeners in touch with the latest developments in serious music. It includes orchestral, chamber and choral music and solo recitals, interviews, documentaries and many other items, all treated with respect, and sometimes with humour. Commentator is pianist Karen Kieser. Tonight: The Festival Singers of Canada conducted by Elmer Iseler: Psalms (Foss); Landscapes (Paynter).

8:03 (FM) Gerald Durrell and Friends. When broadcaster Lyal Brown was in Europe recently, he interviewed author and conservationist Durrell in Nimes, France, and talked to some of his associates at the Jersey Wildlife Preservation Trust on the Island of Jersey. Durrell recounts a number of anecdotes, talks about the growing threat to endangered species.

10:03 (AM) Ideas. The Rhine: A river where myth meets rampant industrialization. Eulogized by Wagner and German Nationalists as the birth-waters of the earth, the Rhine now rivals the Hudson for its pollution-counts. Late Ferry Runs Asked In Petition

Saanich barber Fred Diana has the backing of at least 3,500 persons in a bid for better B.C. Ferries service to the mainland.

That many people signed a petition he set up in the mall outside his shop at University Heights shopping centre in a four-day period.

Monday he delivered the 100-foot-long document to Saanich and the Islands MLA Hugh Curtis, who will bring it to the attention of the government.

The petition "puts me in the position of saying it's a rotten system, but it's probably one of the best in the world," Diana said.

"When you leave (behind) a lineup of 1,200 cars, something has got to be done," the barber said, urging a late ferry daily between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen for the summer and on weekends all year round.

"Some people said they'd like to sign 10 times, once for each hour they waited for the ferry," Diana said.

"There's going to be a heck of a strike and then people will realize how important these ferries are."

He suggested a two-pronged effort be made by the provincial system to alleviate the pressure on ferries and to give employment to shipyard workers.

Diana said one of his customers, a retired shipyard executive, believes four new ferries of minimum size could be built for $20 million, or less than half the government's "rainy day" reserve fund.

These ships would take overflow loads during peak periods and during the winter they could replace the stretched vessels when traffic is light, thus providing more economical service.

The shipbuilding program would keep yards busy for about three years, the executive said.

Diana said he will take more signatures if residents are still interested in pressing for ferry service improvements.

COPELAND ARRESTED

Brian Copeland, who robbed a Victoria bank March 1 then later escaped from B.C. Penitentiary, was arrested in Toronto Monday.

Copeland pleaded guilty to robbing the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Mayfair branch, and was sentenced to 10 years by Judge William Ostler.

He and another inmate escaped from the penitentiary July 20.

Police said Copeland was charged with two recent Toronto bank holdups after he was arrested without resistance in his apartment Monday.

Bus Service Stepped Up

Demand will be assessed at the end of the trial period and the bus runs could be extended for the winter season, a spokesman said.

An additional trip has been scheduled between Victoria and Campbell River, daily except Sunday and Monday, and a daily run between Nanaimo and Port Alberni is also planned.

Buses will stop at smaller communities along the route.

Pension Fund Grows

A fund drive to provide a pension for Colin Graham, retiring director of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria, is going well, gallery president B. C. Butler said today.

Butler said he expects to have no problem raising the $60,000 that will be needed to provide Graham an annual pension of $5,000 for life.

The drive started several weeks ago and is directed primarily at "a selected group of individuals" and gallery members.

No Sign of Break In CP Air Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — A strike by 1,300 CP Air machinists — the first strike in the airline's 31-year history — went into its 20th day today with no indication of a break.

A CP Air spokesman said Monday night the company has cut its service to 174 flights a week from 346 and could continue to maintain the revised schedules for some time.

He said about 400 of CP Air's 3,000 employees in the Greater Vancouver area have been laid off because of the strike, with others re-assigned to different jobs.

The spokesman said supervisory and management personnel were handling some of the key jobs normally done by the machinists, but only those fully qualified and licensed were doing any mechanical work.

He said the Trans-Canada service has been cut to eight flights a day from 18, with the Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg and Ottawa stops dropped from the Vancouver-Toronto and Vancouver-Montreal runs.

Full service is being maintained to the Orient, the South Pacific service has been cut in half, and the Hawaiian and Mexican flights cancelled.

The union seeks a wages and fringe benefit package increase of more than 20 per cent in a two-year pact. CP Air says it would give the same increase accepted by Air Canada machinists — eight per cent now and eight per cent next year.

PRESTIGE FUTURE SEEN FOR CONCORDE

OTTAWA (FP) — The British-French built supersonic aircraft Concorde will soon become the "prestige way" to travel on airlines around the world, Prime Minister Edward Heath of the United Kingdom forecast in a CTV interview.

"We have not yet captured the market but you will find that once British Overseas Airlines Corporation and Air France start flying Concordes, then it will be the prestige way to travel and people will be prepared to pay to travel on them," the British PM predicted.

He said that there are no specific negotiations underway with Canada at the present time to clear the way for the supersonic jet to fly over this coutry. He agreed that Canada's attitude to flying the Concorde over Canada would play an important role in the future of the supersonic jet.

"The Concorde is a great technological achievement,"Heath, said.

4 Face Drug Counts

Four men appeared in Victoria provincial court today charged with possession of 48 capsules of MDA for trafficking.

One of the four, David Geauvreau, 21, of 828 Courtney, pleaded not guilty and will appear in court again Aug. 21 to set a trial date.

The other three, John Boyd, 1720 Newton; Cleo Tambeau, 29, no fixed address, and Rene Maisonneauve, 25, no fixed address, will also appear Aug. 21 to plead to the charges.

Police said they stopped four men in a car Monday afternoon on Esquimalt Road for a traffic violation.

Eskimos Ready Demands For Land, Cost Solutions

BAKER LAKE, N.W.T. (CP) — Eskimos from across the Arctic gather here this week for an eight-day resource conference that will tackle problems ranging from territorial land claims to high living costs in remote communities.

Organized by Inuit Tapirisat of Canada, the national Eskimo brotherhood, the conference will include the second annual meeting of the native organization which represents the approximately 17,000 Canadians of Eskimo origin.

Formal sessions start Wednesday at a community hall in this Eskimo settlement of 800, about 1,000 miles north of Winnipeg and about 175 miles from the northwest coast of Hudson Bay.

About 45 delegates are expected to attend this year, flying in from settlements as separated as Aklavik in the northwestern Arctic and Nain, an Eskimo village on the northern coast of Labrador.

OFFICIALS WELCOME

Federal government officials were conspicuously missing from the invitiation list last year, But, at this conference, several federal spokesmen will take part.

"We didn't want them at our first meeting," a brotherhood official said at the organization's headquarters in Ottawa. "This year, however, there are many things we'd like to discuss with them".

Heading the federal slate will be Secretary of State Hugh Faulkner and William Romkey, parliamentary secretary to Environment Minister Jack Davis and Liberal MP for Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador.

Money will be the key subject facing Mr. Faulkner whose department is financing brotherhood operations this year with a $219,000 grant.

"We need more than that to carry out our programs and we're going to present our case," says brotherhood executive-director Wendy Ellis.

Also attending will be Wally Firth, New Democratic Party MP for the Northwest Territories. A Metis, Mr. Firth is the first native ever elected to Parliament from northern Canada.

HEAVY AGENDA

Key subjects will include aboriginal rights and land claims, housing, living costs, game laws, education, legal aid for natives, and the possibility of establishing Eskimo cultural centres in the Arctic.

The meeting starts only a week after Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien outlined federal policy on native land claims and announced that Ottawa is willing to negotiate settlements with native groups not already covered by treaties.

Community Fighting Oil Men

"We feel we should be boss to our land," says James Etoolook, 27, chairman of the Spence Bay Council.

The council negotiated four months with oil company officials and the department of Indian affairs and northern development, telling them oil exploration is not wanted.

But last month the crews came anyway, conducting geophysical surveys by helicopter. There was no blasting.

Etoolook says the caribou movement have been altered because of the presence and activities of the oil-company crews.

They plan to consult the Indian Brotherhood of The Northwest Territories which has already applied to file a caveat on 400,000 square miles of resource-rich land in the western Arctic.

India Hard Hit By Flooding

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Floods swept across northern areas of the Indian subcontinent today and authorities expressed fears the death toll will rise into the hundreds.

Heavy monsoon rains pounded the northern Indian provinces of Kashmir and Uttar Pradesh, where 110 deaths have been reported so far.

Authorities said reports of drownings will undoubtedly increase when more detailed information arrives from the northeastern state of Assam, where the mighty Brahmaputra River and its tributaries overflowed their banks.

In Pakistan, floodwaters from the swollen Chenab Ravi and Sutlej rivers have taken 90 lives in five days.

Floods hit huge tracts of fertile Punjab province, putting a damper on planned celebrations today marking the enactment of a new Pakistani constitution and the country's 26th anniversary of independence.

Torrential rains in the last 10 days have amounted to three times Pakistan's average annual rainfall.

Military helicopters and army troops were pressed into service to rescue hundreds of stranded persons in the two Indian states as rivers overran their banks.

The late monsoon broke a long drought and raised hopes for a good crop, but instead has damaged the autumn harvest, officials said. First reports said crops worth $14 million are feared lost.

Skylab Rescue Ship Pad Bound

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The rocket and spaceship being prepared as possible rescue vehicles for the Skylab 2 astronauts were to move to the launch pad today at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

However, space agency officials emphasize the move is a precaution.

They feel confident Alan Bean, Dr. Owen Garriott and Jack Lousma will be able to return safely to earth Sept. 25 in their Apollo ship.

A Saturn 1-B rocket, with a new Apollo perched on top, was to make the 3½-mile trip to the launch pad from an assembly building on a giant tracked transporter.

After a month of checks, the rocket will be ready Sept. 10 or later if a rescue mission is required. Flying the mission in a modified five-seat Apollo would be Skylab back-up astronauts Vance Brand and Donald Lind.

'Band-Aid' Curbs Fan Outrage

Times News Services

Leaders of both federal opposition parties reacted with outrage today at the "disappointingly thin" action taken by the federal government to curb the food-cost spiral and demanded the immediate recall of Parliament.

Premier Barrett said today the provincial government plans some course of action to combat the rising costs of food in light of Ottawa's "disappointing" response.

But Barrett would not be specific in saying what the government plans to do or how long it will be before the plans are revealed.

He criticized the federal government, saying it is "pointless" to restrict food export licensing without putting a clamp on exports themselves and that it would have been better to put money directly into the hands of pensioners "now, when they need it most."

His caucus will meet next Monday to discuss whether to continue support of the minority government.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said the moves amount to "trying to fix broken legs with a band-aid without first setting the legs."

A general 90-day prices and incomes freeze is needed, he said.

Lewis said he is pleased by the export controls and by the increase in old-age pensions promised by a more frequent cost of living adjustment.

Both, he said, were ideas put forward by the NDP.

But the prime minister "should have had the courage" to recall Parliament to deal with food costs. The recall demand was echoed by Stanfield.

"People want someone with strength at the helm to bring them through this psychological inflation," he said.

"I think he's quite comfortable in his parliamentary pew."

The government plan was merely "a Sermon on the Mount" and "of no substance," he concluded.

Thomas G. Bolton, president of Dominion Stores Ltd., said that during the last three weeks Dominion Stores has been advised of product cost advances b yabout 150 suppliers.

He also said net earnings for the company in the quarter ended June 16 increased to $2,847,000 or 34 cents a share from $1,480,000 and 18 cents in the first quarter a year ago.

Spokesmen for farm producers are not optimistic that the restrictions can ease the burden of rising prices for Canadian consumers.

Charles Munro, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said the measures fail to consider the effects of continuing railway strikes and heavy speculating in unregulated food commodity markets.

"The best way to cure the problem is to keep producers profitably producing," he said.

George Morris, president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said the cabinet's export restrictions follow a recommendation made by cattlemen last week—one the as-

Ferry Vote Friday

Two thousand B.C. Ferries employees will decide Friday at 5 a.m. whether to strike the government fleet.

Meetings have been called at all ferry terminals when members of the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union will hear reports from their executive on negotiations for a new agreement, which broke down last Friday.

Business agent Norman Thornber said the executive, which met for four hours Monday, will not be giving a specific recommendation, but it is "quite obvious what the decision will be."

He said reports the union is receiving from its members show "our people are solidly endorsing the action of their committee."

Asked if a work stoppage would come immediately, he said: "Yes, it would."

Representatives of the BCGEU's marine branch (licensed), meanwhile, were meeting B.C. Ferries officials in a negotiating meeting today. The licensed branch represents 400 officers and engineers.

The threat of a strike, however, has not caused a stampede of tourists off Vancouver Island, said B.C. Ferries traffic manager Bob Ellis.

On the mainland, traffic was waiting 1½ hours at Horseshoe Bay and an hour at Tsawwassen to get over to Vancouver Island and a spokesman at Horseshoe Bay expected the delays to grow during the day.

Thornber said "the key to the whole thing" is that the Civil Service Commission and the government are "very reluctant" to recognize the ferry fleet as a marine operation.

"They continually try to relate it to shore operations. Our situation is quite unique in the government service. This is what we are trying to achieve — recognition as a marine operation," he said.

One of the issues is payment for work on statutory holidays. The union wants time-and-one-half to be paid plus a day in lieu at straight-time pay. Transport Minister Bob Strachan has said that because other government employees work on statutory holidays, such a provision must be negotiated on a province-wide basis.

Thornber replied that just because others aren't getting what the ferry workers want doesn't mean the ferry workers shouldn't get it, or that other government workers "should be screwed out of it."

Most of the labor force looks upon statutory holidays as a long weekend but for ferry workers "it's organized confusion. We have to work the statutory holiday and doubly hard the day before and

JUST OXEN-AROUND are these members of the RCMP taking part in 100th anniversary celebrations at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. They are dressed in buckskins of pioneer days to re-enact the march of 1874 when police posts were established throughout the west.

LIQUOR RE-PRICING ORDERED HALTED

B.C. liquor stores have been ordered to stop increasing the price of products already in stock, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday.

Macdonald was commenting on a Vancouver report that some liquor outlets had liquor products on their shelves which had been re-priced upwards, with labels stuck on top of older labels.

Macdonald said B.C. Liquor Board general manager Bill Bruce informed him this was not board policy but had happened in some instances.

"So we sent a directive to all the stores so that they don't label old stock, purchased at a lower price, with a higher price," the attorney-general said.

Bombs Pound Till Deadline

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Fierce U.S. bombing rocked Phnom Penh for the last time today as warplanes blasted rebel forces surrounding the beleaguered capital in up-to-the-deadline raids.

Air controllers called in strike after strike on the city's defence perimeter from the big B-52 bombers, F-111 jet fighter-bombers and tactical aircraft that have flown intensified raids throughout the country for 160 consecutive days.

Night flares lit the sky around Phnom Penh searching out rebel concentrations. Where they were found, they were hit. With daylight, the air activity became intense. Windows and doors rattled as the whump of the bombs hit the outskirts in the hot sunshine.

The U.S. air war in Cambodia had less than 24 hours to go under a compromise agreement between President Nixon and Congress. The bombing must stop at 9 p.m. PDT tonight, or 11 a.m. Wednesday Cambodian time, and will spell the official end of U.S. military involvement throughout Southeast Asia.

It will be the first time since 1964 that the U.S. Air Force isn't bombing somewhere in Indo-China.

When the bombing ends, the Cambodian army of some 250,000 men, women and youths in their early teens will be on their own, supported from the air by the tiny Cambodian Air Force — a meager fleet of only about 40 obsolete prop-driven fighter-bombers that have none of the sophisticated equipment of U.S. warplanes.

Despite a warning Sunday from deposed Cambodian leader Prince Nordom Sihanouk that victory by his rebel forces in Cambodia is "already practically achieved" and that all foreigners should leave Phnom Penh, the U.S. embassy — largest in the capital with about 200 personnel — said it would stay.

In addition, a force of more than 200 foreign newsmen, television cameramen and photographers were sticking it out to see what happens after the bombing ends.

Since the cease-fire in Vietnam six months ago, the United States has dropped more than 240,000 tons of bombs on Cambodia compared to 160,000 tons of conventional bombs dropped on Japan in the Second World War.

The Pentagon estimates the air war in Cambodia and Laos cost about $442.8 million.

The total cost of the air war is difficult to calculate because the Pentagon has provided only piecemeal figures.

However, it was estimated last January that the total price in lost planes and bombs and rockets fired came then to about $16.5 billion. Aircraft fuel, spare parts and the cost of maintaining air

CP EARNINGS UP 72% TO $66.8M

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific Ltd. reports net earnings of $66.8 million or 91 cents a share for the first six months of 1973, compared with $38.8 million or 51 cents for the corresponding period a year earlier — a 72-per-cent increase.

The company's trucking operations suffered a slight decline while revenue from shipping slipped $2.2 million, the company said in a statement.

Net railway earnings rose to $30.5 million from $22.9 million.

Bank Rate A Record In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board Monday raised its discount rate to a record 7.5 per cent, a move the central bank said was designed to bring the rate into alignment with other short-term rates.

Even with the hike, the rate lags far behind most other money market interest rates.

And, Canadian bank lending rates will likely rise again within the next 60 days, says McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. Ltd., a Toronto investment firm.

In its latest money market letter, the firm says that despite the rise of one-half of one per cent in the Canadian prime rate to 8¼ per cent last week, the outlook for interest rates "remains pessimistic over the near term."

BEEF, PORK EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Monday imposed export controls on beef and pork and increased payments for those on fixed incomes.

But it rejected price controls, arguing that they could hurt production.

The cabinet met for six hours Monday, discussing inflated food prices and other matters and drafted a statement which proposes:

- Export controls on beef and pork, effective today. The controls will control export of prime table meats to any country, but will allow the export of poorer grades.

Alastair Gillespie, minister of industry, trade and commerce, said, however, that export licences will be granted to permit exports to traditional customers because the program is intended only to protect the Canadian market from being raided to make up for meat shortages in the United States.

- A toughened food prices review board to search out and make public examples of unwarranted price increases.

- Old-age security and guaranteed income payments be increased five per cent, effective Oct. 1. The increase comes with a proposal for a cost of living adjustment every three months.
- A federal-provincial conference this fall to develop food policies.

The basic old-age security payment will be increased to $105.80 a month from $100 effective Oct. 1, under a proposal to make cost-of-living adjustments to old-age and guaranteed income supplement payments every three months instead of annually.

The old-age payments to couples also will be increased about five per cent, to $341.80. The monthly payments for the guaranteed income supplement will increase five per cent to $179.16.

Parliament must approve the plan and it is not scheduled to meet until Oct. 15, but payments would be retroactive.

Job Growth Rate Slows

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's steady growth in jobs slowed in July for the first time this year, Statistics Canada reported today.

The nation's unemployment also dropped last month, resuming this year's steady decline that was interrupted by a one-month drift upward in June.

The jobless rate dropped to 5.2 per cent in July from 5.3 per cent in June on a seasonally adjusted basis that accounts for expected fluctuations in the economy.

In British Columbia, the actual jobless rate declined from 6.1 to 5.9 per cent with the total out of work falling 2,000 to 59,000.

The total of Canadians at work rose 119,000 last month to 9,229,000, but since it usually rises more than that in July government statisticians figured it as a seasonally adjusted drop of about 90,000.

Without seasonal adjustment, the actual unemployment rate dropped to 4.8 per cent in July from 5.2 per cent in June.

On both bases, unemployment was considerably below last year's consistent figures of more than six per cent of the work force.

The total unemployed fell 3,000 to 941,000.

The 90,000 seasonally-adjusted drop in total employment in July was sharply up from June's scarecely noticeable decline of 14,000.

The slackening growth in jobs came after government action raising interest rates and cutting federal spending in an effort to slow the nation's sharp rise in living costs.

Whether Prime Minister Trudeau's latest anti-inflation move, curbing exports of cattle and hogs, will have any effect on employment won't become evident until later in the year.

Government policies to slow the economy are a traditional method of curbing inflation, but generally raise the problem of increasing unemployment as an unwanted result.

"On a seasonally adjusted basis, the employment level decreased in all regions," Statistics Canada said.

"The most substantial change was in Ontario, down 60,000, following an increase of about the same magnitude last month. The level in the Prairie region and Quebec also showed large decreases while the level in the Atlantic region and British Columbia declined slightly," the report added.

"The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate decreased in the Atlantic region, Quebec and British Columbia while it increased in the Prairie region," it said.

REBELS TAKE OVER DETROIT PLANT

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s Mack Avenue stamping plant was shut down today after a fired worker allegedly attacked two security men with a pipe and about 300 workers seized control of the plant.

The workers said they would not leave the plant until a list of 11 demands were met.

Among the demands were that all workers fired in any disturbance be rehired and there be no disciplinary action against any workers taking part in the disturbance.

Several radical groups not affiliated with the workers were passing out socialist literature outside the plant early today.

It was the second "plant hijacking" by angry workers in three weeks. Two workers earlier occupied a power cage at Chrysler's Jefferson Avenue assemly plant, turned off the power to a feeder line and forced the company to fire a supervisor.

Water to Point Only in Crisis

The B.C. government will supply water to the U.S. community of Point Roberts only if there is a fire emergency or if there is danger of drinking supplies running short, Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said today.

Hall was commenting on a request from Washington Governor Dan Evans, who said in a letter to Premier Barrett that the situation at the tiny community is "extremely critical."

The provincial secretary said B.C. wants to make sure that any provision of water supplies to Point Roberts does not jeopardize the workings of the International Joint Commission, which he said is studying the long-range problems of the 3,100-acre community, bordered on three sides by water and on the fourth by Canada. About 350 Americans and 850 Canadians live in the area.

Hall accused the community of "indiscriminate planning" and said it should not be the responsibility of the provincial government to look after support services for a community which is intended by some to grow to 15,000 people.

As for the Point Roberts' request that water be supplied by the municipality of Delta, Hall said: "There's no damn water in Delta and it's just not enough to ask our people to go without while other areas adjacent to it just go on with indiscriminate planning and these kind of fantastic development programs . . ."

A Vancouver-based development company — Pacific and Western Equities, Inc. — is attempting to amass land and get approval for a $200 million development that would cover more than 1,800 acres, roughly half of the Point Roberts land area.

The development would include a resort hotel, marina, golf course, horse stables, hiking trails, and housing for 15,000.

Harry Sames, chairman of the Point Roberts Water Board, said this would increase the water needs drastically. One solution, he said, would be to pipe water across Boundary Bay from the Blaine reservoir. The cost of such a pipeline, however, was estimated a year ago at upwards of $4 million, far beyond the money-raising capabilities of Point Roberts. If Pacific and Western footed most of the bill, it could be practical.

Apart from a fair bit of general opposition from Point Roberts residents — Canadian and American — who want to preserve a rural atmosphere, the main stumbling block facing the developers is 71-year-old Reno R. Reno, who owns a key 190 acres wanted for the proposed development.

Reno said Pacific and Western has offered him about $866,000 for the land, which would not include his waterfront home. He wants $5 million.

"I like to think my mother didn't raise any foolish children," he said.

"Critical Emergency Water Shortage," said one sign. "Canadians Go Home," read another.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were mostly lower in moderate trade today on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Rapeseed futures were higher through most of the session, but dropped at the close. The reversal was reflected in varying degrees in all months traded.

Oats and barley were sharply lower. The losses were attributed to a Canadian Wheat Board announcement that further wheat board offers on barley would be made on a flat basis only, reflecting current export prices, rather than on an exchange-of-futures basis.

Rye prices were higher early in the session but followed the downward trend to close 10 lower in all months.

Monday's volume of trade was 298,000 bushels of rye and 124,000 of rapeseed.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures prices continued to spiral upward on the Board of Trade today, but other farm products futures were mixed.

Tuesday's session marked the 12th straight day old crop wheat futures have hit the limit 20-cent increase allowed in one trading session. At $4.94 a bushel, wheat sold for delivery in September at more than three times its price a year ago.

Once limit increases were set in old crop wheat and corn contracts, trading in these months slowed almost to a stop. There were some sales in the distant options, however, and prices for these contracts traded just just below the limit jump set on the opening.

Soybean prices closed mostly higher after a fairly brisk session which saw prices range the 80-cent limit. For two straight sessions, the beans had closed with limit gains on all contracts. But August soybeans closed up only 10 cents at $10.75 a bushel, and September beans were down seven cents.

Prices for soybean meal and soybean oil remained strong through most of the session. August meal closed the limit $15 a ton higher at $328.50. The nearby contracts in soybean oil also registered limit gains, with the August contract closing at 36.40 cents a ton.

Oats prices were lower in a reversal of two straight days of limit higher closings.

At the close, wheat was 5½ to 20 higher, September 4.94; corn 10 higher, September 3.47¾; oats 1¾ to 5½ lower, September 1.49 and soybeans seven lower to 27 higher, August 10.75.

Groves Again Remanded

BRISBANE (Reuter) — Robert (Bert) Groves, wanted in Vancouver on theft and fraud charges, was remanded today until Aug. 21 when he appeared in an Australian magistrate's court.

The court was told that extradition proceedings against Groves, 48, will begin Aug. 21. He is free on $50,000 bail.

Groves was charged with theft, fraud and criminal breach of trust in April, 1972, after $176,000 paid by the British Columbia government to Groves's construction company disappeared. The money was for school construction.

He disappeared before he could be prosecuted in Canada but was arrested earlier this year by Australian police.

Golds Issues Plunge In Toronto Trading

Gold issues plunged sharply as prices on the Toronto stock market fell in light trading.

Volume by 2 p.m. was 1.46 million shares compared with 1.22 million at the same time Monday.

Industrial mining, pipeline, communication and merchandising issues were among declining market sectors while beverage, chemical, general manufacturing and steel stocks were higher.

Francana was off ½ to $10 and Numac ⅜ to $17½.

Ashland Oil Inc. fell 2 to $26, Falconbridge Nickel 1¾ to $79¼, Dome Pete 1 to $35½, Trans Canada Pipe Lines ⅞ to $27⅞ and Noranda A ¾ to $53¾.

Canadian General Securities A rose ¾ to $18, Canadian Canners A ¾ to $9¼, Livingston Industries ¾ to $11 and Stelco ¾ to $32½.

Among golds, Dome Mines dropped 4½ to $80½, Sigma ½ to $18, Camflo 30 cents to $6.85 and Agnico-Eagle 25 cents to $4.45.

Placer slipped 1 to $28½ and Hudson Bay Mining ½ to $27½. Falconbridge Copper gained ¼ to $14⅝.

New York

Declining issues held a moderate lead over advances, but the declines were not as broad-based as on Monday.

Analysts said soaring interest rates were not only undermining investor confidence but also draining funds from the market. Investors have found a lucrative source of income in high interest bank certificates of deposit and treasury bills, the analysts said.

Saxon Industries was the volume leader, down ⅝ to $5½, followed by Tenneco, down ¾ to $20⅜, Bausch and Lomb, up ¾ to $34⅞ and Anaconda down ¾ to $21¾.

Montreal

Combined volume on the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges at 1 p.m. was 824,300 shares, compared with 627,000 shares at the same time Monday.

Dome Petroleum declined 1½ to $35½, Cominco ¾ to $32¾, Consumers Glass ¾ to $8½ and Massey-Ferguson ½ to $22⅜ while Canadian Javelin advanced ⅞ to $13⅝.

On the Canadian Stock Exchange, Joubi Mining rose two cents to 52 cents on 85,700 shares traded.

London

Prices on the London stock market fluctuated within a narrow range in quiet trading today. The Financial Times index was off .8 points to 426.8 in mid-session trading.

She represents an American taxpayer investment of $32 million.

She's the 892½-foot Ultramar, on her maiden voyage from San Diego, where she was designed and built by the National Steel and Ship and Shipbuilding Co.

Shipyard consultant Martin Berger said the Ultramar was built with federal funds under the program announced by President Nixon about three years ago.

The program will fund the construction of about 300 modern vessels and underwrite operating costs.

"These ships will help put the (American) dollar back into a strong position," he predicted.

The Ultramar is in Esquimalt for repairs.

"She's very sophisticated and the first of many," Berger says, "We have a few mechanical bugs to work out."

Sailing under the American flag with an American crew of 26 plus her master, Capt. Wesley Faust, 53, of Santa Rosa, Calif., the Ultramar is one of the most versatile vessels. She's capable of carrying either oil, ore or bulk cargo and is 106 feet in the beam, the maximum girth capable of going through the Panama Canal.

She's owned by Westchester Marine Shipping Co. Inc. of New York, which is building eight more vessels of the same size under the government progrogram.

Her sister ship, the Ultrasea, will be launched in October. Seven tankers of the same size are also planned.

Berger says all the steel ships will be double bottomed to ensure maximum protection of the ecology.

Eventually she will be able to operate without a man in her engine room.

"She is fully automated," Berger says, "with a two-man engine room. With very little modification she will be able to run with a zero-manning engine room."

Ultramar is the largest ship ever built on the U.S. west coast and handling her is no mean feat, even for a man like Faust who's followed the sea since 1939.

"With 80,500 tons dead weight beneath you," he says, "you always have to be aware of the mass when you bring her alongisde and the time it takes to stop."

His 10-storey command, five below the main deck and another five from there to his bridge, gives Faust the impression of "flying an airplane," perched between 70 and 80 feet above the sea level.

Her 24,000 horsepower steam engines give her a cruising speed of 17½ knots when fully loaded. Faust confesses it gives him an eerie feeling when she's under way:

"Standing up there on the bridge I can see the bridge tilt one way and the bow another. Mind you, she has to be flexible — but it's a queer feeling.

"She rolls a long way. You have to be very, very careful," he says. "It's like pushing a mountain. If you try to bump something."

The wheel in the bridge house seems incongruously small for its task as Faust explains that he can switch control from there to the engine room at the push of a button.

A nearby teletype records every command. Berger explains that this provides a full record should one ever be needed in the case of an incident.

When she leaves Esquimalt the Ultramar will load 78,000 tons of coal at Roberts Bank. After unloading in Japan, she will head for the Persian Gulf, where she will take on oil destined for Quebec.

Between Faust's place on the bridge and her keel, Ultramar could set uyp three football fields.

Early Start Planned On New Marine Base

* * *

Construction of a $6,270,000 marine base in Victoria harbor for the ministry of transport will begin in a few months, the federal government announced today.

The new base, which has been talked about for years, will be located on 19 acres, the former Victoria Machinery Depot outer wharf property, alongside Dallas Road at Ogden Point.

The Ottawa announcement said treasury board approval has been granted for the project, which will consolidate on one site marine services now scattered at four locations.

First phase will see the old wharf and buildings demolished. A new wharf, administrative offices, aids to navigation workshop, vessel berthing and stores facilities will then be built with the entire project expected to take about three years.

The VMD Dallas Road yard, closed in November, 1967, after the shipyard operation was sold to Burrard-Yarrows, cost the federal government about $2.25 million.

At the moment, marine services of the ministry are administered from offices in the Toronto-Dominion Bank Building downtown, weatherships Quadra and Vancouver are berthed at a public works wharf in Esquimalt, the service's helicopter is based at Victoria International Airport and a ship depot is located on Johnson Street.

All will be located at the new base, which will also have room for expansion. About 400 employees in Victoria will be brought together.

Ministry spokesmen said the new base fits Victoria's long-range plans to beautify and expand the harbor from a tourist and aesthetic point of view.

They said the present marine services base, near the Johnson Street bridge, dates from 1912 and the buildings have reached the end of their useful lives.

Berthing facilities are also limited and should mechanical failure block raising of the Johnson Street bridge, ministry vessels could not now get to sea until repairs were made, they added.

The government announcement said construction would get under way early in 1974 or sooner if possible.

'DISASTER' SAYS TINDALL

A city alderman denied today there has been close co-operation between the federal government and Victoria on development plans for the former Victoria Machinery Depot property on Dallas Road.

Ald. Bill Tindall, chairman of council's commerce, industry and tourism committee, said there has been no discussion with Ottawa on developing a marine base there for the ministry of transport.

It would be a "disaster" if the federal government proceeded with its building plans before talking to the city about its plans for the waterfront and James Bay, said Tindall.

The government announcement today on the marine base said the "ministry has been working for some time in close co-operation with the city . . . to select a suitable site."

Mayor Peter Pollen, contacted later, said there were some discussions with the city but they were not extensive.

Motorist Given Two-Year Term

A Victorian who drove through a red light and a stop sign on the wrong side of the road at 90 miles an hour in a stolen car was sentenced to two years in jail today.

Jack Stewart Brown, 23, of 840 Pembroke, pleaded guilty to charges of stealing a car, dangerous driving and driving without a licence before Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court today.

Prosecutor Wally Anderson said Saanich police tried to stop Brown's car on Quadra Street Aug. 8 when he was driving "erratically."

Police chased Brown down Quadra Street and said he was driving 90 miles an hour, crossed the centreline, went through two intersections on the wrong side of the road and finally hit a telephone pole at Quadra and Tolmie.

Brown got out of the car which he had stolen the day before from a Victoria service station, and fled into nearby Topaz Park.

The police gave chase and finally found the man in the park. Brown was taken to Victoria General Hospital where he remained for four days in serious condition suffering from head injuries, cuts and shock.

Brown's only explanation of the incident was that he had been drinking.

"You need a new attitude towards your life and you must get out of the alcohol group," Judge Ostler told Brown.

"You must not accept the kind of life you are living as inevitable."

Incinerator Ban Coming

The committee will recommend to council that no incinerator fires be allowed during the months of May, June, July, August and September.

The committee decided that the ban was necessary because of the fire hazard and the nuisance caused to neighbors during weekends.

When the ban goes into effect residents will be allowed to have two cans of garbage collected free and a third one, if necessary, for 15 cents.

Ald. John Goult observed, "This is a reasonable solution so long as we're prepared to take the increase."

Committee Backs Heritage Group

Establishment of a five-man heritage advisory committee was recommended today by Victoria city council's B Committee.

Guidelines for the heritage committee were presented to the committee by the city's community development department.

Members of the heritage committee will be Ald. Sam Bawlf, one architect, one historian, and two private citizens with experience or knowledge of building restoration or preservation.

The guidelines say the heritage committee should undertake a city-wide survey to draw up a register of heritage buildings.

Langford Shows Way

Of $1,717,838 worth of rural building, Langford had $613,184 worth compared to $211,916 last July.

Totals for other areas (with last July's total in brackets) are: Sooke, $219,992 ($133,468); Metchosin, $104,955 ($83,650); Colwood $226,659 ($122,643); View Royal, $55,284 ($5,184); Salt Spring Island $296,266 ($303,728); Outer Gulf Islands, $201,498 ($198,672).

Value of permits for all areas last July was $1,059,261.

Wharf, Government Semi-Malls Urged

Creation of a semi-mall on Government Street and another semi-mall later on Wharf Street have been recommended in a study released today by Victoria's traffic department.

The study recommends the narrowing of Government and Wharf to two-lane, one-way streets, and the widening of sidewalks to create partial malls on both streets.

Both malls would run from Humboldt to Yates on both streets, with traffic moving south on Wharf and north on Government.

"The main factor favoring the semi-mall option is the importance of developing Wharf Street as well as Government Street as pedestrian-oriented, rather than vehicle-oriented streets," the report said.

"Vehicular usage of Wharf Street is increasing and the trends if not arrested, are obvious," it said.

"The street will become increasing less attractive to pedestrians, both to cross and to walk along."

"The adoption of the full-mall concept will tend to accentuate and accelerate this undesirable trend."

Other alternatives were to widen Wharf Street and make a full traffic-free mall of Government, or to make complementary one-way streets of Wharf and Douglas and make a complete mall of Government.

The study says full involvement of merchants and public should be encouraged in creating the semi-malls.

It also recommends:

—Studies be done into possible use of Blanshard Street as an alternative truck route to Government.

—Prohibition of commuter parking facilities in and around the downtown pedestrian core of the city with off-street parking provided on the fringe of the pedestrian core.

—Investigation of a commuter bus service for rush-hour traffic and a dial-a-bus system for off-peak service.

CAMPBELL
. . . not for cars

The report was discussed today by council's B Committee.

Only Mayor Peter Pollen voiced objections to the report, particularly to the idea of providing a truck route on Blanshard.

"I'm not satisfied with this," Pollen said. He called the Blanshard Street proposal a "typical North American response" to accommodate the automobile.

City traffic engineer D. E. Campbell told Pollen the mall study, if carried out, would remove half the main travel lanes in the downtown area. This is hardly accommodating the automobile, he said.

The study will be discussed further at a meeting of the committee of the whole later today.

Cigarette Fire Razes Acreage in Highlands

Seniors Also Want Proposed Family Allowance Increases

Pensioners should get the same $20 a month increase proposed for family allowances, senior citizens counsellor Mrs. Annie McVie said today.

Secretary-treasurer of Senior Citizens' Campaign Council and herself a pensioner, Mrs. McVie was commenting on federal cabinet plans to give pensioners quarterly cost-of-living increments instead of once a year.

She thought immediate consideration should be given to freezing prices.

"The cost of living is a dreadful thing. It has gone beyond even the depression — we should be rationing people.

Prices of essentials, such as bread, milk and meat go up daily, she said.

"The thing that concerns me in my work with pensioners (voluntary counselling) is the high cost of drugs. All senior citizens over a certain age should have free medical (services) and drugs," Mrs. McVie said.

Ald. Edith Gunning, chairman of Saanich council social services committee, said the proposed increase ($5.30 for a pensioner in October) "seems so small it's infinitesimal. It's a desperate situation."

She said a number of families are having a difficult time trying to eke out a living, or retired single persons, or those who don't yet qualify for the old age pension.

Quarterly cost-of-living increments were welcomed by an anonymous pensioner, who noted: "The cost of living keeps going up and doesn't wait for the end of the year."

"I'm sorry it's no more," said Pensioners Concerned Inc. president Stanley Uren. "The increase will not cover the increased cost of living, but it is a help."

VICTORIA SAILOR WINS IN PORTUGAL

A 17-year-old Royal Victoria Yacht Club sailor beat out all competition Monday and won the first race of the World Youth Sailing Championships being sailed in Portugal.

Tony Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rose, 3898 Cadboro Bay, helmed his Laser dinghy to first place, establishing a strong lead in the series.

'Band-Aid' Curbs Fan Outrage

Ferry Vote Friday

Two thousand B.C. Ferries employees will decide Friday at 5 a.m. whether to strike the government fleet.

Meetings have been called at all ferry terminals when members of the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union will hear reports from their executive on negotiations for a new agreement, which broke down last Friday.

Business agent Norman Thornber said the executive, which met for four hours Monday, will not be giving a specific recommendation, but it is "quite obvious what the decision will be."

He said reports the union is receiving from its members show "our people are solidly endorsing the action of their committee."

Asked if a work stoppage would come immediately, he said: "Yes, it would."

Representatives of the BCGEU's marine branch (licensed), meanwhile, were meeting B.C. Ferries officials in a negotiating meeting today. The licensed branch represents 400 officers and engineers.

The threat of a strike, however, has not caused a stampede of tourists off Vancouver Island, said B.C. Ferries traffic manager Bob Innes.

On the mainland, traffic was waiting 1½ hours at Horseshoe Bay and an hour at Tsawwassen to get over to Vancouver Island and a spokesman at Horseshoe Bay expected the delays to grow during the day.

Thornber said "the key to the whole thing" is that the Civil Service Commission and the government are "very reluctant" to recognize the ferry fleet as a marine operation.

"They continually try to relate it to shore operations. Our situation is quite unique in the government service. This is what we are trying to achieve — recognition as a marine operation," he said.

One of the issues is payment for work on statutory holidays. The union wants time-and-one-half to be paid plus a day in lieu at straight-time pay. Transport Minister Bob Strachan has said that because other government employees work on statutory holidays, such a provision must be negotiated on a province-wide basis.

Thornber replied that just because others aren't getting what the ferry workers want doesn't mean the ferry workers shouldn't get it, or that other government workers "should be screwed out of it."

Most of the labor force looks upon statutory holidays as a long weekend but for ferry workers "it's organized confusion. We have to work the statutory holiday and doubly hard the day before and

Leaders of both federal opposition parties reacted with outrage today at the "disappointingly thin" action taken by the federal government to curb the food-cost spiral and demanded the immediate recall of Parliament.

Premier Barrett said today the provincial government plans some course of action to combat the rising costs of food in light of Ottawa's "disappointing" response.

But Barrett would not be specific in saying what the government plans to do or how long it will be before the plans are revealed.

He criticized the federal government, saying it is "pointless" to restrict food export licensing without putting a clamp on exports themselves and that it would have been better to put money directly into the hands of pensioners "now, when they need it most."

His caucus will meet next Monday to discuss whether to continue support of the minority government.

A general 90-day prices and incomes freeze is needed, he said.

Lewis said he is pleased by the export controls and by the increase in old-age pensions promised by a more frequent cost of living adjustment.

Both, he said, were ideas put forward by the NDP.

But the prime minister "should have had the courage" to recall Parliament to deal with food costs. The recall demand was echoed by Stanfield.

"People want someone with strength at the helm to bring them through this psychological inflation," he said.

"I think he's quite comfortable in his parliamentary pew."

The government plan was merely "a Sermon on the Mount" and "of no substance," he concluded.

Thomas G. Bolton, president of Dominion Stores Ltd., said that during the last three weeks Dominion Stores has been advised of product cost advances by about 150 suppliers.

He also said net earnings for the company in the quarter ended June 16 increased to $2,847,000 or 34 cents a share from $1,480,000 and 18 cents in the first quarter a year ago.

Spokesmen for farm producers are not optimistic that the restrictions can ease the burden of rising prices for Canadian consumers.

Charles Munro, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said the measures fail to consider the effects of continuing railway strikes and heavy speculating in unregulated food commodity markets.

"The best way to cure the problem is to keep producers profitably producing," he said.

George Morris, president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said the cabinet's export restrictions follow a recommendation made by cattlemen last week—one the as-

BEEF, PORK EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Monday imposed export controls on beef and pork and increased payments for those on fixed incomes.

But it rejected price controls, arguing that they could hurt production.

The cabinet met for six hours Monday, discussing inflated food prices and other matters and drafted a statement which proposes:

- Export controls on beef and pork, effective today. The controls will control export of prime table meats to any country, but will allow the export of poorer grades.

Alastair Gillespie, minister of industry, trade and commerce, said, however, that export licences will be granted to permit exports to traditional customers because the program is intended only to protect the Canadian market from being raided to make up for meat shortages in the United States.

- A toughened food prices review board to search out and make public examples of unwarranted price increases.

- Old-age security and guaranteed income payments be increased five per cent, effective Oct. 1. The increase comes with a proposal for a cost of living adjustment every three months.
- A federal-provincial conference this fall to develop food policies.

The basic old-age security payment will be increased to $105.30 a month from $100 effective Oct. 1, under a proposal to make cost-of-living adjustments to old-age and guaranteed income supplement payments every three months instead of annually.

The old-age payments to couples also will be increased about five per cent, to $341.80. The monthly payments for the guaranteed income supplement will increase five per cent to $179.16.

Parliament must approve the plan and it is not scheduled to meet until Oct. 15, but payments would be retroactive.

LIQUOR RE-PRICING ORDERED HALTED

B.C. liquor stores have been ordered to stop increasing the price of products already in stock, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday.

Macdonald was commenting on a Vancouver report that some liquor outlets had liquor products on their shelves which had been re-priced upwards, with labels stuck on top of older labels.

Macdonald said B.C. Liquor Board general manager Bill Bruce informed him this was not board policy but had happened in some instances.

"So we sent a directive to all the stores so that they don't label old stock, purchased at a lower price, with a higher price," the attorney-general said.

The company's trucking operations suffered a slight decline while revenue from shipping slipped $2.2 million, the company said in a statement.

Net railway earnings rose to $30.5 million from $22.9 million.

Bombs Pound Till Deadline

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Fierce U.S. bombing rocked Phnom Penh for the last time today as warplanes blasted rebel forces surrounding the beleaguered capital in up-to-the-deadline raids.

Air controllers called in strike after strike on the city's defence perimeter from the big B-52 bombers, F-111 jet fighter-bombers and tactical aircraft that have flown intensified raids throughout the country for 160 consecutive days.

Night flares lit the sky around Phnom Penh searching out rebel concentrations. Where they were found, they were hit. With daylight, the air activity became intense. Windows and doors rattled as the whump of the bombs hit the outskirts in the hot sunshine.

The U.S. air war in Cambodia had less than 24 hours to go under a compromise agreement between President Nixon and Congress. The bombing must stop at 9 p.m. PDT tonight, or 11 a.m. Wednesday Cambodian time, and will spell the official end of U.S. military involvement throughout Southeast Asia.

It will be the first time since 1964 that the U.S. Air Force isn't bombing somewhere in Indo-China.

When the bombing ends, the Cambodian army of some 250,000 men, women and youths in their early teens will be on their own, supported from the air by the tiny Cambodian Air Force — a meager fleet of only about 40 obsolete prop-driven fighter-bombers that have none of the sophisticated equipment of U.S. warplanes.

Despite a warning Sunday from deposed Cambodian leader Prince Nordom Sihanouk that victory by his rebel forces in Cambodia is "already practically achieved" and that all foreigners should leave Phnom Penh, the U.S. embassy — largest in the capital with about 200 personnel — said it would stay.

In addition, a force of more than 200 foreign newsmen, television cameramen and photographers were sticking it out to see what happens after the bombing ends.

Since the cease-fire in Vietnam six months ago, the United States has dropped more than 240,000 tons of bombs on Cambodia compared to 160,000 tons of conventional bombs dropped on Japan in the Second World War.

The Pentagon estimates the air war in Cambodia and Laos cost about $442.8 million.

The total cost of the air war is difficult to calculate because the Pentagon has provided only piecemeal figures.

However, it was estimated last January that the total price in lost planes and bombs and rockets fired came then to about $16.5 billion. Aircraft fuel, spare parts and the cost of maintaining air

Bank Rate A Record In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board Monday raised its discount rate to a record 7.5 per cent, a move the central bank said was designed to bring the rate into alignment with other short-term rates.

Even with the hike, the rate lags far behind most other money market interest rates.

And, Canadian bank lending rates will likely rise again within the next 60 days, says McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. Ltd., a Toronto investment firm.

In its latest money market letter, the firm says that despite the rise of one-half of one per cent in the Canadian prime rate to 8¼ per cent last week, the outlook for interest rates "remains pessimistic over the near term."

Job Growth Rate Slows

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's steady growth in jobs slowed in July for the first time this year, Statistics Canada reported today.

The nation's unemployment also dropped last month, resuming this year's steady decline that was interrupted by a one-month drift upward in June.

The jobless rate dropped to 5.2 per cent in July from 5.3 per cent in June on a seasonally adjusted basis that accounts for expected fluctuations in the economy.

In British Columbia, the actual jobless rate declined from 6.1 to 5.9 per cent with the total out of work falling 2,000 to 59,000.

The total of Canadians at work rose 119,000 last month to 9,229,000, but since it usually rises more than that in July government statisticians figured it as a seasonally adjusted drop of about 90,000.

Without seasonal adjustment, the actual unemployment rate dropped to 4.8 per cent in July from 5.2 per cent in June.

On both bases, unemployment was considerably below last year's consistent figures of more than six per cent of the work force.

The total unemployed fell 3,000 to 941,000.

The 90,000 seasonally-adjusted drop in total employment in July was sharply up from June's barely noticeable decline of 14,000.

The slackening growth in jobs came after government action raising interest rates and cutting federal spending in an effort to slow the nation's sharp rise in living costs.

Whether Prime Minister Trudeau's latest anti-inflation move, curbing exports of cattle and hogs, will have any effect on employment won't become evident until later in the year.

Government policies to slow the economy are a traditional method of curbing inflation, but generally raise the problem of increasing unemployment as an unwanted result.

"On a seasonally adjusted basis, the employment level decreased in all regions," Statistics Canada said.

"The most substantial change was in Ontario, down 60,000, following an increase of about the same magnitude last month. The level in the Prairie region and Quebec also showed large decreases while the level in the Atlantic region and British Columbia declined slightly," the report added.

"The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate decreased in the Atlantic region, Quebec and British Columbia while it increased in the Prairie region," it said.

REBELS TAKE OVER DETROIT PLANT

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s Mack Avenue stamping plant was shut down today after a fired worker allegedly attacked two security men with a pipe and about 300 workers seized control of the plant.

The workers said they would not leave the plant until a list of 11 demands were met.

Among the demands were that all workers fired in any disturbance be rehired and there be no disciplinary action against any workers taking part in the disturbance.

Several radical groups not affiliated with the workers were passing out socialist literature outside the plant early today.

It was the second "plant hijacking" by angry workers in three weeks. Two workers earlier occupied a power cage at Chrysler's Jefferson Avenue assembly plant, turned off the power to a feeder line and forced the company to fire a supervisor.

Water to Point Only in Crisis

The B.C. government will supply water to the U.S. community of Point Roberts only if there is a fire emergency or if there is danger of drinking supplies running short, Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said today.

Hall was commenting on a request from Washington Governor Dan Evans, who said in a letter to Premier Barrett that the situation at the tiny community is "extremely critical."

The provincial secretary said B.C. wants to make sure that any provision of water supplies to Point Roberts does not jeopardize the workings of the International Joint Commission, which he said is studying the long-range problems of the 3,100-acre community, bordered on three sides by water and on the fourth by Canada. About 350 Americans and 850 Canadians live in the area.

Hall accused the community of "indiscriminate planning" and said it should not be the responsibility of the provincial government to look after support services for a community which is intended by some to grow to 15,000 people.

As for the Point Roberts' request that water be supplied by the municipality of Delta, Hall said: "There's no damn water in Delta and it's just not enough to ask our people to go without while other areas adjacent to it just go on with indiscriminate planning and these kind of fantastic development programs . . ."

A Vancouver-based development company — Pacific and Western Equities, Inc. — is attempting to amass land and get approval for a $200 million development that would cover more than 1,800 acres, roughly half of the Point Roberts land area.

The development would include a resort hotel, marina, golf course, horse stables, hiking trails, and housing for 15,000.

Harry Sames, chairman of the Point Roberts Water Board, said this would increase the water needs drastically. One solution, he said, would be to pipe water across Boundary Bay from the Blaine reservoir. The cost of such a pipeline, however, was estimated a year ago at upwards of $4 million, far beyond the money-raising capabilities of Point Roberts. If Pacific and Western footed most of the bill, it could be practical.

Apart from a fair bit of general opposition from Point Roberts residents — Canadian and American — who want to preserve a rural atmosphere, the main stumbling block facing the developers is 71-year-old Reno R. Reno, who owns a key 190 acres wanted for the proposed development.

Reno said Pacific and Western has offered him about $866,000 for the land, which would not include his waterfront home. He wants $5 million.

"I like to think my mother didn't raise any foolish children," he said.

"Critical Emergency Water Shortage," said one sign. "Canadians Go Home," read another.

ALL Hands on This Deck

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

She represents an American taxpayer investment of $32 million.

She's the 892½-foot Ultramar, on her maiden voyage from San Diego, where she was designed and built by the National Steel and Shipbuilding Co.

Shipyard consultant Martin Berger said the Ultramar was built with federal funds under the program announced by President Nixon about three years ago.

The program will fund the construction of about 300 modern vessels and underwrite operating costs.

"These ships will help put the (American) dollar back into a strong position," he predicted.

The Ultramar is in Esquimalt for repairs.

"She's very sophisticated and the first of many," Berger says, "We have a few mechanical bugs to work out."

Sailing under the American flag with an American crew of 26 plus her master, Capt. Wesley Faust, 53, of Santa Rosa, Calif., the Ultramar is one of the most versatile vessels. She's capable of carrying either oil, ore or bulk cargo and is 106 feet in the beam, the maximum girth capable of going through the Panama Canal.

She's owned by Westchester Marine Shipping Co. Inc. of New York, which is building eight more vessels of the same size under the government program.

Her sister ship, the Ultrasea, will be launched in October. Seven tankers of the same size are also planned.

Berger says all the steel ships will be double bottomed to ensure maximum protection of the ecology.

Eventually she will be able to operate without a man in her engine room.

"She is fully automated," Berger says, "with a two-man engine room. With very little modification she will be able to run with a zero-manning engine room."

Ultramar is the largest ship ever built on the U.S. west coast and handling her is no mean feat, even for a man like Faust who's followed the sea since 1939.

"With 80,500 tons dead weight beneath you," he says, "you always have to be aware of the mass when you bring her alongisde and the time it takes to stop."

His 10-storey command, five below the main deck and another five from there to his bridge, gives Faust the impression of "flying an airplane," perched between 70 and 80 feet above the sea level.

Her 24,000 horsepower steam engines give her a cruising speed of 17½ knots when fully loaded. Faust confesses it gives him an eerie feeling when she's under way:

"Standing up here on the bridge I can see the bridge tilt one way and the bow another. Mind you, she has to be flexible — but it's a queer feeling.

"She rolls a long way. You have to be very, very careful," he says. "It's like pushing a mountain. If you go too fast you're liable to bump something."

The wheel in the bridge house seems incongruously small for its task as Faust explains that he can switch control from there to the engine room at the push of a button.

A nearby teletype records every command. Berger explains that this provides a full record should one ever be needed in the case of an incident.

When she leaves Esquimalt the Ultramar will load 78,000 tons of coal at Roberts Bank. After unloading in Japan, she will head for the Persian Gulf, where she will take on oil destined for Quebec.

Between Faust's place on the bridge and her bow. Ultramar could set up three football fields.

Early Start Planned On New Marine Base

Construction of a $6,270,000 marine base in Victoria harbor for the ministry of transport will begin in a few months, the federal government announced today.

The new base, which has been talked about for years, will be located on 19 acres, the former Victoria Machinery Depot outer wharf property, alongside Dallas Road at Ogden Point.

The Ottawa announcement said treasury board approval has been granted for the project, which will consolidate on one site marine services now scattered at four locations.

First phase will see the old wharf and buildings demolished. A new wharf, administrative offices, aids to navigation workshop, vessel berthing and stores facilities will then be built with the entire project expected to take about three years.

The VMD Dallas Road yard, closed in November, 1967, after the shipyard operation was sold to Burrard-Yarrows, cost the federal government about $2.25 million.

At the moment, marine services of the ministry are administered from offices in the Toronto-Dominion Bank Building downtown, weatherships Quadra and Vancouver are berthed at a public works wharf in Esquimalt, the service's helicopter is based at Victoria International Airport and a ship depot is located on Johnson Street.

All will be located at the new base, which will also have room for expansion. About 400 employees in Victoria will be brought together.

Ministry spokesmen said the new base fits Victoria's long-range plans to beautify and expand the harbor from a tourist and aesthetic point of view.

They said the present marine services base, near the Johnson Street bridge, dates from 1912 and the buildings have reached the end of their useful lives.

Berthing facilities are also limited and should mechanical failure block raising of the Johnson Street bridge, ministry vessels could not now get to sea until repairs were made, they added.

The government announcement said construction would get under way early in 1974 or sooner if possible.

'DISASTER' SAYS TINDALL

A city alderman denied today there has been close co-operation between the federal government and Victoria on development plans for the former Victoria Machinery Depot property on Dallas Road.

Ald. Bill Tindall, chairman of council's commerce, industry and tourism committee, said there has been no discussion with Ottawa on developing a marine base there for the ministry of transport.

It would be a "disaster" if the federal government proceeded with its building plans before talking to the city about its plans for the waterfront and James Bay, said Tindall.

The government announcement today on the marine base said the "ministry has been working for some time in close co-operation with the city . . . to select a suitable site."

Mayor Peter Pollen, contacted later, said there were some discussions with the city but they were not extensive.

Motorist Given Two-Year Term

A Victorian who drove through a red light and a stop sign on the wrong side of the road at 90 miles an hour in a stolen car was sentenced to two years in jail today.

Jack Stewart Brown, 23, of 840 Pembroke, was sentenced on charges of stealing a car, dangerous driving and driving without a licence before Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court today.

Prosecutor Wally Anderson said Saanich police tried to stop Brown's car on Quadra Street Aug. 8 when he was driving "erratically."

Police chased Brown down Quadra Street and said he was driving 90 miles an hour, crossed the centreline, went through two intersections on the wrong side of the road and finally hit a telephone pole at Quadra and Tolmie.

Brown got out of the car which he had stolen the day before from a Victoria service station, and fled into nearby Topaz Park.

The police gave chase and finally found the man in the park. Brown was taken to Victoria General Hospital where he remained four days in serious condition suffering from head injuries, cuts and shock.

Brown's only explanation of the incident was that he had been drinking.

"You need a new attitude towards your life and you must get out of the alcohol group," Judge Ostler told Brown.

"You must not accept the kind of life you are living as inevitable."

Langford Shows Way

Of $1,717,838 worth of rural building, Langford had $613,184 worth compared to $211,916 last July.

Totals for other areas (with last July's total in brackets) are: Sooke, $219,992 ($183,468); Metchosin, $104,955 ($83,650); Colwood $226,659 ($122,643); View Royal, $55,284 ($5,184); Salt Spring Island $296,266 ($303,728); Outer Gulf Islands, $201,498 ($198,672).

Value of permits for all areas last July was $1,059,261.

Incinerator Ban Coming

The committee will recommend to council that no incinerator fires be allowed during the months of May, June, July, August and September.

The committee decided that the ban was necessary because of the fire hazard and the nuisance caused to neighbors during weekends.

When the ban goes into effect residents will be allowed to have two cans of garbage collected free and a third one, if necessary, for 15 cents.

Ald. John Goult observed, "This is a reasonable solution so long as we're prepared to take the increase."

Committee Backs Heritage Group

Establishment of a five-man heritage advisory committee was recommended today by Victoria city council's B Committee.

Guidelines for the heritage committee were presented to the committee by the city's community development department.

Members of the heritage committee will be Ald. Sam Bawlf, one architect, one historian, and two private citizens with experience or knowledge of building restoration or preservation.

The guidelines say the heritage committee should undertake a city-wide survey to draw up a register of heritage buildings.

Wharf, Government Semi-Malls Urged

Creation of a semi-mall on Government Street and another semi-mall later on Wharf Street have been recommended in a study released today by Victoria's traffic department.

The study recommends the narrowing of Government and Wharf to two-lane, one-way streets, and the widening of sidewalks to create partial malls on both streets.

Both malls would run from Humboldt to Yates on both streets, with traffic moving south on Wharf and north on Government.

"The main factor favoring the semi-mall option is the importance of developing Wharf Street as well as Government Street as pedestrian-oriented, rather than vehicle-oriented streets," the report said.

"Vehicular usage of Wharf Street is increasing and the trends if not arrested, are obvious," it said.

"The street will become increasing less attractive to pedestrians, both to cross and to walk along."

"The adoption of the full-mall concept will tend to accentuate and accelerate this undesirable trend."

The semi-mall concept is one of three alternatives for Government Street that were considered in making the study.

Other alternatives were to widen Wharf Street and make a full traffic-free mall of Government, or to make complementary one-way streets of Wharf and Douglas and make a complete mall of Government.

The study says full involvement of merchants and public should be encouraged in creating the semi-malls.

It also recommends:

—Studies be done into possible use of Blanshard Street as an alternative truck route to Government.

CAMPBELL
. . . not for cars

—Prohibition of commuter parking facilities in and around the downtown pedestrian core of the city with off-street parking provided on the fringe of the pedestrian core.

—Investigation of a commuter bus service for rush-hour traffic and a dial-a-bus system for off-peak service.

—On-street parking that will be removed should be replaced with landscaping and beautification.

The report was discussed today by council's B committee.

Only Mayor Peter Pollen voiced objections to the report, particularly to the idea of providing a truck route on Blanshard.

"I'm not satisfied with this," Pollen said. He called the Blanshard Street proposal a "typical North American response" to accommodate the automobile.

City traffic engineer D. E. Campbell told Pollen the mall study, if carried out, would remove half the main travel lanes in the downtown area. This is hardly accommodating the automobile, he said.

The study will be discussed further at a meeting of the committee of the whole later today.

Cigarette Fire Razes Acreage in Highlands

Two heavily-treed acres burned Monday afternoon in a fire probably started by a careless smoker, a B.C. Forest Service spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the fire was probably caused by a burning cigarette. There were a lot of motorcyclists using the backroads in the area during the weekend, he said.

Seniors Also Want Proposed Family Allowance Increases

Pensioners should get the same $20 a month increase proposed for family allowances, senior citizens counsellor Mrs. Annie McVie said today.

Secretary-treasurer of Senior Citizens' Campaign Council and herself a pensioner, Mrs. McVie was commenting on federal cabinet plans to give pensioners quarterly cost-of-living increments instead of once a year.

She thought immediate consideration should be given to freezing prices.

"The cost of living is a dreadful thing. It has gone beyond even the depression — we should be rationing people.

"Why don't they give the old age pensioner the extra $20 a month — those who are alone?"

Prices of essentials, such as bread, milk and meat go up daily, she said.

"The thing that concerns me in my work with pensioners (voluntary counselling) is the high cost of drugs. All senior citizens over a certain age should have free medical (services) and drugs," Mrs. McVie said.

She intends to broach the matter at a provincial conference of senior citizens to be held here in October.

Ald. Edith Gunning, chairman of Saanich council social services committee, said the proposed increase ($5.30 for a pensioner in October) "seems so small it's infinitesimal. It's a desperate situation."

She said a number of families are having a difficult time trying to eke out a living, along with retired single persons and those who don't yet qualify for the old age pension.

Quarterly cost-of-living increments were welcomed by an anonymous pensioner, who noted: "The cost of living keeps going up and doesn't wait for the end of the year."

"I'm sorry it's no more," said Pensioners Concerned Inc. president Stanley Uren. "The increase will not cover the increased cost of living, but it is a help."

VICTORIA SAILOR WINS IN PORTUGAL

A 17-year-old Royal Victoria Yacht Club sailor beat out all competition Monday and won the first race of the World Youth Sailing Championships being sailed in Portugal.

Tony Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rose, 3898 Cadboro Bay, helmed his Laser dinghy to first place, establishing a strong lead in the series.

'Band-Aid' Curbs Fan Outrage

Times News Services

Leaders of both federal opposition parties reacted with outrage today at the "disappointingly thin" action taken by the federal government to curb the food-cost spiral and demanded the immediate recall of Parliament.

Premier Barrett said today the provincial government plans some course of action to combat the rising costs of food in light of Ottawa's "disappointing" response.

But Barrett would not be specific in saying what the government plans to do or how long it will be before the plans are revealed.

He criticized the federal government, saying it is "pointless" to restrict food export licensing without putting a clamp on exports themselves and that it would have been better to put money directly into the hands of pensioners "now, when they need it most."

His caucus will meet next Monday to discuss whether to continue support of the minority government.

Conservative leader Robert Stanfield said the moves amount to "trying to fix broken legs with a Band-Aid without first setting the legs."

A general 90-day prices and incomes freeze is needed, he said.

Lewis said he is pleased by the export controls and by the increase in old-age pensions promised by a more frequent cost of living adjustment.

Both, he said, were ideas put forward by the NDP.

But the prime minister "should have had the courage" to recall Parliament to deal with food costs. The recall demand was echoed by Stanfield.

"People want someone with strength at the helm to bring them through this psychological inflation," he said.

"I think he's quite comfortable in his parliamentary pew."

The government plan was merely "a Sermon on the Mount" and "of no substance," he concluded.

Thomas G. Bolton, president of Dominion Stores Ltd., said that during the last three weeks Dominion Stores has been advised of product cost advances by about 150 suppliers.

He also said net earnings for the company in the quarter ended June 16 increased to $2,847,000 or 34 cents a share from $1,480,000 and 18 cents in the first quarter a year ago.

Spokesmen for farm producers are not optimistic that the restrictions can ease the burden of rising prices for Canadian consumers.

Charles Munro, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said the measures fail to consider the effects of continuing railway strikes and heavy speculating in unregulated food commodity markets.

"The best way to cure the problem is to keep producers profitably producing," he said.

George Morris, president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said the cabinet's export restrictions follow a recommendation made by cattlemen last week—one the as-

BEEF, PORK EXPORT BAN

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Monday imposed export controls on beef and pork and increased payments for those on fixed incomes.

But it rejected price controls, arguing that they could hurt production.

The cabinet met for six hours Monday, discussing inflated food prices and other matters and drafted a statement which proposes:

- Export controls on beef and pork, effective today. The controls will control export of prime table meats to any country, but will allow the export of poorer grades.

Alastair Gillespie, minister of industry, trade and commerce, said, however, that export licences will be granted to permit exports to traditional customers because the program is intended only to protect the Canadian market from being raided to make up for meat shortages in the United States.

- A toughened food prices review board to search out and make public examples of unwarranted price increases.

- Old-age security and guaranteed income payments be increased five per cent, effective Oct. 1. The increase comes with a proposal for a cost of living adjustment every three months.
- A federal-provincial conference this fall to develop food policies.

The basic old-age security payment will be increased to $105.30 a month from $100 effective Oct. 1, under a proposal to make cost-of-living adjustments to old-age and guaranteed income supplement payments every three months instead of annually.

The old-age payments to couples also will be increased about five per cent, to $341.80. The monthly payments for the guaranteed income supplement will increase five per cent to $179.16.

Parliament must approve the plan and it is not scheduled to meet until Oct. 15, but payments would be retroactive.

Job Growth Rate Slows

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's steady growth in jobs slowed in July for the first time this year, Statistics Canada reported today.

The nation's unemployment also dropped last month, resuming this year's steady decline that was interrupted by a one-month drift upward in June.

The jobless rate dropped to 5.2 per cent in July from 5.3 per cent in June on a seasonally adjusted basis that accounts for expected fluctuations in the economy.

In British Columbia, the actual jobless rate declined from 6.1 to 5.9 per cent with the total out of work falling 2,000 to 59,000.

The total of Canadians at work rose 119,000 last month to 9,229,000, but since it usually rises more than that in July government statisticians figured it as a seasonally adjusted drop of about 90,000.

Without seasonal adjustment, the actual unemployment rate dropped to 4.8 per cent in July from 5.2 per cent in June.

On both bases, unemployment was considerably below last year's consistent figures of more than six per cent of the work force.

The total unemployed fell 3,000 to 941,000.

The 90,000 seasonally-adjusted drop in total employment in July was sharply up from June's barely noticeable decline of 14,000.

The slackening growth in jobs came after government action raising interest rates and cutting federal spending in an effort to slow the nation's sharp rise in living costs.

Whether Prime Minister Trudeau's latest anti-inflation move, curbing exports of cattle and hogs, will have any effect on employment won't become evident until later in the year.

Government policies to slow the economy are a traditional method of curbing inflation, but generally raise the problem of increasing unemployment as an unwanted result.

"On a seasonally adjusted basis, the employment level decreased in all regions," Statistics Canada said.

"The most substantial change was in Ontario, down 60,000, following an increase of about the same magnitude last month. The level in the Prairie region and Quebec also showed large decreases while the level in the Atlantic region and British Columbia declined slightly," the report added.

"The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate decreased in the Atlantic region, Quebec and British Columbia while it increased in the Prairie region," it said.

"The largest decline in the

Ferry Vote Friday

Two thousand B.C. Ferries employees will decide Friday at 5 a.m. whether to strike the government fleet.

Meetings have been called at all ferry terminals when members of the marine branch (unlicensed) of the B.C. Government Employees Union will hear reports from their executive on negotiations for a new agreement, which broke down last Friday.

Business agent Norman Thornber said the executive, which met for four hours Monday, will not be giving a specific recommendation, but it is "quite obvious what the decision will be."

He said reports the union is receiving from its members show "our people are solidly endorsing the action of their committee."

Asked if a work stoppage would come immediately, he said: "Yes, it would."

Representatives of the BCGEU's marine branch (licensed), meanwhile, were meeting B.C. Ferries officials in a negotiating meeting today. The licensed branch represents 400 officers and engineers.

The threat of a strike, however, has not caused a stampede of tourists off Vancouver Island, said B.C. Ferries traffic manager Bob Innes.

On the mainland, traffic was waiting 1½ hours at Horseshoe Bay and an hour at Tsawwassen to get over to Vancouver Island and a spokesman at Horseshoe Bay expected the delays to grow during the day.

Thornber said "the key to the whole thing" is that the Civil Service Commission and the government are "very reluctant" to recognize the ferry fleet as a marine operation.

"They continually try to relate it to shore operations. Our situation is quite unique in the government service. This is what we are trying to achieve — recognition as a marine operation," he said.

One of the issues is payment for work on statutory holidays. The union wants time-and-one-half to be paid plus a day in lieu at straight-time pay. Transport Minister Bob Strachan has said that because other government employees work on statutory holidays, such a provision must be negotiated on a province-wide basis.

Thornber replied that just because others aren't getting what the ferry workers want doesn't mean the ferry workers shouldn't get it, or that other government workers "should be screwed out of it."

Most of the labor force looks upon statutory holidays as a long weekend but for ferry workers "it's organized confusion. We have to work the statutory holiday and doubly hard the day before and

LIQUOR RE-PRICING ORDERED HALTED

B.C. liquor stores have been ordered to stop increasing the price of products already in stock, Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Monday.

Macdonald was commenting on a Vancouver report that some liquor outlets had liquor products on their shelves which had been re-priced upwards, with labels stuck on top of older labels.

Macdonald said B.C. Liquor Board general manager Bill Bruce informed him this was not board policy but had happened in some instances.

"So we sent a directive to all the stores so that they don't label old stock, purchased at a lower price, with a higher price," the attorney-general said.

Bombs Pound Till Deadline

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — Fierce U.S. bombing rocked Phnom Penh for the last time today as warplanes blasted rebel forces surrounding the beleaguered capital in up-to-the-deadline raids.

Air controllers called in strike after strike on the city's defence perimeter from the big B-52 bombers, F-111 jet fighter-bombers and tactical aircraft that have flown intensified raids throughout the country for 160 consecutive days.

Night flares lit the sky around Phnom Penh searching out rebel concentrations. Where they were found, they were hit. With daylight, the air activity became intense. Windows and doors rattled as the whump of the bombs hit the outskirts in the hot sunshine.

The U.S. air war in Cambodia had less than 24 hours to go under a compromise agreement between President Nixon and Congress. The bombing must stop at 9 p.m. PDT tonight, or 11 a.m. Wednesday Cambodian time, and will spell the official end of U.S. military involvement throughout Southeast Asia.

It will be the first time since 1964 that the U.S. Air Force isn't bombing somewhere in Indo-China.

When the bombing ends, the Cambodian army of some 250,000 men, women and youths in their early teens will be on their own, supported from the air by the tiny Cambodian Air Force — a meager fleet of only about 40 obsolete prop-driven fighter-bombers that have none of the sophisticated equipment of U.S. warplanes.

Despite a warning Sunday from deposed Cambodian leader Prince Nordom Sihanouk that victory by his rebel forces in Cambodia is "already practically achieved" and that all foreigners should leave Phnom Penh, the U.S. embassy — largest in the capital with about 200 personnel — said it would stay.

In addition, a force of more than 200 foreign newsmen, television cameramen and photographers were sticking it out to see what happens after the bombing ends.

Since the cease-fire in Vietnam six months ago, the United States has dropped more than 240,000 tons of bombs on Cambodia compared to 160,000 tons of conventional bombs dropped on Japan in the Second World War.

The Pentagon estimates the air war in Cambodia and Laos cost about $442.8 million.

The total cost of the air war is difficult to calculate because the Pentagon has provided only piecemeal figures.

However, it was estimated last January that the total price in lost planes and bombs and rockets fired came then to about $16.5 billion. Aircraft fuel, spare parts and the cost of maintaining air

CP EARNINGS UP 72% TO $66.8M

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific Ltd. reports net earnings of $66.8 million or 91 cents a share for the first six months of 1973, compared with $38.8 million or 51 cents for the corresponding period a year earlier — a 72-per-cent increase.

The company's trucking operations suffered a slight decline while revenue from shipping slipped $2.2 million, the company said in a statement.

Net railway earnings rose to $30.5 million from $22.9 million.

Bank Rate A Record In U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Federal Reserve Board Monday raised its discount rate to a record 7.5 per cent, a move the central bank said was designed to bring the rate into alignment with other short-term rates.

Even with the hike, the rate lags far behind most other money market interest rates.

And, Canadian bank lending rates will likely rise again within the next 60 days, says McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. Ltd., a Toronto investment firm.

In its latest money market letter, the firm says that despite the rise of one-half of one per cent in the Canadian prime rate to 8¼ per cent last week, the outlook for interest rates "remains pessimistic over the near term."

REBELS TAKE OVER DETROIT PLANT

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp.'s Mack Avenue stamping plant was shut down today after a fired worker allegedly attacked two security men with a pipe and about 300 workers seized control of the plant.

The workers said they would not leave the plant until a list of 11 demands were met.

Among the demands were that all workers fired in any disturbance be rehired and there be no disciplinary action against any workers taking part in the disturbance.

Several radical groups not affiliated with the workers were passing out socialist literature outside the plant early today.

It was the second "plant hijacking" by angry workers in three weeks. Two workers earlier occupied a power cage at Chrysler's Jefferson Avenue assembly plant, turned off the power to a feeder line and forced the company to fire a supervisor.

Water to Point Only in Crisis

The B.C. government will supply water to the U.S. community of Point Roberts only if there is a fire emergency or if there is danger of drinking supplies running short, Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall said today.

Hall was commenting on a request from Washington Governor Dan Evans, who said in a letter to Premier Barrett that the situation at the tiny community is "extremely critical."

The provincial secretary said B.C. wants to make sure that any provision of water supplies to Point Roberts does not jeopardize the workings of the International Joint Commission, which he said is studying the long-range problems of the 3,100-acre community, bordered on three sides by water and on the fourth by Canada. About 350 Americans and 850 Canadians live in the area.

Hall accused the community of "indiscriminate planning" and said it should not be the responsibility of the provincial government to look after support services for a community which is intended by some to grow to 15,000 people.

As for the Point Roberts' request that water be supplied by the municipality of Delta, Hall said: "There's no damn water in Delta and it's just not enough to ask our people to go without while other areas adjacent to it just go on with indiscriminate planning and these kind of fantastic development programs . . ."

A Vancouver-based development company — Pacific and Western Equities, Inc. — is attempting to amass land and get approval for a $200 million development that would cover more than 1,800 acres, roughly half of the Point Roberts land area.

The development would include a resort hotel, marina, golf course, horse stables, hiking trails, and housing for 15,000.

Harry Sames, chairman of the Point Roberts Water Board, said this would increase the water needs drastically. One solution, he said, would be to pipe water across Boundary Bay from the Blaine reservoir. The cost of such a pipeline, however, was estimated a year ago at upwards of $4 million, far beyond the money-raising capabilities of Point Roberts. If Pacific and Western footed most of the bill, it could be practical.

Apart from a fair bit of general opposition from Point Roberts residents — Canadian and American — who want to preserve a rural atmosphere, the main stumbling block facing the developers is 71-year-old Reno R. Reno, who owns a key 190 acres wanted for the proposed development.

Reno said Pacific and Western has offered him about $866,000 for the land, which would not include his waterfront home. He wants $5 million.

"I like to think my mother didn't raise any foolish children," he said.

"Critical Emergency Water Shortage," said one sign. "Canadians Go Home," read another.
